TALK OF BOODLE

What Witnesses at Aldermanic Trial Had to Say.

PRICE FOR A LICENSE SAID TO BE $400.

Some Sensational Facts Are Expected Very Soon.

The trial of the Haverhill aldermen alleged to have been financially interested in the granting of licenses opened at Lawrence, Monday, and was continued yesterday.

City Clerk Roberts testified and then T. G. McDonald says he paid nothing towards the granting of his license. On cross examination by Dist. Attorney Moody he said he had no recollection of conversation with C. W. Arnold, candidate for mayor about paying from $100 to $200 apiece for licenses, or of paying money into a pool.

Porter C. Croy, brother of Alderman Croy, testified that he met Kimball and went with him to Boxford. On the drive they talked license.

Kimball said: "Your brother is a fool not to make $400 or $500, when he can just as well as not."

Witness inquired: "Haven't you fixed Aldermen Cate, Ham, Tilton and Hoyt?" Kimball said: "Yes."

Witness asked where his brother would get the money, and Kimball said they would see to that all right.

Alderman Horace I. Pinkham, who was not a member of the "combine," testified to the special meeting of the aldermen, April 16. Alderman Croy was absent. Mayor Taylor was opposed to granting licenses until a full board was present.

"I was willing," testified the witness, "to go in then and grant all the licenses. The majority of the aldermen desired to grant 15, and I openly said that such a course would look as if they were putting a price on the remainder."

MARTIN'S BAIL IS REDUCED.

HE IS HELD FOR TEN DAYS ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Not Yet Bailed and Reason for Delay Is That the Government Is Not Ready.

Michael J. Martin, the 17 year old boy who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Patrick H. Buckley a week ago Saturday, was held in $6000 for a hearing ten days hence in court today. It is understood the government is not ready. Bail was reduced $2000.

No need of going to Boston for dresses. You get better attention and better bargains and more reliable goods at home with us.

Held a Meeting on City Hall Steps After Being Locked Out.

The license commissioners, the "Big 3" went up to city hall last evening to hold a meeting and they held it too—out in the rain. City hall was locked because the commissioners failed to notify City Messenger Cahill of their intention to hold a meeting.

City hall steps were large enough for the three and all spectators, and there under the shelter of umbrellas, Chairman Faulkner called to order, the commissioners refused to grant a common victualler's license to Reuben A. Hally, Liberty square.

But Calamity Orators Appealed to Sentiment.

GINGERLY HANDLED THE ISSUES OF THIS CAMPAIGN.

Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott Eulogizes the Blood of Middlesex County.

The assertion that the republican party is afraid of water is only true in part; some republicans like water and will brave a drizzle to hear campaign speeches. Some of them bring their wives while others stay at home and preach their own political doctrine to their wives and sweethearts. Like charity the salvation of a party begins at home. The rally of the calamity party in Huntington hall last night was not overcrowded and the galleries were only half filled. The band played well and the crowd liked it.

The fireworks opened with a vote of thanks by Chairman Kieski to the audience for turning out on so stormy a night.

Mayor Pickman was introduced to preside. He said first of all that the size of the audience augured the size of the victory Tuesday. The history of political organization is the history of the country. In this latter the issues at times have been clearly marked and defined; at other times less clearly marked. During the war there were two great organizations, republican and democratic, the former stood for freedom; what the democratic party stood for then it mattered not; men rallied to the support of the union. The moral issue was there, standing alone. Since the war another moral issue has been the currency; now there is an industrial issue. The republican party said we believe in the principle of protection; on the other hand was the party standing for revenue only. It was the issue of the last campaign; the republican party was defeated in it. "I am not a calamity orator, but is it not so that with the coming of the democrats came the dark clouds of depression. The people from Maine to California believe that the democratic administration is responsible for it. We have witnessed that the standard of American citizenship has been lowered from that established by noble Benjamin Harrison and his grand administration. "I believe that I am an American" should be the shield for protection to American subjects, just as true as "I am an Englishman" is a shield to British subjects in any part of the world. We hear a great deal about the long twilight of an Arctic sunset, but we hope that the election of next Tuesday will be the sunset of the democratic administration."

Mayor Pickman hoped he was speaking to democrats as they were the people who need republicanism, for the platform of the party was broad enough to admit every class and creed; it is the republican party of Sumner, Lincoln and Greenhalge.

The Lieut. Governor.

Hon. Roger Wolcott was introduced as one of the trustiest, most faithful servants of the commonwealth, and one who will soon be called up higher. He was greeted with applause and then cheers led by ex-Mayor Palmer. The lieut. governor was glad to be present; the large audience was a good omen he thought. He had come very near standing before Lowell audiences previously, but supposed Col. Winslow thought Lowell citizens did not need him while the state ticket was headed by a Lowell man. Campaign speech making is directed by the colonel's hands.

Mr. Wolcott proceeded to handle the history of Massachusetts, beginning with the Pilgrim Fathers, the idea of popular education, the appropriation to put up monuments to mark the places of the first meeting house and first public school, and the difficulty to locate them with several places putting in claims. This shows the grand work of the commonwealth built on the idea of popular education, a place for the people.

The revolution and the part taken in it by Massachusetts men next received attention, with a tribute to the men of Middlesex county. Then the founding of the big cities of the Merrimack valley, the coming of great statesmen, Webster, Phillips, Choate, and the two Massachusetts men who uphold the state's honor in the national senate, Senators Hoar and Lodge.

Lieut. Gov. Wolcott said it was the blood of the men of Middlesex which was first shed in the civil war—Ladd and Whitney, a coincidence with the shedding of the first blood in the revolution.

Such has been the history of our state; truly we can say with St. Paul, "We are no mean citizens of no mean state."

Mr. Wolcott's panegyric of old Middlesex was a grand one, quite out of the line of campaign speeches. He said it was for us to see that the spirit of liberty is transmitted to our sons, and our sons' sons.

He claimed that the democrats are not saying much about state issues, they want national issues. The reasons are that they have nothing to criticize in the administration of Frederic T. Greenhalge.

Proceeding to discussing of issues, he said that protection is not a new thing. The tariff bills by the first congress was signed by the first president. Its preamble said tariff was intended to promote American industries. Those men—Alexander Hamilton, James Madison who framed the first bills were men of grand political sagacity. The policy of protection has been followed with more or less fluctation from that time to this. It is, I understand the ground principle of the republican party. Under its 30 years of continued administration the country flourishes, and the best barometer of it, I believe is the showing of savings of working people in the banks.

A few years a change came, democrats made great promises; the people gave ear and two years ago every branch of the government was turned over to the democratic party for the first time since James Buchanan.

Then the speaker began to tell of alleged evils from which the country has suffered and urging the people to rise up in their might and make a change. He acknowledged that the senate would remain democratic but had great hopes that the majority in the house would be a big one. Considerable attention was given to booming Knox as the congressional candidate.

He sympathized with Congressman Stevens, he said, for his perplexity on the tariff bill, but applauded him for dodging a vote on it. In conclusion Mr. Wolcott took up the patriotic strain of his opening remarks and called upon the men of Middlesex to rise up in their might for the salvation (?) of the country from democratic rule.

More Patriotic Words.

In introducing the next speaker Mayor Pickman said that he hoped the crowd would stay and devote one night to the grand old cause of republicanism. Sec. H. A. Thomas expressed his pleasure at being present before such a sea of faces. He did not know what to talk about but it reminded him of a story of a speaker who asked his audience what he should talk about and some one yelled "about a minute." Mr. Thomas spoke of the history of the state as the history of the republican party, and began a glowing peroration to the nobility of the old Bay State men. He ... rated the tribute to the Harrison administration and how the Star and Stripes were upheld. He did not blame the million and a half of rank and file of democrats for making a change two years ago when such inducements were made out, but he did charge the leaders with inconsistency in failing to carry out the promises of the campaign, and only furnishing the country a patch work tariff bill. We heard at Music hall last week how the flag was hauled down in Samoa: a paper called it jingoism; if that is jingoism the more we have of it the better. We want the Stars and Stripes respected and held sacred. Every man in the country is the equal of his neighbor as long as he obeys her laws and upholds her honor. We hear on the other side of housings of the poor; on this side we speak of the houses of the people. Mr. Thomas closed in glowing language by referring to Holmes' poem on the Ship of State, and a closing incident in Daniel Webster when he wanted the flag at the masthead where he could see it until be passed away. The republican party wants the flag run up to the masthead on Tuesday next to show the world at large that Massachusetts has done her duty.

Right From New York.

Mr. Malhon Chance of the New York Tribune was introduced as "Colonel," and a stranger in Lowell.

In rising he corrected the chairman by saying that he was not a colonel (he ought to be,) and that a year ago he stood on the same platform, spoke to a Lowell audience and predicted a majority of 30,000 for Greenhalge, and he proved a prophet. He wanted then and there to predict 60,000 for Mr. Greenhalge.

Mr. Chance began to tell stories to illustrate his salient points and generally he got a merry laugh from the audience. He declared up and down that McKinleyism is still alive and that the object of the republican party in coming into power again was to change over the tariff. He defended the principle of protection and paid great tributes to the memory of James G. Blaine, and to Tom Reed and Bill McKinley. He criticized Wilson's speeches at English banquets and wound up with a grand panegyric to everything republican by predicting the approach of the millenium if only the g. o. p. is returned to power.

Mayor Pickman's Defence.

The surprise of the evening came when Mayor Pickman as good as declared himself out for the nomination of mayor for the third time. He quoted Edward B. Peirce of the night before, in saying that the mayor should bring his high tax rate in a glass case for exhibition. The mayor said that reference to ancient history disclosed the fact that E. B. Peirce was in the council in 1884, the year of the highest tax rate.

DON'T FOOL WITH EXPLOSIVES.

DETAILS OF THEIR MANUFACTURE EXPLAINED LAST NIGHT.

Smoke Talk of the Mathew Institute Which Was Instructive to All Who Heard It—The Affair One of Great Success.

The "smoke talk," the first in the series of members' entertainments was held last evening at the Mathew Temperance Institute hall, which was crowded with members and their friends, each member being privileged to bring a friend.

The regular meeting was first held and a number of propositions were received. A committee of twenty-five was appointed to arrange for the observance of the anniversary of the society.

Vice President Walter V. Hickey then introduced Mr. John Tobin, a teacher in the High school, who spoke for half an hour on "High Explosives." He commanded the closest attention as his remarks were couched in simple language and were very interesting to the members.

He treated on gun powder, gun cotton, dynamite and nitro glycerine and explained in detail and from personal experience the manufacture of these explosives. He explained that the safest of the high explosives is gun cotton, inasmuch as it is ground to a pulp, then washed to free it from acid. It possesses great merit for naval purposes, inasmuch as it can be kept wet all the time. When desired it may be exploded by a little dry gun cotton.

He explained that dualin is made from nitro glycerine and common sawdust. Of course there are different charges in dualin as in dynamite, ranging all the way from 4 to 95 per cent.

He explained the danger of dualin, much of which arises from the methods employed in thawing it out. In his opinion the safest way is to get something in the shape of a dinner pail. Fill the lower portion with hot water and in the upper place the explosive and allow the steam from the water to thaw out dualin. He said that he had read of an incident when a man held the dualin, over a fire. There was an explosion, the pail went to pieces, and the man was uninjured. A few days later another man tried the same thing with the result that he and two other men were killed. Explosions are very deceiving and it is difficult for any one to tell how they are going to act.

Mr. Tobin exhibited samples of two kinds of gunpowder, also gun cotton, and nitro-glycerine, and a piece of boiler plate showing the indentition caused by the explosion of gun powder. He was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his interesting talk.

The following entertainment program was offered; Piano solo, William McAloon; vocal solo, John Connors, Michael Gorman, Patrick Coppinger and Michael Kennedy; readings, Thomas Muldoon, J. B. Coughlin, Edward F. Slattery and James O'Sullivan.

Rev. Fr. McManus delivered a brief address.

During the entertainment the members smoked "T. D's" and afterwards refreshments were served.

THE SENATORIAL BATTLE.

FOSS AND FRIENDS ARE STILL PROMISING LICENSES.

To Men Who Want to Enter the Liquor Business—Brady's Energy and Devotion to Labor—The Weavers' Particulars Bill May be Repealed.

As an instance of Senator Brady's energy and devotion to the interest of his constituents the following story is told: A young man who was prominently mentioned in this city for inspector of wires called upon the Senator for a letter of recommendation to the West End railway company as he was there seeking a position. The senator agreed to give him such a letter and told him to call later. The electrician called and to his great surprise Senator Brady put into his hands a petition to the West End company signed by all the members of the senate with the exception of a few who were absent.

Another incident which occurred while Senator Brady was in New York illustrates his great devotion to his constituents. He was in New York with a legislative committee and happened to meet Supt. Crowley. He had a most cordial welcome for Mr. Crowley, invited him to dinner with the committee and showed him every mark of kindness. When the festivities were over Mr. Brady drew from his pocket a list of applicants for work on the street department and he insisted that Mr. Crowley should put the most needy of them to work.

While the weavers particulars bill was under discussion in the legislature, Senator Brady's devotion to the interests of labor was so noticeable that he was appointed to draft a bill to cover the best points in the several bills submitted. This duty was faithfully performed after getting the views of experienced operatives in different cities upon the question. The consequence was, that the bill was framed so as to include the widest protection for measures which the constitution would permit. The constitutionality of that bill is liable to be attacked in the next legislature if Senator Brady be not returned to defend it. That is a question of great importance to operatives.

***

Candidate Foss is working druggists, speak easies, and men who want to enter the liquor business next year. By some means he is convincing them that by supporting him they can best secure a license but they forget that the commission has already stated that any man promised a license by a politician in lieu of political service will be sure not to get one. The men who are thus working for Foss are doing so under a delusion. If Brady be defeated men who want licenses next year will be blamed for it and they will be punished for their treachery by a no license vote. For this reason it is best for the liquor dealers to do all in their power for Senator Brady's re-election.

The labor organizations should stand by him as he has stood by them, both in the house and the senate.

The democrats of the city should all stand by Senator Brady if they want their party to win at the city election.

It will be very encouraging to the democracy to elect their senator. It will be an augury of victory in December.

***

The democrats of Lowell are elated at the excellent prospect of rolling up a majority for Mr. Fifield. In Lawrence the conviction has grown within the last week that Mr. Fifield will be the next congressman from this district. The reason is plain. Mr. Fifield wants the present bill to get a fair trial before any other tariff legislation is given to the country. Mr. Knox wants the present bill changed just as soon as possible. Mr. Fifield wants free coal and free iron ore for New England industries as soon as these can be obtained without disturbing the business interests of the country. Mr. Knox is opposed to free coal and free iron ore on the ground that although they would benefit New England industries they would injure the mining districts. He is more anxious for those than for New England. Fifield like Mr. Stevens will stand for New England leaving other congressmen to fight for the mining interests. It is each for his constituents with the democrats; but with republicans it is each for high tariff regardless of who suffers.

Coakley and Cronan, candidates for representative in Boston are having a lively time. Coakley has Cronin on the run with challenges for joint debates on their political records. Congressman McEttrick is after McNary in a similar way; but Cronan and McNary are both pursuing a Fabian policy. McEttrick says he would cancel several rallies if he could only get McNary face to face, with him in a joint debate before a couple of thousand voters of the district.

At the earnest solicitation of his friends Hugh Maguire has entered the councilmanic fight in Ward One. He is a well known clerk, having been employed by Savage Bros. for many years. He will be a formidable candidate.

Councilmen Curtin and Riley of Ward Six are two candidates for reelection who should go back again to the council. They have been loyal to their party and to the interests of their constituents. They are sure to be renominated.

What were the republican speakers driving at when they insinuated at last night's rally that American citizens have not been protected abroad? Do they remember the number of Irish Americans who languished in British dungeons during Harrison's administration? Do they remember the efforts of a democratic administration in behalf of those same men? Has President Cleveland proved a coward or a man who has not the courage of his convictions?

MERCIER IS DEAD.

Canada's Premier Had Long Suffered From a Complication of Diseases.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Honore Mercier, ex-premier of Quebec, died yesterday. The end had been expected at any time during the preceding 24 hours, and hope of recovery had been given up weeks ago. In fact from the moment that he first fell seriously sick on Aug. 14 last it had been felt that he was on his deathbed. Mr. Mercier had been suffering from a complication of diseases for years past.

The last rites of the church were administered by Rev. Father Garceau, S. J. Mr. Mercier was unconscious most of the time. Morphine was administered at 10:30 o'clock Monday night and the patient became much agitated. It was then feared that a reaction would take place and the end might come any minute. Throughout the night the vital spark flickered, growing lower and lower, until the end came.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Mercier's death was expected at any time, the news has created great interest here and the bulletin boards containing the information were soon surrounded by crowds eager to learn the particulars of the once great French-Canadian leader's last hour.

Secured Her Child.

BRISTOL, N. H., Oct. 31.—After six years of searching all over New England by detectives, lawyers and relatives, and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, Mrs. Lucy M. Green of Worcester, Mass., who alleges that through the agents of the Children's Aid society of Massachusetts she was robbed of her two children, Paul Revere and Cora, in 1888, was taken to her son's side late Monday afternoon. Yesterday, by outwitting those in whose care he has been placed, she took Paul, and last night crossed the boundary line of Massachusetts with him. Whither she went is unknown.

Lexow Developments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The examination of Commissioner Sheehan occupied nearly the entire session of the Lexow committee yesterday. The name of Superintendent Byrnes was most often on the lips of the witness. The subject of a new police signal system was introduced, and Mr. Goff used a deadly parallel, whereby it was made to appear that the language of the advertising circular of the Municipal Signal company of Boston and that of the report made by the commissioner on the signal systems was identical.

The Reconstructed Cabinet.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The emperor and empress yesterday gave a farewell audience to ex-Chancellor von Caprivi. The appointment of Baron Marschal von Bieberstein as a Prussian minister is a valuable proof that the German policy will not be changed. It is believed that Dr. von Schelling, Prussian minister of justice, and Herr von Heyden-Cadow, Prussian minister of agriculture, will be replaced in order to strengthen the ministry.

Still Missing.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Annie M. Thompson remains unheard from. Long suspense and anxiety are breaking her mother's heart. This case in its present bearings is one of the most mysterious that has for years come under the notice of the local police. The girl dropped out of sight Oct. 2, left a pleasant home and indulgent parents, affectionate sisters and a host of friends, for what no one in the city seems to be able to tell.

A Five-Cornered Debate.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 31.—A joint political debate was held at the city hall last night. Rufus M. Dodge, Jr., represented the Republicans; W. P. Cherrington, the Democrats; James Campion, the Populists; Mrs. Martha Avery, the Socialists, and Professor Evans, the Prohibitionists.

Resisting a Cutdown.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 31.—Winders at the Columbia mill, 99 in number, on account of a cutdown from 25 to 40 per cent, left the mill yesterday on strike. Doffers in the ring spinning room of City mill No. 2 also went out, refusing to work under a cutdown of 5 per cent.

2 O'CLOCK

BIG LEAGUE BOWLING DATES.

THREE LOWELL CLUBS WILL MEET THE STRONG TEAMS.

Schedule of Fifteen Weeks Carefully Laid Out—News About Lowell Bowlers and Games Bowled.

The schedule of the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling League has been completed and approved by the league board of managers. It covers a season of 15 weeks. The opening games will be played on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 13.

There will be no games from Dec. 20 until Jan. 1. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are the bowling evenings of the week.

The six clubs comprising the first division will play three games with each other, and the eight clubs in both of the other division will play two games with each other. The neutral alley games will be played on the last five Monday evenings of the season, that is, Jan. 28, Feb. 4, Feb. 11, Feb. 18 and Feb. 25. The Feb. 25 games are the only ones scheduled for that week, and these are the last scheduled games. The play-off between the winners of three divisions for the championship will be decided later.

The Vespers and Les Miserables are in the first division and the Highlands in the second. Here are the games arranged:

First week, Nov. 13—Vesper vs. Casino; Miserables vs. B.A.A.; Highlands vs. Reviews.

Second week, Nov. 20—B.A.A. vs. Vesper; Melrose Athletic vs. Miserables; Arlington vs. Lowell Highland.

Third week, Nov. 27—Vesper vs. Melrose Athletic; Highland vs. Charlestown.

Fourth week, Dec. 3—Vesper vs. Melrose Athletic; Les Miserables vs. Salem; Jamacia vs. Lowell Highland.

Fifth week, Dec. 12—Highland vs. Allston; Salem vs. Vesper; Casino vs. Miserables.

Sixth week, Dec. 18—999th Artillery vs. Highlands; Salem vs. Vespers; Casinos vs. Les Miserables.

Seventh week, Jan. 1—Vesper vs. B. A. A.; Miserables vs. Melrose Athletics; Highlands vs. Reviews of Chelsea.

Eighth week, Jan. 8—Old Dorchester vs. Lowell Highlands; Salem vs. Les Miserables; Melrose Athletics vs. Vesper.

Ninth week—Jan. 15—Vesper vs Salem; Miserables vs Casino: Highland vs Arlington.

Tenth week—Jan. 22—Charlestown vs Lowell Highland; Les Miserables vs Vesper.

Eleventh week—Jan. 28—Les Miserables vs B. A. A.; Salem vs Vesper;(all on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Jamaica;

Twelfth week, Feb. 4.—Vesper vs Melrose Athletics; Casinos vs Les Miserables, (on neutral alleys); Allston vs Highlands.

Thirteenth week, Feb. 11—Vespers vs Casino; Les Miserables vs Salem, (on neutral alleys): Highlands vs 999th Artillery.

Fourteenth week, Feb. 18—Melrose Athletics vs Les Miserables; B. A. A. vs Vesper, (on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Old Dorchester.

Fifteenth week (all neutral alleys)—Monday, Feb. 25, Salem vs Melrose Athletic, Boston Athletic vs Casino, Vesper vs Les Miserables.

By the above schedule it will be seen that the great games of local interest will be those between the Vespers and Miserables, in the third and tenth weeks and then on neutral alleys, probably the Highland club. The schedule it will be seen cuts out some warm work for the first division teams as the Casinos, Salems and B. A. A. teams are likely to be stronger than ever before. The Miserables are settling down to work in anticipation of a hard struggle at the opening games. The schedule indicates that the games will be played on the club first mentioned, so that week after next three games will be played on Lowell alleys.

The Interstate League.

The new league, mention of which was made yesterday, promises to make things more than ordinarily lively when it gets started. When the schedule is made out more particulars can be obtained.

It is not many seasons distant before there will be a New England league. The Interstate league will be governed by Massachusetts league rules.

Bowling at the Les Miserables and Olympic alleys and at the Columbian alleys way up on Gorham street is of such volume that it indicates the sport will be followed this year better than ever before.

The team tournament of the Vesper club opening next week, will be in divisions, the winners in each division to play off for the championship of the fall tournament. The schedule will be shorter and the interest kept up better.

The makeup of the Vesper team is yet undecided, for Goulding and Thorpe do not care to bowl.

Julian Hood is expected to be in trim and the boys are banking on him as right hand man to "Old Reliable" Harry Corwin, Fred Grover and Dr. Harris, will probably be on it with the Whittier brothers and Will Gerrish to draw on. There are several strong bowlers coming to the front.

If new bowling alleys are put in the basement of Mechanics hall for club men it will help the sport greatly. There will also be pool and billiard tables.

The new alleys at the Palmer street engine house are pronounced by Veteran Jim McLaughlin, the equal of any in the city.

Games Last Night.

At the Highland club the Miserables club fell before the prowess of the Highland boys, as follows:

Highlands—Cheney 472, Church 508, Leighton 430, Dickerman 495, Shaw 529, total 2431.

Miserables—Swift 491, Purcell 443, Donohue 435, Seede 520, Farrell 494, total 2383.

On the Olympic alleys the Putnam Guards beat the Centrals by the following score:

Putnam Guards—Fairweather 456, Beauregard 526, C. Dobson 527, Carr 392, Barnes 410; total 2311.

DEFENDING LORDS

Upper Chamber Claimed to Be a Necessity.

He Answers the Arraignment of Rosebery.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 31.—A conference of the Scottish Conservatory associations was held here last night. Ex-Primo Minister Salisbury made a speech in which he scathingly criticised a recent speech of Prime Minister Rosebery. He described the agitation against the house of lords as a a herring drawn across the path of home rule.

LORD SALISBURY.

He did not believe, he declared, that Lord Rosebery was in earnest in his proposed vague resolutions regarding the house of lords. It would be harmless, and if submitted to the country it would be in no wise like the foreign referendum to which Lord Rosebery had likened it. He, himself, would not speak against a referendum; in fact, he thought it decidedly advantageous in the form in which it existed in America for good government and the stability of the country.

Doubtless Archbishop Walsh's well-drilled battalions would pass Lord Rosebery's resolutions against the voice of the country. "Do you," he asked, "imagine that the resolution would possess any moral authority whatever, or that any sane human being could imagine that England or Scotland would abase themselves so far as to put their necks under the heels of south and west Ireland?

Will Not Be Recognized by the Courts.

"It is a ludicrous proposal. They may pass all the resolutions they like, but a bill embodying such proposals will never be accepted by the house of lords, and, therefore, will never be recognized by the courts of law. No such change in the constitution is possible without a considerable majority of the people being in its favor."

Lord Salisbury argued that on several occasions, in his experience, the house of lords supported Liberal measures against Conservative opposition. If the house of lords had become virtually a conservative body, it was because Mr. Gladstone's ill-advised Irish policy had driven them in that direction.

If the Irish question was once moved out of the way, the house of lords would gradually, though perhaps slowly, settle back into the old position in which the parties were evenly balanced. It was well for the safety of institutions, which, once overthrown, could never be replaced, that the balance of the party in the house of lords should be on the side of conservatism.

The ex-prime minister added: "If the question of handing the government of the country over entirely to a single chamber should come before the country, which I do not believe it will do, we would have to confront the greatest danger that the community has had to face in many centuries. Remember that the domination of a single chamber has not been adopted by any considerable country on the surface of the earth.

House of Lords a Safeguard.

"Can it be supposed possible to govern India by an independent house of commons, where the ideas of faddists might become law without a chance of an appeal to a higher authority? One other point, but for the house of lords you would now have 60 votes in the house of commons saleable to the highest bidding party, making you and your interests slaves of Archbishop Walsh and his friends."

Without saying anything about the maintenance of the house of lords in its present form, he appealed to all who believed in the religious institutions of the country, in freedom, in the security of contract and the sanctity of property to combine to support the second chamber, which he declared was necessary to control the decisions of the elective chamber.

Replying to the vote of thanks extended to him by the meeting, the ex-prime minister took occasion to say: "All of Lord Rosebery's talk about my power in the house of lords is nonsense, and an attempt to make capital against the house of lords by using my name as imagining that any member of that house has any motive whatever in paying more deference to my opinion than might be due to the argument I used, is an audacious, impudent fabrication, unworthy of the man who made it."

All sizes disappear and lines become broken, we get the scattered goods together, make one lot of them, and reduce prices to a uniform figure to close out.

In our large stock this has to be done every week.

Today, for example, we've taken half a dozen lots of Men's Suits from Rogers, Peet & Co., marked them $15, including at this price suits that have sold for $18, $20, and $22.

There are all sizes, from 32 to 44 inches breast measure, but not all of one kind.

DEATH'S BRIDE

Exceedingly Sad Event in a Lawrence Family.

BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTER PASSED AWAY AFTER CEREMONY.

Cause Was Ascribed to Heart Disease.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

LAWRENCE, Oct 30.—Death came to a wedding here last night, when a bride of only a few hours passed away at the residence of Charles J. Bagge on Butler street.

Mr. Bagge's daughter, Agnes, aged 21 years, was married at 7 o'clock to Chas. J. Johnson of Boston. At midnight she died.

A house full of guests had been invited to the wedding festivities, and it had been planned that the ceremony should take place beneath a floral arch in the parlors. But the bride had been ailing for a couple of weeks; she was pale, nervous, excited, and as the hour for the nuptials approached she grew worse. Finally, as she appeared too weak to come down stairs, the ceremony was performed in her own room.

The wedding festivities were curtailed on account of the bride's sickness, and the guests left for their homes before 9 o'clock.

Before the guests had all left the house the newly made bride was put to bed by her mother, and the husband was left to guard her slumbers.

Shortly before 11 o'clock she began to breathe painfully, and her mother was called. Dr. Chase, the family physician, was then sent for, but she sunk rapidly, and died at a few minutes after 12 o'clock in the arms of her mother.

Dr. Chase ascribed the cause of death to heart disease. He believed that the excitement of the wedding augmented the trouble.

Today in the stricken home the wedding decorations adorn the parlors and the wedding gifts are yet displayed.

THE LABOR organizations of this city may well exclaim: Save us from our friends—the populists.

IS IT possible that the Mail believes half what it says about the tariff? How can any protectionist reason out that free coal would injure New England industries?

THE RALLY of Monday evening was an enthusiastic one. The wit of the chairman, the patriotic arraignment of the A. P. A. by Senator Fitzgerald and the logic of Josiah Quincy were the features of the occasion.

FOSS'S LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

The Citizen objects to the SUN's reference to Mr. Foss's legislative record and especially to the charge of being absent at about half the roll calls. In the index of the journal are given over one hundred roll calls but in that list it appears is included the cases on which roll calls were demanded and refused. Those in which the yeas, nays and pairs are given have been examined and the dates set down in two columns, one marked Absent and the other Present. It will be at once apparent that on the same day there were several roll calls at some of which Mr. Foss was absent while he was present at others on that day. The following list we can vouch to be correct:

Resigned June 12.

It will be noticed that towards the last part of the session Mr. Foss attended more regularly than during the preceding months. The only reason that can be assigned for this is that certain corporations petitioned for increased privileges and he probably intended to vote for them. Another motive was that he wanted to get acquainted in order that he might be legislated into a license commissionership. He was sure to be present when his vote was needed on the telephone bill in favor of increasing the capital stock as on June 8. In fact a close examination of Mr. Foss' record reveals the fact that although absent at a majority of the roll calls, he managed to be present whenever any popular measure was under consideration that he might vote against it.

NO-LICENSE THREATENED.

There are rumors of opposition to certain democratic candidates by certain liquor dealers and there is positive proof that certain men working in the interests of Mr. Foss are doing so because they have been promised liquor licenses next year. They may have been promised licenses by men who are unable to deliver the goods and their names will be sent to the license commission in order that this custom of making promises that can never be fulfilled in lieu of political service will be stamped out.

Should Mr. Brady be defeated there will be a concerted movement for no-license and it will probably be carried. This is one way in which treachery can be punished. Personal grievances should not be allowed to militate against a party candidate. Those who work against the party for personal reasons will be punished by the party.

It is time that some of those who profess to be democrats and support republican candidates were called to account.

There is one man running a speak-easy this year under protection of the law and although a democrat last year he is this year working for Foss, probably because he finds that the easiest way to evade punishment for violating the law. Those who mean to enter the liquor business next year and those who want a license vote to be carried should endeavor to elect Hon. Peter J. Brady. In doing that they will be advancing their own interests, because if he be defeated liquor dealers will be blamed and a very slight agitation will result in carrying the no-license vote.

WE WOULD respectfully ask the Lowell Citizen:

Have Mr. Knox's fellow citizens of Lawrence ever thought enough of him to call him to public office?

Has Mr. Knox's name ever been suggested in the public affairs of Lawrence as a citizen whose influence would be for the good of the city?

HON. GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS is inquiring how much the silence of the republican party in regard to the A. P. A. has cost. The compact has certainly been well kept by the G. O. P.

THEY ALL WENT.

A Tale of Two Dollars and How It Was Spent.

The Templetons had decided to go to the theater. They had set aside $2 for the tickets, and Mr. Templeton thought if he economized a bit on cigars they might go and get some luncheon after the show too.

When Mr. Templeton came home that night, he was met at the door by his wife, who said, "Well, Fred, I've decided that we won't go to the theater tonight."

"Won't go?" said Fred. "Why not, I'd like to know?"

Mrs. Templeton's face took on a serious look. "Mrs. Byrnes was in to see me this afternoon," she replied, "and she told me about that unfortunate White family that lives on the next block. She said that he had not had a bit of work for six months; that they had pawned everything they had that the brokers would take and were now on the verge of starvation. I used to know her when she went to school. I thought we might forego the pleasure of the visit to the theater, and I sent Johnny around with the $2 to the Whites. If it will do them any good, I knew you'd not begrudge, and besides"—here she bit her lip savagely and jabbed her handkerchief into one of her eyes—"I didn't care very much about going anyway, so you needn't feel bad."

"By Jove, you are a noble little woman!" said Templeton, kissing her fondly. "I guess you're right about the money doing the Whites a lot of good, but you needn't be disappointed for all that. A fellow I know gave me a couple of lithograph tickets, and we're going anyway. I was going to give you that $2 for your own."

They were very happy at the supper table, and about a quarter after 7 started for the theater. The lithograph tickets called for seats pretty well toward the rear of the house. The Templetons got there as the orchestra began to play. Just as the footlights were turned up a seedy looking man and a faded woman took the two vacant seats just in front of them. Mrs. Templeton nudged her husband and said, "If that isn't Laura Smith, who married that White fellow, I'm badly fooled."

Mr. Templeton peered around and made up his mind that his wife was right. They didn't enjoy the first act much. After the curtain dropped the woman turned around and recognized Mrs. Templeton. "Why, how de do?" she said gushingly. "I haven't seen you in an age."

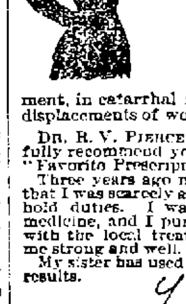

"I'm pretty well," responded Mrs. Templeton stiffly.

"Kind of surprised to see us here, ain't you?"

Mrs. Templeton was furious by this time. "Yes," she said, "I must say that I am."

"Well, I'll tell you," the woman said. "I don't suppose I've got any business here, but some softy sent around $2 to the house this afternoon, and me and Will was just achin to see the show, so we came."

Just here the usher tapped Mr. Templeton on the shoulder and told him that if he did not stop laughing so loudly he would have to go outside.—Buffalo Express.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women.

West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results.

HUNTING RUSSIAN WOLVES.

An Exciting Sport, but One That Is Apt to Be Dangerous.

Wolf hunting is probably the most dangerous sport there is. With a servant and a couple of fast horses attached to a sleigh I have gone out and baited the ground for the brutes on numerous occasions. A fat hog tied to a tree never failed to collect a pack. The trouble was that it drew too many. The wolves would gather to the number of 200 or 300 and devour the pig. Then we would dash upon the scene, and the fun would commence. They are as fleet as a deer. To say that they are as fleet as wolves would be more like it. They can outrun the horses every time, and if they are not picked off as fast as they come up you might as well give up the fight and permit yourself to be devoured.

Imagine yourself making a running fight with a band of 300 hungry, maddened wolves and with the knowledge that if one of the fleet little brutes reaches your horses you are a dead man, and you can possibly imagine what a nervy sport it is. It requires a cool head and a good eye. If you miss your mark, you're gone. Your only chance of safety is in keeping your horses up. It is generally a long fight. You look back and see the carcasses of the animals dotting the snow for a mile or two in your wake, and still they pursue you in great numbers. Slowly the pack thins out. Many have dropped bleeding to the ground. Others stop to devour the carcasses. The more that fall the more timid the rest become. When you finally outdistance the pack, you have been through the most trying ordeal that the most ardent sportsman could wish.

I consider wolf hunting the most dangerous sport there is. Tiger hunting in India is tame beside it. If you go into the jungles of India to shoot a tiger, you are accompanied by a long retinue. You shoot your prey from the howdah of an elephant. If you miss your victim, there are 20 bullets ready for him before he springs. A person might as well go tiger hunting in a menagerie. The only unsatisfactory part of the sport which wolves afford is that after you are through you haven't anything to show for your efforts. But it is great sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Fatalism In the East.

A correspondent at Cairo of the Chicago Inter Ocean gives a graphic account of the fatalism of the Egyptian people, and also of the excellent work which American missionaries are doing in breaking it up. Here are some of the Arabic proverbs which are the common property of the Mussulman and Coptic populations, for the native or Christian fellahin of Egypt, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, have forgotten their own language, using it only as a sort of mummery in their religious services, and speak only the language of their conquerors:

"God is good. The dirt comes; it must stay."

"Flies are sent. Why brush them off?"

"What is the use?"

"What is is right."

"It will be all the same in 100 years."

"If you are poor and filthy in this life, you may be rich and bathe in never ceasing fountains in the next world, if God wills it."

This stupid fatalism, joined with Turkish tyranny and crushing taxation, has resulted in a terrible moral paralysis among the people of this fertile and sunny land.

A Smuggler's Device.

Several years ago I was an inspector of customs, and during my term of office I ran across some rather unique devices arranged for the purpose of getting contraband goods into this country duty free. One day I apprehended a woman who had just arrived on a steamer from Europe, suspecting that she had some smuggled tobacco in her possession. Upon examining her dress 17 pounds of tobacco were found concealed under it, but the most remarkable of the expedients which she had resorted to for the purpose of deceiving the custom house officers was that of giving to the contraband leaf the resemblance of a loaf of bread. A quantity of cut tobacco had been placed into a tin, over which a thin layer of dough was spread, and this being baked had the appearance of a veritable and edible loaf. The quantity of tobacco which the woman had contrived to secrete in this and other modes amounted to over 70 pounds.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Multiplicity of Bicycle Riders.

The extension of the bicycle in popularity—it is estimated that about 750,000 machines will be in use in the United States and Canada next year—does not please some of the former wheelmen. Said one of them:

"Yes, I own a wheel, and I used to get some pleasure in riding it two or three years ago. I could get out on the country roads and be fairly sure to be alone, but now the fellows are as thick everywhere ten miles from town as they are in the parks. There is no fun for me any more in wheeling, since everybody owns a bicycle."—New York Sun.

One Homemade Article.

A worthy old Scot and his wife purchased some goods in a shop in P—— the other day. As they were turning to leave the old gentleman addressed the assistant thus: "Do ye come frae Germany?" "Na, na," replied he; "I was born in P——, and all my folks before me." "Weel," replied the old one as he edged out of the door, "ye may be proud o' yoursel', ma laddie, for as faur as I can see ye're the only hamemade article in the whole shop."—Optician.

Nothing Venture, Nothing Gain.

A small boy who stood in front of a place of amusement the other day evidently wanted to get inside. Perhaps he thought that the way to be successful was to make success. Perhaps he thought that a thing worth having was worth trying to get. Or he may have thought he saw an opportunity to "try his luck," for the ticket taker was reading a newspaper, his head concealed behind the open sheet. The boy crept up slowly, making no noise. He had almost passed the man when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder.

"Where's your ticket?" demanded the man.

"Why, mister," said the boy, "I thought you was blind." And he wriggled away and left the place much more rapidly than he had entered it.—New York Tribune.

Trespassing In Balmoral.

A party of Americans tramping recently over the hills in the grounds of Balmoral came suddenly upon an elderly lady sitting alone before a table and writing rapidly. "Tell me, madam," said one, politely lifting his hat, "are we far from Balmoral?" "You are on the grounds now," said the lady, "and I greatly fear you are trespassing." They respectfully announced their intention of getting into the public road at the first opportunity. Thereupon the lady wrote a line, and, handing it to them, said, smiling, "Here is a safe conduct if you meet a bailiff." "Victoria, R," was all the slip contained.—Montreal Star.

SUNBEAMS.

A Desire to Please.

Brother Browse, the Mormon elder, had a long and lissom beard,
Which the first wife of his bosom said ought never to be sheared.

Hence, of course, his second consort used to flout at it and scoff,
And her daily tearful prayer was that he'd cut the horrors off.

So they compromised the matter in the manner shown above
And lived happy ever after in a trinity of love.
—Life.

Lucretia O. Putnam, of Forristdale, Mass., was utterly miserable and sick.

Her spine, liver, heart, and brain were all diseased.

The weight of her body caused terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress. This woman's trouble was in her womb, affecting her whole constitution.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well.

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing-down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure for the misery of our sex."

Women Have Full Suffrage—In Great Britain Women Vote For Elective Officers Except Members of Parliament.

In Great Britain women vote for all elective officers except members of parliament.

In France the women teachers elect women members on all boards of education.

In Sweden women vote for all elective officers except representatives; also indirectly for members of the house of lords.

In Norway they have school suffrage.

In Ireland the women vote for the harbor boards, poor law guardians, and in Belfast for municipal officers.

In Russia women householders vote for all elective officers and on all local matters.

In Finland they vote for all elective officers.

In Austria-Hungary they vote, by proxy, for all elective officers.

In Croatia and Dalmatia they have the privilege of doing so in local elections in person.

In Italy widows vote for members of parliament.

In the Madras presidency and the Bombay presidency, Hindustan, the women exercise the right of suffrage in all municipalities.

In all the countries of Russian Asia they can do so wherever a Russian colony settles. The Russians are colonizing the whole of their vast Asian possessions and carrying with them everywhere the "mir," or self governing village, wherein women who are heads of households are permitted to vote.

Women have municipal suffrage in Cape Colony, which rules a million square miles.

Municipal woman suffrage rules in New Zealand.

Iceland, in the north Atlantic, the isle of Man (between England and Ireland), and Pitcairn island, in the south Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

In the Dominion of Canada women have municipal suffrage in every province, and also in the Northwest Territories. In Ontario they vote for all elective officers, except in the election of members of the legislature and parliament.

In the United States 25 states and territories have given women some form of suffrage, according to Political Progress, the source of these statements.

Sleepy Grass.

A curious grass is reported as having been discovered in Lincoln county, N. M., and it is said that it is not known to exist anywhere else. According to the Iowa Homestead, its identity has not been botanically determined, and it is only known by its popular name—sleepy grass. The property from which the name is derived is that of putting to sleep animals that graze on it. It grows in among other grasses and is eaten readily by all kinds of stock. Horses that eat it go to sleep on their feet, while cattle and sheep usually lie down. Its effects continue for an hour or more and then pass off, leaving no injurious effects. Teams turned out to graze by travelers stopping for the noon hour often fall asleep while being hitched up, and the whip is necessary to arouse them. They will then start off at a good pace, but this gradually slackens, their heads droop, and presently they come to a full stop, sound asleep. If the animals are allowed to sleep until they awaken naturally, they seem much refreshed, but if urged forward during the period of drowsiness they appear very weary, even after the desire to sleep passes off. It is not known what the sleep inducing principle is. It may be something resembling the poppy, or it may be something entirely different.

Athletic Sports of American Women.

Among athletic sports which are pursued by American women may be enumerated bowling, skating, snowshoeing and tobogganing, for which many parts of the country are in winter eminently adapted. They are also especially addicted to rowing and canoeing. The women's colleges, which are so numerous, and many of the large private boarding schools keep boats and encourage both rowing and swimming.

It is stated that there are no less than 30,000 women in the United States who ride bicycles. It is not the sport of the richest women, who can afford to keep horses, but is exceedingly popular with those less favored by fortune. Cycling is the principal form of outing with a large class of both men and women. Racing has even taken place among the female cyclists, but only in a few instances, and is generally discountenanced by the women themselves. Golf has not yet become a favorite amusement in America, but it is said to be taken up as a fad among the ultra fashionables. At the few links that are in existence women go in for the game largely and use the links with the men, but golf has not yet superseded tennis.

A Change of Voice.

A foreign scientific journal publishes the results of some recent experiments upon the vocal chords which are likely to prove interesting to aspirants to lyric honors. In the case of a baritone, who was not content to be a baritone, but sighed for the higher emoluments of a tenor, a course of inhalations, beginning with benzoin, going on to caffeine and chloroform and concluding with curacoa, proved perfectly successful. The transformation was pronounced to be complete.

The Busy Bee a Fraud.

The iconoclastic scientist claims to have shattered another tradition. An observer of the honeybee's habits says that this creature, long praised for its industry and diligence, is a fraud in these respects: that, as a matter of fact, "the little busy bee" works but about three hours a day and is a most thorough going loafer for the rest of the time. Must we give up forever the happy phrase, "the busy bee?" We trust not.

Foreign Born Population.

Taking the country as a whole, the white native population born of foreign parentage and the foreign born white amount to 32 per cent, but in Massachusetts it is 56 per cent, in Rhode Island 5–, in New York city 82, in Milwaukee 8– and in Wisconsin over 90.—Professor Mayo Smith.

Relics of Thoreau.

In the Thoreau room of the Concord Antiquarian society is the cane strung bedstead which Thoreau made with his own hands and used in his Walden hut. Here, too, are shown the Thoreau family Bible, dated at Philadelphia in 1768, and the pen with which Thoreau last wrote.

In Self Defense.

She was the wife of a cavalry officer, and she was going to have some fun with the lieutenant of infantry.

"I suppose," she said, "you have often been chased by the Indians on the plains?"

"Never," he responded politely.

"No?" keenly sarcastic.

"No. You see, they are so busy chasing the cavalry they don't have any time for us."—Detroit Free Press.

ABOUT NEW YORK.

Some Buffalo Women Would and Would Not Like to Live There.

There were three of them, and they were going down town together. They sat up at one end of the car and giggled and talked all the way.

"Jack," said the one in the middle, "had a perfectly lovely offer to go to New York and live, but I wouldn't go. I wouldn't live in New York."

"I'd rather live there than anywhere else," said the one nearest the door.

"I wouldn't live there at all," said the third one. Then a conversation like this ensued:

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Why wouldn't you? I'd just love to live there."

"Oh, you couldn't hire me to live there!"

"No; I wouldn't live there."

"I'd rather live in New York than anywhere else."

"Well, I just wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I."

"I think it's a lovely place to live."

"I don't. I wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I. I wouldn't like to live there at all."

"Why, Jack, my husband, had an offer there, and it was a lovely one. I wouldn't let him go."

"Well, if my husband had any kind of an offer of a position down there, I'd make him go."

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Couldn't hire me to."

"I'd rather live there than any place in the world."

This sort of thing kept up for two blocks more. Then the fat man who sat in the corner got up, yelled wildly at the conductor and dived for the rear platform.

"What's the matter?" asked the conductor. "Where are you going?"

"Going?" growled the fat man as he jumped off. "I'm going down to the home for feeble minded female children and get my faith in the intelligence of American women restored."—Buffalo Express.

A Matter of Economy.

The lady from the tamarack swamps was laying in some parlor furniture, and the clerk in the store was offering his valuable advice.

"No," she said in rebuttal; "I don't want no chairs."

"No chairs, madam?" he exclaimed. "I never heard of a parlor without chairs."

"Well, you come to my house some time, and you will see one," she retorted.

"What will you have instead?"

"Sofies, young man, sofies, these little two seat ones, and taytaytays and things like that."

The clerk's equanimity was receiving a powerful jostle.

"What in the mischief do you want to do that for?" he asked in a helpless sort of way.

"You ain't a married man, are you?" she snapped. "You never raised a family of girls, did you?"

"Hardly."

"Well, you don't know anything about it. I've raised five. Three's married, and the other two's got beaux. I've always had chairs, and every time when the courtin was over with them girls and they got married I had to get new ones. Three sets of parlor chairs in three winters is goin it most too strong. They git broke down somehow, and now I'm goin to put a stop to it by havin sofies, and you needn't be tryin to change my mind. I know what I want, and if you haven't got sofies say so, and I'll run go where they do have them."

The argument was convincing, and the clerk fitted the thrifty lady out with a half dozen warranted to carry two with safety and economy.—Detroit Free Press.

Barrowcliff's Forgetfulness.

"I haven't seen Barrowcliff for quite a long time, Kilduff. What has become of him?"

"Hadn't you heard the news?"

"What news? Is he married?"

"No, not married. I mean the immense fortune that he went to England to claim."

"Hadn't heard a word about it. Tell me the whole story."

"About a year ago Barrowcliff heard that a very large fortune was awaiting him in England. I think the figure named was somewhere about £200,000, and there were only three heirs to the estate. It was to be divided equally. So Barrowcliff went over after his money."

"What a lucky dog he is! I wonder when you and I will have a windfall like that."

"Ah, when indeed? Well, as I was saying, Barrowcliff went to England after his money. About a year ago it was, and he hasn't come back yet."

"I suppose he is so pleased with the country and his possessions that he is staying there. Well, I don't know that I can blame him very much. I think if I were to drop into a nice fortune like that I'd stay abroad for a year or two anyhow."

"No, that isn't it. Barrowcliff is not staying because he is so fond of the country."

"No?"

"No, he would much prefer to be back in the United States."

"Then why doesn't he come? What is there to prevent him?"

"It seems that when he left New York he failed to provide himself with a return ticket."—Truth.

In a Texas School.

Teacher—Can you take five from three, Johnny?

Johnny—Yes. I borrow two, and then I can do it.

"But if your pa gives you 3 cents and tells you to go to the candy store to buy 5 cents' worth of candy, how would you do then?"

"I'd keep the 3 cents and tell the man to charge the 5 cents' worth of candy to pa."—Texas Siftings.

Making Sure.

"You must take exercise," said the physician.

"I know it," replied the patient. "It goes against my disposition terribly, but I have a scheme that will fix it all right."

"What is that?"

"I'll go to the races two or three times a week and not buy a round trip ticket."—Washington Star.

His Boast.

Laura—While Jack was calling the other evening he made the statement that he would kiss me or die in the attempt.

Belle—Yes (after a pause)? Well, did he kiss you?

Laura—You haven't read any account of Jack's death in the papers, have you?—New York World.

DEAFNESS SOMETIMES USEFUL.

In This Instance, However, It Cost an Extra Quarter.

"There is an advantage in being deaf if you only know the exact time not to hear," said L. T. Salignac of Philadelphia, "but the difficulty is to discriminate just when that time is. I have a friend who made, or rather tried to make, capital out of the misfortune nature had sent upon him, but he was continually making mistakes. Being a politician, as any of that kin knows, he met with plenty of instances where it was advisable not to hear. My friend ran for governor of Maryland once, and, while he was defeated, he was extremely popular and well known all over the state, from the urchin in the gutter to the millionaire in his palace.

"I went fishing down in the Delaware bay one summer with him, and the boat made a landing at one of the towns on our way down. He was no sooner seen than a chorus greeted him from the wharf with 'Hello, governor!' He acknowledged the compliment with a graceful tip of the hat. As we walked down the gangplank one fellow, a little more obtrusive than the rest, pushed his way up to the side of my friend and bellowed out, knowing the failing in his hearing, 'Say, guv'ner, old man, can't you loan me a quarter?'

"Of course this was one of the occasions upon which my friend's auricular organs failed to perform their duty. He walked on as if he had not heard a word, while to my invitation to take a drink, given in a moderate tone of voice, he gave a ready assent. As we walked on a little farther the man persisted. This time he came up to my friend and shouted at the top of his voice in his ear, 'Say, guv'ner, can't you loan me 50 cents?' My friend turned, and in a quiet, dignified manner said, without a smile, as he tossed him the half dollar: 'Confound your impertinence! I should have heard you the first time.' "—Pittsburg Dispatch.

AN OUTLAW FORTRESS.

The Cliff From Which the Sizemore Band Shot Down Travelers.

On the left bank of the Holston river, in Hawkins county, Tenn., is a cliff which has some local fame. It is of solid stone, perpendicular from the base up and is something over a hundred feet high. From the top of it the country is visible for miles and miles, affording a grand view of the hill, mountain and stream. A few feet back from the edge are still plainly to be seen the earthworks forming the rendezvous of the celebrated Sizemore and his gang of desperadoes.

From the top of the cliff they commanded a full view of a much used public road, together with two fords above and below, and a great number of hapless soldiers as well as private citizens who had lucklessly incurred their anger fell victims to their unerring rifle bullets as they attempted to pass all unconscious of danger.

Very near this cliff is a little cave at least a mile deep, on the sides of which are written the names of once prominent people who have long since passed away, the dates running back perhaps a hundred years. In one of the caverns is a perfect little table, formed of a flat rock. During the war this cave was used by some soldiers as a place for making saltpeter, the hoppers being still in a state of preservation, the earth looking as if it had been dug but recently.—New York Commercial.

RASH RAJAH.

Twenty-three Seidlitz Powders Made Him Seek His Doctor's Life.

An English doctor attached to the court of a rajah made himself most indispensable to his highness. He had fortunately also made a friend of his prime minister.

On one occasion his highness, being slightly indisposed, had taken, by the doctor's advice, a seidlitz powder, with which he expressed himself delighted. Its tendency to "boil and fizz, ready to blow your nose off," seemed to him to "scatter coolness," and he seemed so much better after taking it that the doctor felt himself justified in joining a hunting party.

Presently a horseman from the palace, in the confidential employment of the grand vizier, galloped up to him.

"My master bids me tell you," he said, "that his highness has broken open your medicine chest and taken first all the white powders and then all the blue."

"Gracious goodness," cried the doctor, "there were 23 of each of them!"

"My master adds," continued the messenger, dropping his voice, "that you had better make for the frontier without one moment's delay."

The doctor put spurs to his horse and never drew rein till he was "out of the jurisdiction of the court."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Man Without a Show.

He said if he'd had a fair opportunity he'd have made a sensation in any community, and the great name of John Alexander McCrary would have echoed o'er mountain and ocean and prairie with all the reverberant thunder of fame.

If he'd not been cornered by rough circumstances, he'd have shown us a man like we see in romances, for fate had sent him a superior shipment of spiritual, moral and mental equipment, sufficient to gain the whole planet's acclaim.

If he hadn't been rubbed out by fate's merciless friction, he'd have shown us a man like we read of in fiction—a man of unquestioned superb intuition, an Amalek giant of great erudition, the best product ground out by the gods' roaring mills.

For his head was a great intellectual hummock, but it took all his time to attend to his stomach. Fate might sing of him in her mightiest carol, if he didn't have to pay for his wearing apparel and work all the time just to pay up his bills.

But, though he made all of these mighty pretenses, he was hampered, you see, by his laundry expenses. In the grainfields of fame he had been a strong reaper were it not for his low, sordid boarding house keeper, who for very coarse viands demanded large pay.

His clothier felt not his great genius resplendent, his tailor felt not his wide talents transcendent, his furnisher made no alarming deduction for his large and phenomenal cranial construction, and, like plain men, he paid for his three meals a day.—New York World.

The Last Long Sleep.

Familiarity with death is apt to alter one's earlier conceptions of it. Two ideas are very generally accepted which experience shows to be false. One is that the dying usually fear death, and the other that the act of dying is accompanied by pain. It is well known to all physicians that when death is near its terrors do not seem to be felt by the patient. Unless the imagination is stimulated by the frightful portrayal of the supposed "pangs of death" or of the sufferings which some believe the soul must endure after dissolution it is rare indeed that the last days or hours of life are passed in dread.

Most sick persons are very, very tired. Sleep—long, quiet sleep—is what they want. I have seen many people die. I have never seen one who seemed to fear death, except when it was or seemed to be rather far away. Even those who are constantly haunted, while strong and well, with a dread of the end of life forget their fear when that end is at hand.—Scribner's Magazine.

SEVEN PERSONS WERE DEAD

AFTER THE FIREMEN PUT OUT A TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE.

Property Loss Was Only $2000 But There Were Eight Victims Besides.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Seven people were smothered by smoke in a tenement at 216 West 32d street early this morning. The eighth victim was a woman who jumped from the third story window and was killed.

The fire broke out in the cellar and jumped to the third story, cutting off escape of many people.

The tenement house was filled with roomers. The entries and stair cases were narrow and tortuous and the fire escape was the only avenue open.

WANT HIS RELEASE.

More Particulars About the Theft of Irons From a Store.

Several days ago Philip Ouillette, a lad of 18 years, was sent to the reformatory for the larceny of two flat irons from the Bon Marche. An effort will be made to secure the release of Ouillette, and the facts in the case as told by his friends are that Ouillette took his father's wagon to take a trunk of a Mr. Durand to the depot. Durand wanted a ride to the depot also and got on to the seat. While driving up Cabot street Durand fell from the seat and was run over.

The boy got scared and jumped from the wagon and ran to the depot, boarded a train and skipped to Montreal. He remained there one week and then returned to this city. During the week he said he had nothing to eat, and upon arriving in this city, he was hungry and tired. He was afraid to go home and so stole the flat irons, expecting to sell them and buy food.

All this money has been paid.

Frank Ross, as part of the settlement, has agreed to remit at once $50,000, to be employed in benevolent purposes in Carluke, Scotland, and also to devote $30,000 to the establishment and maintenance of a home for old men and boys of Protestants of all denominations. The last amount takes the place of a corresponding sum which in the original proposal was to go to the Finlay asylum and the Church of England male orphan asylum of Quebec.

HILL'S FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT

WHILE THE OPPPOSITION CLAIMS VICTORY IN ADVANCE.

The Betting Favors Morton—Seventies Realize the Strength of Tammany Hall.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The declaration of William R. Grace that the state Democracy organization is supporting David B. Hill, and is not responsible for any Wheeler pasters, is received with incredulity by many who still insist that secretly, if not openly, that faction is in favor of Hill's defeat.

The adherents of the latter candidate express much gratification at the numbers and character of the Cooper Union meeting Monday night and are confident that the Democratic reform ticket will make a good showing on election day. Many anti-Hill Democrats will, it is generally believed, vote straight for Morton, taking the ground, as one of them remarked yesterday, that a vote for Wheeler will only be half a vote against Hill, and that the Wheeler votes are depended upon to aid Morton any way.

The Hill men are as confident as ever, referring with special satisfaction to the personal fight their candidate is making. Most of them, however, do not seek to conceal their disappointment or anger that their candidate has not received open and active encouragement from the national administration.

Republicans Confident.

The Republicans abate none of their claims, and insist with the general Republican tendency this anti-year and the Democratic defection from Hill, the latter will be "snowed under."

There has been little betting so far in the campaign, but the reports of wagers at the Stock Exchange and elsewhere show odds on Morton, not unfrequently of two to one. Smaller odds are given on Strong against Grant.

The perfection of the Tammany organization throughout the city is making the supporters of the committee of 70 rather cautious at risking their money, however much they anticipate a great Tammany uprising.

The Hill Democrats are pleased by the announcement that Speaker Crisp has cancelled engagements in order to speak in this city or Brooklyn.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31.—For a few weeks past there has been an epidemic flourishing at Wesleyan, and is at present assuming serious proportions. NOW IT IS SPAIN.

Colonial Questions Have Led to the Resignation of the Cabinet.

MADRID, Oct. 31.—As a result of the cabinet council held yesterday the ministers have tendered their resignations. Prime Minister Sagasta has gone to inform the queen regent of the action of the cabinet. It is believed that the crisis will be found to be difficult of solution.

Although the causes that have led to the resignation of the Spanish ministry cannot at present be positively stated, it is pretty safe to assume that the crisis was partly precipitated by colonial questions. The government recently arranged with the Bank of Spain for an advance of 10,000,000 pesetas in Spanish silver dollars to replace the Mexican dollars in the Porto Rico currency.

This project was strenuously opposed by Senor Maura, the colonial minister, but his colleagues persisted in carrying out the arrangement, and Senor Maura resigned. This, however, was but one of the serious differences in the cabinet on the government's colonial policy.

AMERICA AND SCOTLAND.

Trade Between Them Has Boomed Since the Passage of the Wilson Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — The United States consul general at Glasgow, in a special report to the department of state, says:

"Large orders are being received by merchants here since the passage of the new United States tariff bill, and many of them have expressed to me the opinion that the coming year will witness an unprecedented trade between Glasgow and the United States, both as to exports and imports. Every indication points that way. The enactment and operation of the law have given a new impetus to trade between Glasgow and the United States, the months of August and September showing a very perceptible increase in the number of invoices and the value of exportations as compared with the preceding months. The value of exportations for the quarter ending June 30, 1894, was $103,674; for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1894, it was $594,543."

Holman, a widow, now at a private hospital in Salem, wasting away with consumption and unable to leave her bed. She says Dunbar gave notes for borrowed money, but failed to make them good.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The habeas corpus proceedings begun in August by Mrs. Byers against Messrs. Tallman, Davis, Shields and Kimberly, to recover her husband, the Pittsburg millionaire, have been dismissed on motion of her attorney, who says that suit will be brought in Pittsburg for about $250,000 against Mrs. Byers' brother-in-law, A. M. Byers. Action for damages, he said, will also be brought against Dr. Tallman, the physician who, Mrs. Byers claimed, aided in keeping her husband from her.

Reputation Was Good.

BRADFORD, N. H., Oct. 31.—The people of this quiet town are greatly excited over the disappearance of Winfred B. Cilley, postmaster and town treasurer, and it is alleged that he is short in his accounts, not only in the postoffice, but also in the town finances. Cilley's non-appearance is the gossip of nearly all the citizens, as he has been gone from Bradford since last Friday morning. As far as can be ascertained, no one here is aware of his whereabouts. Cilley has been postmaster for about two years. His reputation was of the best.

Drovers are somewhat disturbed as to the new law which is to go into effect regarding the quarantine of milch cows. They must have their stock by Saturday or Sunday or the market day must be changed to Thursday. Either of these plans will necessarily cause an advance in prices, as the cost of landing the stock will be increased, and it is going to be a matter of great risk to drovers to bring stock here. Drovers intend to get together at an early day and take measures whether they will send their stock on earlier or change their market day.

AMERICAN CATTLE CANNOT CARRY TEXAS FEVER

Across the Ocean—Great Surprise at Washington Over the Action of Germany.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The announcement that the embargo placed on American cattle by the senate of Hamburg had been extended to the length of an exclusion of American cattle and dressed meat from every port of Germany was received with surprise by department officials.

That the Texas fever was merely a ground which Germany could adopt for enforcing retaliatory measures against the United States because of the supposed discrimination against German interests in the sugar schedule of the tariff bill was the prevalent impression. The German ambassador, however, assured the secretary of state that the measure of exclusion was inspired solely by sanitary reasons and had no political move behind it.

Secretary Morton had a consultation with Secretary Gresham about the matter yesterday, before the stringent measures just adopted were known. He assured Secretary Gresham that the exportation of Texas fever into Germany by American cattle was altogether improbable, if not impossible, according to the opinions of the pathological experts of the department, and said that he was confident that the supposed discovery of Texas fever

Was a Mistake.

When the dispatch from Berlin was shown to the secretary of agriculture, he expressed surprised. The exclusion of dressed meats he was at a loss to understand, because they are all inspected by competent government officials in this country before they are shipped. Texas fever, moreover, can be carried only by live cattle. The live cattle exported from this country are also inspected at the ports of shipment to see that they are not diseased.

The secretary thinks that the damage to be inflicted on American interests by this action is generally overestimated, as our exports of meats to Germany are comparatively light, aggregating but a small fraction of the exports to Great Britain.

From observations on his recent trip, Secretary Morton is convinced that the exportation of live cattle cannot be made to pay as well as shipping dressed meats.

Knights Disagree.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Local Knights of Labor have been disfranchised from representation at the general assembly which opens its session in New Orleans on Nov. 11. The reason alleged for this action by the Ottawa district assembly is that they are one member short of the required number which entitles them to representation. But the local knights believe that the true reason is that the Sovereign party think the Toronto men are favorable to Powderly.

TALK OF BOODLE

What Witnesses at Aldermanic Trial Had to Say.

PRICE OF A LICENSE SAID TO BE $400.

Some Sensational Facts Are Expected Very Soon.

The trial of the Haverhill aldermen alleged to have been financially interested in the granting of licenses opened at Lawrence, Monday, and was continued yesterday.

City Clerk Roberts testified and then T. H. McDonald says he paid nothing towards the granting of his license. On cross examination by Dist. Attorney Moody he said he had no recollection of conversation with C. W. Arnold, candidate for mayor about paying from $100 to $200 apiece for licenses, or of paying money into a pool.

Porter C. Croy, brother of Alderman Croy, testified that he met Kimball and went with him to Boxford. On the drive they talked license.

Kimball said: "Your brother is a fool not to make $400 or $500, when he can just as well as not."

Witness inquired: "Haven't you fixed Aldermen Cate, Ham, Tilton and Hoyt?" Kimball said: "Yes."

Witness asked where his brother would get the money, and Kimball said they would see to that all right.

Alderman Horace I. Pinkham, who was not a member of the "combine," testified to the special meeting of the aldermen, April 16. Alderman Croy was absent. Mayor Taylor was opposed to granting licenses until a full board was present.

"I was willing," testified the witness, "to go in then and grant all the licenses. The majority of the aldermen desired to grant 15, and I openly said that such a course would look as if they were putting a price on the remainder."

Held a Meeting on City Hall Steps After Being Locked Out.

The license commissioners, the "Big 3" went up to city hall last evening to hold a meeting and they held it too—out in the rain. City hall was locked because the commissioners failed to notify City Messenger Cahill of their intention to hold a meeting.

City hall steps were large enough for the three and all spectators, and there under the shelter of umbrellas, Chairman Faulkner called to order, the commissioners refused to grant a common victualler's license to Reuben A. Hally, Liberty square.

One Conviction Secured.

Upon the testimony of the two women liquor spotters at Lynn, one hotel keeper was fined $200 and given six months imprisonment, and another hotel keeper discharged because ownership of the liquor could not be proven.

Ladies Present From Abroad.

The annual invitation meeting and dinner of the woman's alliance of the First Unitarian church was held yesterday and many ladies were present from out of town.

Kaiser Declined to Be Present.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—A monument to Emperor Frederick, father of Emperor William, was unveiled in Wittenberg today, and it creates comment that Emperor William declined to be present. Empress Frederick was also prevented from going to witness the unveiling of her husband's monument.

One More Victim.

NO TEARS SHED

But Calamity Orators Appealed to Sentiment.

Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott Eulogizes the Blood of Middlesex County.

The assertion that the republican party is afraid of water is only true in part; some republicans like water and will brave a drizzle to hear campaign speeches. Some of them bring their wives while others stay at home and preach their own political doctrine to their wives and sweethearts. Like charity the salvation of a party begins at home. The rally of the calamity party in Huntington hall last night was not overcrowded and the galleries were only half filled. The band played well and the crowd liked it.

The fireworks opened with a vote of thanks by Chairman Kileski to the audience for turning out on so stormy a night.

Mayor Pickman was introduced to preside. He said first of all that the size of the audience augured the size of the victory Tuesday. The history of political organization is the history of the country. In this latter the issues at times have been clearly marked and defined; at other times less clearly marked. During the war there were two great organizations, republican and democratic, the former stood for freedom; what the democratic party stood for then it mattered not; men rallied to the support of the union. The moral issue was there, standing alone. Since the war another moral issue has been the currency; now there is an industrial issue. The republican party said we believe in the principle of protection; on the other hand was the party standing for revenue only. It was the issue of the last campaign; the republican party was defeated in it. "I am not a calamity orator, but is it not so that with the coming of the democrats came the dark clouds of depression. The people from Maine to California believe that the democratic administration is responsible for it. We have witnessed that the standard of American citizenship has been lowered from that established by noble Benjamin Harrison and his grand administration. "I believe that I am an American" shoulb be the shield for protection to American subjects, just as true as "I am an Englishman" is a shield to British subjects in any part of the world. We hear a great deal about the long twilight of an Arctic sunset, but we hope that the election of next Tuesday will be the sunset of the democratic administration."

Mayor Pickman hoped he was speaking to democrats as they were the people who need republicanism, for the platform of the party was broad enough to admit every class and creed; it is the republican party of Sumner, Lincoln and Greenhalge.

The Lieut. Governor.

Hon. Roger Wolcott was introduced as one of the trustiest, most faithful servants of the commonwealth, and one who will soon be called up higher. He was greeted with applause and then cheers led by ex-Mayor Palmer. The lieut. governor was glad to be present; the large audience was a good omen he thought. He had come very near standing before Lowell audiences previously, but supposed Col. Winslow thought Lowell citizens did not need him while the state ticket was headed by a Lowell man. Campaign speech making is directed by the colonel's hands.

Mr. Wolcott proceeded to handle the history of Massachusetts, beginning with the Pilgrim Fathers, the idea of popular education, the appropriation to put up monuments to mark the places of the first meeting house and first public school, and the difficulty to locate them with several places putting in claims. This shows the grand work of the commonwealth built on the idea of popular education, a place for the people.

The revolution and the part taken in it by Massachusetts men next received attention, with a tribute to the men of Middlesex county. Then the founding of the big cities of the Merrimack valley, the coming of great statesmen, Webster, Phillips, Choate, and the two Massachusetts men who uphold the state's honor in the national senate, Senators Hoar and Lodge.

Lieut. Gov. Wolcott said it was the blood of the men of Middlesex which was first shed in the civil war—Ladd and Whitney, a coincidence with the shedding of the first blood in the revolution.

Such has been the history of our state; truly we can say with St. Paul, "We are no mean citizens of no mean state."

Mr. Wolcott's panegyric of old Middlesex was a grand one, quite out of the line of campaign speeches. He said it was for us to see that the spirit of liberty is transmitted to our sons, and our sons' sons.

He claimed that the democrats are not saying much about state issues, they want national issues. The reasons are that they have nothing to criticize in the administration of Frederic T. Greenhalge.

Proceeding to discussing of issues, he said that protection is not a new thing. The tariff bills by the first congress was signed by the first president. Its preamble said tariff was intended to promote American industries. Those men—Alexander Hamilton, James Madison who framed the first bills were men of grand political sagacity. The policy of protection has been followed with more or less fluctuation from that time to this. It is, I understand the ground principle of the republican party. Under its 30 years of continued administration the country flourishes, and the best barometer of it, I believe is the showing of savings of working people in the banks.

A few years a change came, democrats made great promises; the people gave ear and two years ago every branch of the government was turned over to the democratic party for the first time since James Buchanan.

Then the speaker began to tell of alleged evils from which the country has suffered and urging the people to rise up in their might and make a change. He acknowledged that the senate would remain democratic but had great hopes that the majority in the house would be a big one. Considerable attention was given to booming Knox as the congressional candidate.

He sympathized with Congressman Stevens, he said, for his proplexity on the tariff bill, but applauded him for dodging a vote on it. In conclusion Mr. Wolcott took up the patriotic strain of his opening remarks and called upon the men of Middlesex to rise up in their might for the salvation (?) of the country from democratic rule.

More Patriotic Words.

In introducing the next speaker Mayor Pickman said that he hoped the crowd would stay and devote one night to the grand old cause of republicanism. Sec. H. A. Thomas expressed his pleasure at being present before such a sea of faces. He did not know what to talk about but it reminded him of a story of a speaker who asked his audience what he should talk about and some one yelled "about a minute." Mr. Thomas spoke of the history of the state as the history of the republican party, and began a glowing peroration to the nobility of the old Bay State men. He reiterated the tribute to the Harrison administration and how the Star and Stripes were upheld. He did not blame the million and a half of rank and file of democrats for making a change two years ago when such inducements were made out, but he did charge the leaders with inconsistency in failing to carry out the promises of the campaign, and only furnishing the country a patch work tariff bill. We heard at Music hall last week how the flag was hauled down in Samoa; a paper called it jingoism; if that is jingoism the more we have of it the better. We want the Stars and Stripes respected and held sacred. Every man in the country is the equal of his neighbor as long as he obeys her laws and upholds her honor. We hear on the other side of housings of the poor; on this side we speak of the houses of the people. Mr. Thomas closed in glowing language by referring to Holmes' poem on the Ship of State, and a closing incidents in Daniel Webster when he wanted the flag at the masthead where he could see it until he passed away. The republican party wants the flag run up to the masthead on Tuesday next to show the world at large that Massachusetts has done her duty.

Right From New York.

Mr. Malhon Chance of the New York Tribune was introduced as "Colonel," and a stranger in Lowell.

In rising he corrected the chairman by saying that he was not a colonel, (he ought to be,) and that a year ago he stood on the same platform, spoke to a Lowell audience and predicted a majority of 30,000 for Greenhalge, and he proved a prophet. He wanted then and there to predict 60,000 for Mr. Greenhalge.

Mr. Chance began to tell stories to illustrate his salient points and generally he got a merry laugh from the audience. He declared up and down that McKinleyism is still alive and that the object of the republican party in coming into power again was to change over the tariff. He defended the principle of protection and paid great tributes to the memory of James G. Blaine, and to Tom Reed and Bill McKinley. He criticized Wilson's speeches at English banquets and wound up with a grand panegyric to everything republican by predicting the approach of the millenium if only the g. o. p. is returned to power.

Mayor Pickman's Defence.

The surprise of the evening came when Mayor Pickman as good as declared himself out for the nomination of mayor for the third time. He quoted Edward B. Peirce of the night before, in saying that the mayor should bring his high tax rate in a glass case for exhibition. The mayor said that reference to ancient history disclosed the fact that E. B. Peirce was in the council in 1884, the year of the highest tax rate.

DON'T FOOL WITH EXPLOSIVES.

DETAILS OF THEIR MANUFACTURE EXPLAINED LAST NIGHT.

Smoke Talk of the Mathew Institute Which Was Instructive to All Who Heard It—The Affair One of Great Success.

The "smoke talk," the first in the series of members' entertainments was held last evening at the Mathew Temperance Institute hall, which was crowded with members and their friends, each member being privileged to bring a friend.

The regular meeting was first held and a number of propositions were received. A committee of twenty-five was appointed to arrange for the observance of the anniversary of the society.

Vice President Walter V. Rickey then introduced Mr. John Tobin, a teacher in the High school, who spoke for half an hour on "High Explosives." He commanded the closest attention as his remarks were couched in simple language and were very interesting to the members.

He treated on gun powder, gun cotton, dynamite and nitro glycerine and explained in detail and from personal experience the manufacture of these explosives. He explained that the safest of the high explosives is gun cotton, inasmuch as it is ground to a pulp, then washed to free it from acid. It possesses great merit for naval purposes, inasmuch as it can be kept wet all the time. When desired it may be exploded by a little dry gun cotton.

He explained that dualin is made from nitro glycerine and common sawdust. Of course there are different charges in dualin as in dynamite, ranging all the way from 4 to 95 per cent.

He explained the danger of dualin, much of which arises from the methods employed in thawing it out. In his opinion the safest way is to get something in the shape of a dinner pail. Fill the lower portion with hot water and in the upper place the explosive and allow the steam from the water to thaw out dualin. He said that he had read of an incident when a man held the dualin, over a fire. There was an explosion, the pail went to pieces, and the man was uninjured. A few days later another man tried the same thing with the result that he and two other men were killed. Explosions are very deceiving and it is difficult for any one to tell how they are going to act.

Mr. Tobin exhibited samples of two kinds of gunpowder, also gun cotton, and nitro-glycerine, and a piece of boiler plate showing the indentition caused by the explosion of gun powder. He was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his interesting talk.

The following entertainment program was offered; Piano solo, William McAloon; vocal solo, John Connors, Michael Gorman, Patrick Coppinger and Michael Kennedy; readings, Thomas Muldoon, J. B. Coughlin, Edward F. Slattery and James O'Sullivan.

Rev. Fr. McManus delivered a brief address.

During the entertainment the members smoked "T. D's" and afterwards refreshments were served.

FOSS AND FRIENDS ARE STILL PROMISING LICENSES.

To Men Who Want to Enter the Liquor Business—Brady's Energy and Devotion to Labor—The Weavers' Particulars Bill May be Repealed.

As an instance of Senator Brady's energy and devotion to the interest of his constituents the following story is told: A young man who was prominently mentioned in this city for inspector of wires called upon the senator for a letter of recommendation to the West End railway company as he was there seeking a position. The senator agreed to give him such a letter and told him to call later. The electrician called and to his great surprise Senator Brady put into his hands a petition to the West End company signed by all the members of the senate with the exception of a few who were absent.

Another incident which occurred while Senator Brady was in New York illustrates his great devotion to his constituents. He was in New York with a legislative committee and happened to meet Supt. Crowley. He had a most cordial welcome for Mr. Crowley, invited him to dinner with the committee and showed him every mark of kindness. When the festivities were over Mr. Brady drew from his pocket a list of applicants for work on the street department and he insisted that Mr. Crowley should put the most needy of them to work.

While the weavers particulars bill was under discussion in the legislature, Senator Brady's devotion to the interests of labor was so noticeable that he was appointed to draft a bill to cover the best points in the several bills submitted. This duty was faithfully performed after getting the views of experienced operatives in different cities upon the question. The consequence was, that the bill was framed so as to include the widest protection for measures which the constitution would permit. The constitutionality of that bill is liable to be attacked in the next legislature if Senator Brady be not returned to defend it. That is a question of great importance to operatives.

Candidate Foss is working druggists, speak easies, and men who want to enter the liquor business next year. By some means he is convincing them that by supporting him they can best secure a license but they forget that the commission has already stated that any man promised a license by a politician in lieu of political service will be sure not to get one. The men who are thus working for Foss are doing so under a delusion. If Brady be defeated men who want licenses next year will be blamed for it and they will be punished for their treachery by a no license vote. For this reason it is best for the liquor dealers to do all in their power for Senator Brady's re-election.

The labor organizations should stand by him as he has stood by them, both in the house and the senate.

The democrats of the city should all stand by Senator Brady if they want their party to win at the city election.

It will be very encouraging to the democracy to elect their senator. It will be an augury of victory in December.

⁂

The democrats of Lowell are elated at the excellent prospect of rolling up a majority for Mr. Fifield. In Lawrence the conviction has grown within the last week that Mr. Fifield will be the next congressman from this district. The reason is plain. Mr. Fifield wants the present bill to get a fair trial before any other tariff legislation is given to the country. Mr. Knox wants the present bill changed just as soon as possible. Mr. Fifield wants free coal and free iron ore for New England industries as soon as these can be obtained without disturbing the business interests of the country. Mr. Knox is opposed to free coal and free iron ore on the ground that although they would benefit New England industries they would injure the mining districts. He is more anxious for those than for New England. Fifield like Mr. Stevens will stand for New England leaving other congressmen to fight for the mining interests. It is each for his constituents with the democrats; but with republicans it is each for high tariff regardless of who suffers.

⁂

Fall River — John E. Russell, Joseph H. O'Neil.

Salem—Thomas J. Gargan, Charles E. Stratton, Robert S. Rantoul.

Marlboro—John W. Corcoran, Josiah Quincy, John J. Desmond.

Somerville—John F. Fitzgerald, Charles A. DeCourcey, Charles A. Conant.

Southbridge—George Fred Williams, Charles Haggerty.

West Newbury—Frank H. Hope.

Millville—Louis Blumenthal, Michael J. Moore.

East Boston—(Hibernian hall, Ward Two); John F. Fitzgerald, Charles G. Engstrom, Thomas A. Mullen.

⁂

Gov. Greenhalge speaks at a Scandinavian rally in Boston to-night, Senator Hoar at North Adams, W. S. Knox at Tewksbury, Senator Lodge, Wolcott and Barrett at Wakefield.

⁂

Ex. Gov. Russell will speak at Worcester Friday evening.

⁂

Coakley and Cronan, candidates for representative in Boston are having a lively time. Coakley has Cronin on the run with challenges for joint debates on their political records. Congressman McEttrick is after McNary in a similar way; but Cronan and McNary are both pursuing a Fabian policy. McEttrick says he would cancel several rallies if he could only get McNary face to face, with him in a joint debate before a couple of thousand voters of the district.

⁂

There is nothing like a good feed to awaken fraternal feelings and that is why a large crowd of guests around a well spread table at the Richardson house last night boomed ex-Councilman Moses T. Wyman for alderman from the fourth ward.

⁂

At the earnest solicitation of his friends Hugh Maguire has entered the councilmanic fight in Ward One. He is a well known clerk, having been employed by Savage Bros. for many years. He will be a formidable candidate.

⁂

Thomas F. Roche of Ward Six is a prominent candidate for overseer of the poor. He is at the head of the Ward Six Independent Democratic club.

⁂

Councilmen Curtin and Riley of Ward Six are two candidates for reelection who should go back again to the council. They have been loyal to their party and to the interests of their constituents. They are sure to be renominated.

⁂

What were the republican speakers driving at when they insinuated at last night's rally that American citizens have not been protected abroad? Do they remember the number of Irish Americans who languished in British dungeons during Harrison's administration? Do they remember the efforts of a democratic administration in behalf of those same men? Has President Cleveland proved a coward or a man who has not the courage of his convictions?

⁂

Joseph Gormley and James Miskella are among the leaders in the common council fight in Ward Three. They are both good men.

⁂

Simon Dean, a prominent business man of Ward Three, is a candidate for the council and is assured of strong support.

⁂

Mr. Daniel P. O'Neill of the Tammany club is making a vigorous fight for the council in Ward Three and his friends predict his nomination.

⁂

THE SUN is in receipt of a communication speaking good words for J. F. Derman, as a candidate for the school board in Ward Two on the democratic ticket.

⁂

The last democratic rally in the campaign will be held in Huntington hall, Saturday evening. Nathan D. Pratt will preside and the speakers will be Hon. Geo. Fred Williams and Congressman O'Neil.

⁂

Philip J. Farley, Esq., addressed two big McNary rallies in Boston, last evening. He will speak at the Ward Six rally Friday evening.

MARTIN'S BAIL IS REDUCED.

HE IS HELD FOR TEN DAYS ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Not Yet Bailed and Reason for Delay is That the Government is Not Ready.

Michael J. Martin, the 17 year old boy who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Patrick H. Buckley a week ago Saturday, was held in $6000 for a hearing ten days hence in court today. It is understood the government is not ready. Bail was reduced $2000.

The case of George McCoy for alleged embezzlement of $45 from May Taskan. Lawyer Hogan appeared for the complainant and Lawyer Donahue for the defendant. The complainant testified that she had known McCoy since the week after the Fourth of July and had given him money "to mind" as they intended. to get married. She gave him the money at different times until the total sum reached about $45. She asked him to return it more than once when they were in Boston and he put her off. When she asked the second time he went into a barroom opposite the depot telling her to wait outside. She waited and he went out of a side door. They met afterwards in the depot; he was then making preparations to go to New Brunswick. They went to Boston to get married as his mother objected to her. Lawyer Donohue put the Taskan girl through a cross examination which brought out admissions in regard to her characters which were positively startling.

The witness was very cool on cross examination and Mr. Donahue's questions did not seem to bother her at all.

After considerable evidence some of which would not look well in print, the court found McCoy not guilty and discharged him.

Daniel Curry was in court yesterday on a charge of assault and battery on his wife. The latter failed to appear in court. She was there today having been arrested on a capias. She gave satisfactory reasons and was dismissed. Her husband was continued one month on his own recognizance as the evidence didn't show any kind of an assault.

Eight drunks, two fined and six released.

The police are after those who keep open shop illegally on the Lord's day. William A. Hayward who keeps at the corner of Howard and Chelmsford street was fined $5.

Joseph Begin is a young man, who has been employed by Marie Sylvester of Woonsocket, R. I., selling sausages at $15 a week. He is now under arrest for alleged embezzlement of $52 from his boss. Begin claims that he expended the amount alleged to have been embezzled in replacing some of the sausage sent up that was unfit to sell with good meat. Lawyer Lemereux appears for Begin.

A very entertaining recital was given by the pupils of Madame LaBelle, assisted by local talent, in Odd Fellows' hall, last evening. The attendance was very large and enthusiastic and the finished manner in which the pupils performed their respective parts brought out frequent applause. Madame LaBelle is to be congratulated for the very successful manner in which the program was carried out.

Eleventh week—Jan. 28—Les Miserables vs B. A. A.; Salem vs Vesper; (all on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Jamaica;

Twelfth week, Feb. 4.—Vesper vs Melrose Athletics; Casinos vs Les Miserables, (on neutral alleys); Allston vs Highlands.

Thirteenth week, Feb. 11—Vespers vs Casino; Les Miserables vs Salem, (on neutral alleys); Highlands vs 999th Artillery.

Fourteenth week, Feb. 18—Melrose Athletics vs Les Miserables; B. A. A. vs Vesper, (on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Old Dorchester.

Fifteenth week (all neutral alleys)—Monday, Feb. 25, Salem vs Melrose Athletic, Boston Athletic vs Casino, Vesper vs Les Miserables.

By the above schedule it will be seen that the great games of local interest will be those between the Vespers and Miserables, in the third and tenth weeks and then on neutral alleys, probably the Highland club. The schedule it will be seen cuts out some warm work for the first division teams as the Casinos, Salems and B. A. A. teams are likely to be stronger than ever before. The Miserables are settling down to work in anticipation of a hard struggle at the opening games. The schedule indicates that the games will be played on the club first mentioned, so that week after next three games will be played on Lowell alleys.

The Interstate League.

The new league, mention of which was made yesterday, promises to make things more than ordinarily lively when it gets started. When the schedule is made out more particulars can be obtained.

It is not many seasons distant before there will be a New England league. The Interstate league will be governed by Massachusetts league rules.

Bowling at the Les Miserables and Olympic alleys and at the Columbian alleys way up on Gorham street is of such volume that it indicates the sport will be followed this year better than ever before.

The team tournament of the Vesper club opening next week. will be in divisions, the winners in each division to play off for the championship of the fall tournament. The schedule will be shorter and the interest kept up better.

The makeup of the Vesper team is yet undecided, for Goulding and Thorpe do not care to bowl.

Julian Hood is expected to be in trim and the boys are banking on him as right hand man to "Old Reliable" Harry Corwin. Fred Grover and Dr. Harris, will probably be on it with the Whittier brothers and Will Gerrish to draw on. There are several strong bowlers coming to the front.

If new bowling alleys are put in the basement of Mechanics hall for club men it will help the sport greatly. There will also be pool and billiard tables.

The new alleys at the Palmer street engine house are pronounced by Veteran Jim McLaughlin, the equal of any in the city.

CAR SHOPS AFIRE

Newburyport Has a Big Fire On Its Hands.

FACTORY AND HOTEL ARE IN ASHES NOW.

Cause Was the Upsetting of an Oil Stove.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 30.—One of the worst fires this city has suffered for years was that which broke out in the counting room of the Newburyport Car works, by the upsetting of an oil stove. The flames enveloped the small office building and then leaped to the factory of Burley, Stevens & Co., burning it to the ground, together with the car works and the Eagle hotel owned by John Leary, adjoining.

The car works had been shut down for some time while the factory was running full blast. The total loss will exceed $80,000, the factory being worth at least $50,000.

Help was summoned from Salem, Haverhill and Portsmouth and at 11 o'clock was under control.

DEATH'S BRIDE

Exceedingly Sad Event in a Lawrence Family.

BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTER PASSED AWAY AFTER CEREMONY.

Cause Was Ascribed to Heart Disease.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

LAWRENCE, Oct 30.—Death came to a wedding here last night, when a bride of only a few hours passed away at the residence of Charles J. Bagge on Butler street.

Mr. Bagge's daughter, Agnes, aged 21 years, was married at 7 o'clock to Chas. J. Johnson of Boston. At midnight she died.

A house full of guests had been invited to the wedding festivities, and it had been planned that the ceremony should take place beneath a floral arch in the parlors. But the bride had been ailing for a couple of weeks; she was pale, nervous, excited, and as the hour for the nuptials approached she grew worse. Finally, as she appeared too weak to come down stairs, the ceremony was performed in her own room.

The wedding festivities were curtailed on account of the bride's sickness, and the guests left for their homes before 9 o'clock.

Before the guests had all left the house the newly made bride was put to bed by her mother, and the husband was left to guard her slumbers.

Shortly before 11 o'clock she began to breathe painfully, and her mother was called. Dr. Chase, the family physician, was then sent for, but she sunk rapidly, and died at a few minutes after 12 o'clock in the arms of her mother.

Dr. Chase ascribed the cause of death to heart disease. He believed that the excitement of the wedding augmented the trouble.

Today in the stricken home the wedding decorations adorn the parlors and the wedding gifts are yet displayed.

THE LABOR organizations of this city may well exclaim: Save us from our friends—the populists.

IS IT possible that the Mail believes half what it says about the tariff? How can any protectionist reason out that free coal would injure New England industries?

THE RALLY of Monday evening was an enthusiastic one. The wit of the chairman, the patriotic arraignment of the A. P. A. by Senator Fitzgerald and the logic of Josiah Quincy were the features of the occasion.

FOSS'S LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

The Citizen objects to the SUN'S reference to Mr. Foss's legislative record and especially to the charge of being absent at about half the roll calls. In the index of the journal are given over one hundred roll calls but in that list it appears is included the cases on which roll calls were demanded and refused. Those in which the yeas, nays and pairs are given have been examined and the dates set down in two columns, one marked Absent and the other Present. It will be at once apparent that on the same day there were several roll calls at some of which Mr. Foss was absent while he was present at others on that day. The following list we can vouch to be correct:

Resigned June 12.

It will be noticed that towards the last part of the session Mr. Foss attended more regularly than during the preceding months. The only reason that can be assigned for this is that certain corporations petitioned for increased privileges and he probably intended to vote for them. Another motive was that he wanted to get acquainted in order that he might be legislated into a license commissionership. He was sure to be present when his vote was needed on the telephone bill in favor of increasing the capital stock as on June 8. In fact a close examination of Mr. Foss' record reveals the fact that although absent at a majority of the roll calls, he managed to be present whenever any popular measure was under consideration that he might vote against it.

NO-LICENSE THREATENED.

There are rumors of opposition to certain democratic candidates by certain liquor dealers and there is positive proof that certain men working in the interests of Mr. Foss are doing so because they have been promised liquor licenses next year. They may have been promised licenses by men who are unable to deliver the goods and their names will be sent to the license commission in order that this custom of making promises that can never be fulfilled in lieu of political service will be stamped out.

Should Mr. Brady be defeated there will be a concerted movement for no-license and it will probably be carried. This is one way in which treachery can be punished. Personal grievances should not be allowed to militate against a party candidate. Those who work against the party for personal reasons will be punished by the party.

It is time that some of those who profess to be democrats and support republican candidates were called to account.

There is one man running a speak-easy this year under protection of the law and although a democrat last year he is this year working for Foss, probably because he finds that the easiest way to evade punishment for violating the law. Those who mean to enter the liquor business next year and those who want a license vote to be carried should endeavor to elect Hon. Peter J. Brady. In doing that they will be advancing their own interests, because if he be defeated liquor dealers will be blamed and a very slight agitation will result in carrying the no-license vote.

WE WOULD respectfully ask the Lowell Citizen:

Have Mr. Knox's fellow citizens of Lawrence ever thought enough of him to call him to public office?

Has Mr. Knox's name ever been suggested in the public affairs of Lawrence as a citizen whose influence would be for the good of the city?

HON. GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS is inquiring how much the silence of the republican party in regard to the A. P. A. has cost. The compact has certainly been well kept by the G. O. P.

THEY ALL WENT.

A Tale of Two Dollars and How It Was Spent.

The Templetons had decided to go to the theater. They had set aside $2 for the tickets, and Mr. Templeton thought if he economized a bit on cigars they might go and get some luncheon after the show too.

When Mr. Templeton came home that night, he was met at the door by his wife, who said, "Well, Fred, I've decided that we won't go to the theater tonight."

"Won't go?" said Fred. "Why not, I'd like to know?"

Mrs. Templeton's face took on a serious look. "Mrs. Byrnes was in to see me this afternoon," she replied, "and she told me about that unfortunate White family that lives on the next block. She said that he had not had a bit of work for six months; that they had pawned everything they had that the brokers would take and were now on the verge of starvation. I used to know her when she went to school. I thought we might forego the pleasure of the visit to the theater, and I sent Johnny around with the $2 to the Whites. If it will do them any good, I knew you'd not begrudge, and besides"—here she bit her lip savagely and jabbed her handkerchief into one of her eyes—"I didn't care very much about going anyway, so you needn't feel bad."

"By Jove, you are a noble little woman!" said Templeton, kissing her fondly. "I guess you're right about the money doing the Whites a lot of good, but you needn't be disappointed for all that. A fellow I know gave me a couple of lithograph tickets, and we're going anyway. I was going to give you that $2 for your own."

They were very happy at the supper table, and about a quarter after 7 started for the theater. The lithograph tickets called for seats pretty well toward the rear of the house. The Templetons got there as the orchestra began to play. Just as the footlights were turned up a seedy looking man and a faded woman took the two vacant seats just in front of them. Mrs. Templeton nudged her husband and said, "If that isn't Laura Smith, who married that White fellow, I'm badly fooled."

Mr. Templeton peered around and made up his mind that his wife was right. They didn't enjoy the first act much. After the curtain dropped the woman turned around and recognized Mrs. Templeton. "Why, how do do?" she said gushingly. "I haven't seen you in an age."

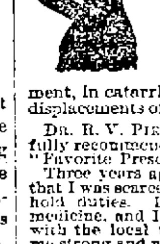

"I'm pretty well," responded Mrs. Templeton stiffly.

"Kind of surprised to see us here, ain't you?"

Mrs. Templeton was furious by this time. "Yes," she said, "I must say that I am."

"Well, I'll tell you," the woman said. "I don't suppose I've got any business here, but some softy sent around $2 to the house this afternoon, and me and Will was just achin to see the show, so we came."

Just here the usher tapped Mr. Templeton on the shoulder and told him that if he did not stop laughing so loudly he would have to go outside.—Buffalo Express.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women.

West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results.

HUNTING RUSSIAN WOLVES.

An Exciting Sport, but One That Is Apt to Be Dangerous.

Wolf hunting is probably the most dangerous sport there is. With a servant and a couple of fast horses attached to a sleigh I have gone out and baited the ground for the brutes on numerous occasions. A fat hog tied to a tree never failed to collect a pack. The trouble was that it drew too many. The wolves would gather to the number of 200 or 300 and devour the pig. Then we would dash upon the scene, and the fun would commence. They are as fleet as a deer. To say that they are as fleet as wolves would be more like it. They can outrun the horses every time, and if they are not picked off as fast as they come up you might as well give up the fight and permit yourself to be devoured.

Imagine yourself making a running fight with a band of 300 hungry, maddened wolves and with the knowledge that if one of the fleet little brutes reaches your horses you are a dead man, and you can possibly imagine what a nervy sport it is. It requires a cool head and a good eye. If you miss your mark, you're gone. Your only chance of safety is in keeping your horses up. It is generally a long fight. You look back and see the carcasses of the animals dotting the snow for a mile or two in your wake, and still they pursue you in great numbers. Slowly the pack thins out. Many have dropped bleeding to the ground. Others stop to devour the carcasses. The more that fall the more timid the rest become. When you finally outdistance the pack, you have been through the most trying ordeal that the most ardent sportsman could wish.

I consider wolf hunting the most dangerous sport there is. Tiger hunting in India is tame beside it. If you go into the jungles of India to shoot a tiger, you are accompanied by a long retinue. You shoot your prey from the howdah of an elephant. If you miss your victim, there are 20 bullets ready for him before he springs. A person might as well go tiger hunting in a menagerie. The only unsatisfactory part of the sport which wolves afford is that after you are through you haven't anything to show for your efforts. But it is great sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Fatalism In the East.

A correspondent at Cairo of the Chicago Inter Ocean gives a graphic account of the fatalism of the Egyptian people, and also of the excellent work which American missionaries are doing in breaking it up. Here are some of the Arabic proverbs which are the common property of the Mussulman and Coptic populations, for the native or Christian fellahin of Egypt, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, have forgotten their own language, using it only as a sort of mummery in their religious services and speak only the language of their conquerors:

"God is good. The dire comes; it must stay."

"Flies are sent. Why brush them off?"

"What is the use?"

"What is is right."

"It will be all the same in 100 years."

"If you are poor and filthy in this life, you may be rich and bathe in never ceasing fountains in the next world, if God wills it."

This stupid fatalism, joined with Turkish tyranny and crushing taxation, has resulted in a terrible moral paralysis among the people of this fertile and sunny land.

A Smuggler's Device.

Several years ago I was an inspector of customs, and during my term of office I ran across some rather unique devices arranged for the purpose of getting contraband goods into this country duty free. One day I apprehended a woman who had just arrived on a steamer from Europe, suspecting that she had some smuggled tobacco in her possession. Upon examining her dress 17 pounds of tobacco were found concealed under it, but the most remarkable of the expedients which she had resorted to for the purpose of deceiving the custom house officers was that of giving to the contraband leaf the resemblance of a loaf of bread. A quantity of cut tobacco had been placed into a tin, over which a thin layer of dough was spread, and this being baked had the appearance of a veritable and edible loaf. The quantity of tobacco which the woman had contrived to secrete in this and other modes amounted to over 70 pounds.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Multiplicity of Bicycle Riders.

The extension of the bicycle in popularity—it is estimated that about 750,000 machines will be in use in the United States and Canada next year—does not please some of the former wheelmen. Said one of them:

"Yes, I own a wheel, and I used to get some pleasure in riding it two or three years ago. I could get out on the country roads and be fairly sure to be alone, but now the fellows are as thick everywhere ten miles from town as they are in the parks. There is no fun for me any more in wheeling, since everybody owns a bicycle."—New York Sun.

One Homemade Article.

A worthy old Scot and his wife purchased some goods in a shop in P—— the other day. As they were turning to leave the old gentleman addressed the assistant thus: "Do ye come frae Germany?" "Na, na," replied he: "I was born in P——, and all my folks before me." "Weel," replied the old one as he edged out of the door, "ye may be proud o' yoursel', ma laddie, for as faur as I can see ye're the only hamemade article in the whole shop."—Optician.

Nothing Venture, Nothing Gain.

A small boy who stood in front of a place of amusement the other day evidently wanted to get inside. Perhaps he thought that the way to be successful was to make success. Perhaps he thought that a thing worth having was worth trying to get. Or he may have thought he saw an opportunity to "try his luck," for the ticket taker was reading a newspaper, his head concealed behind the open sheet. The boy crept up slowly, making no noise. He had almost passed the man when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder.

"Where's your ticket?" demanded the man.

"Why, mister," said the boy, "I thought you was blind." And he wriggled away and left the place much more rapidly than he had entered it.—New York Tribune.

Trespassing In Balmoral.

A party of Americans tramping recently over the hills in the grounds of Balmoral came suddenly upon an elderly lady sitting alone before a table and writing rapidly. "Tell me, madam," said one, politely lifting his hat, "are we far from Balmoral?" "You are on the grounds now," said the lady, "and I greatly fear you are trespassing." They respectfully announced their intention of getting into the public road at the first opportunity. Thereupon the lady wrote a line, and, handing it to them, said, smiling, "Here is a safe conduct if you meet a bailiff." "Victoria, R," was all the slip contained.—Montreal Star.

SUNBEAMS.

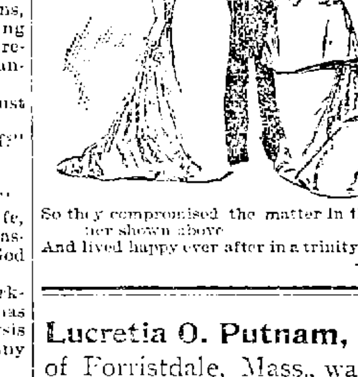

A Desire to Please.

Brother Browse, the Mormon elder, had a long and lissom beard,
Which the first wife of his bosom said ought never to be sheared.

Hence, of course, his second consort used to flout at it and scoff,
And her daily tearful prayer was that he'd cut the horrors off.

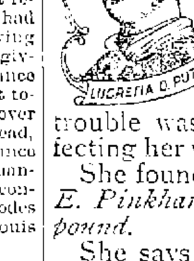

So they compromised the matter in the manner shown above
And lived happy ever after in a trinity of love.
—Life.

Lucretia O. Putnam,

of Forristdale, Mass., was utterly miserable and sick.

Her spine, liver, heart, and brain were all diseased.

The weight of her body caused terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress. This woman's trouble was in her womb, affecting her whole constitution.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well.

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing-down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure for the misery of our sex."

Lost Manhood and vigor quickly restored. Varicocele, nightly emissions, atrophy, etc., surely cured by INDAPO, the great Hindoo Remedy. With written guarantee to cure. Sold by Ellingwood & Co., and Carleton & Hovey, Lowell, Mass.

Women Have Full Suffrage—In Great Britain Women Vote For Elective Officers Except Members of Parliament.

In Great Britain women vote for all elective officers except members of parliament.

In France the women teachers elect women members on all boards of education.

In Sweden women vote for all elective officers except representatives; also indirectly for members of the house of lords.

In Norway they have school suffrage.

In Ireland the women vote for the harbor boards, poor law guardians, and in Belfast for municipal officers.

In Russia women householders vote for all elective officers and on all local matters.

In Finland they vote for all elective officers.

In Austria-Hungary they vote, by proxy, for all elective officers.

In Croatia and Dalmatia they have the privilege of doing so in local elections in person.

In Italy widows vote for members of parliament.

In the Madras presidency and the Bombay presidency, Hindustan, the women exercise the right of suffrage in all municipalities.

In all the countries of Russian Asia they can do so wherever a Russian colony settles. The Russians are colonizing the whole of their vast Asian possessions and carrying with them everywhere the "mir," or self governing village, wherein women who are heads of households are permitted to vote.

Women have municipal suffrage in Cape Colony, which rules a million square miles.

Municipal woman suffrage rules in New Zealand.

Ireland, in the north Atlantic, the isle of Man (between England and Ireland), and Pitcairn island, in the south Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

In the Dominion of Canada women have municipal suffrage in every province, and also in the Northwest Territories. In Ontario they vote for all elective officers, except in the election of members of the legislature and parliament.

In the United States 28 states and territories have given women some form of suffrage, according to Political Progress, the source of these statements.

Sleepy Grass.

A curious grass is reported as having been discovered in Lincoln county, N. M., and it is said that it is not known to exist anywhere else. According to the Iowa Homestead, its identity has not been botanically determined, and it is only known by its popular name—sleepy grass. The property from which the name is derived is that of putting to sleep animals that graze on it. It grows in among other grasses and is eaten readily by all kinds of stock. Horses that eat it go to sleep on their feet, while cattle and sheep usually lie down. Its effects continue for an hour or more and then pass off, leaving no injurious effects. Teams turned out to graze by travelers stopping for the noon hour often fall asleep while being hitched up, and the whip is necessary to arouse them. They will then start off at a good pace, but this gradually slackens, their heads droop, and presently they come to a full stop, sound asleep. If the animals are allowed to sleep until they awaken naturally, they seem much refreshed, but if urged forward during the period of drowsiness they appear very weary, even after the desire to sleep passes off. It is not known what the sleep inducing principle is. It may be something resembling the poppy, or it may be something entirely different.

Athletic Sports of American Women.

Among athletic sports which are pursued by American women may be enumerated bowling, skating, snowshoeing and tobogganing, for which many parts of the country are in winter eminently adapted. They are also especially addicted to rowing and canoeing. The women's colleges, which are so numerous, and many of the large private boarding schools keep boats and encourage both rowing and swimming.

It is stated that there are no less than 30,000 women in the United States who ride bicycles. It is not the sport of the richest women, who can afford to keep horses, but is exceedingly popular with those less favored by fortune. Cycling is the principal form of outing with a large class of both men and women. Racing has even taken place among the female cyclists, but only in a few instances, and is generally discountenanced by the women themselves. Golf has not yet become a favorite amusement in America, but it is said to be taken up as a fad among the ultra fashionables. At the few links that are in existence women go in for the game largely and use the links with the men, but golf has not yet superseded tennis.

A Change of Voice.

A foreign scientific journal publishes the results of some recent experiments upon the vocal chords which are likely to prove interesting to aspirants to lyric honors. In the case of a baritone, who was not content to be a baritone, but sighed for the higher emoluments of a tenor, a course of inhalations, beginning with benzoin, going on to caffeine and chloroform and concluding with curacoa, proved perfectly successful. The transformation was pronounced to be complete.

The Busy Bee a Fraud.

The iconoclastic scientist claims to have shattered another tradition. An observer of the honeybee's habits says that this creature, long praised for its industry and diligence, is a fraud in these respects; that, as a matter of fact, "the little busy bee" works but about three hours a day and is a most thorough going loafer for the rest of the time. Must we give up forever the happy phrase, "the busy bee?" We trust not.

Foreign Born Population.

Taking the country as a whole, the white native population born of foreign parentage and the foreign born white amount to 32 per cent, but in Massachusetts it is 56 per cent, in Rhode Island 5s, in New York city 82, in Milwaukee 8? and in Wisconsin over 90.—Professor Mayo Smith.

Relics of Thoreau.

In Self Defense.

She was the wife of a cavalry officer, and she was going to have some fun with the lieutenant of infantry.

"I suppose," she said, "you have often been chased by the Indians on the plains?"

"Never," he responded politely.

"No?" keenly sarcastic.

"No. You see, they are so busy chasing the cavalry they don't have any time for us."—Detroit Free Press.

ABOUT NEW YORK.

Some Buffalo Women Would and Would Not Like to Live There.

There were three of them, and they were going down town together. They sat up at one end of the car and giggled and talked all the way.

"Jack," said the one in the middle, "had a perfectly lovely offer to go to New York and live, but I wouldn't go. I wouldn't live in New York."

"I'd rather live there than anywhere else," said the one nearest the door.

"I wouldn't live there at all," said the third one. Then a conversation like this ensued:

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Why wouldn't you? I'd just love to live there."

"Oh, you couldn't hire me to live there!"

"No; I wouldn't live there."

"I'd rather live in New York than anywhere else."

"Well, I just wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I."

"I think it's a lovely place to live."

"I don't. I wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I. I wouldn't like to live there at all."

"Why, Jack, my husband, had an offer there, and it was a lovely one. I wouldn't let him go."

"Well, if my husband had any kind of an offer of a position down there, I'd make him go."

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Couldn't hire me to."

"I'd rather live there than any place in the world."

This sort of thing kept up for two blocks more. Then the fat man who sat in the corner got up, yelled wildly at the conductor and dived for the rear platform.

"What's the matter?" asked the conductor. "Where are you going?"

"Going?" growled the fat man as he jumped off. "I'm going down to the home for feeble minded female children and get my faith in the intelligence of American women restored."—Buffalo Express.

A Matter of Economy.

The lady from the tamarack swamps was laying in some parlor furniture, and the clerk in the store was offering his valuable advice.

"No," she said in rebuttal; "I don't want no chairs."

"No chairs, madam?" he exclaimed. "I never heard of a parlor without chairs."

"Well, you come to my house some time, and you will see one," she retorted.

"What will you have instead?"

"Sofies, young man, sofies, these little two seat ones, and taytaytays and things like that."

The clerk's equanimity was receiving a powerful jostle.

"What in the mischief do you want to do that for?" he asked in a helpless sort of way.

"You ain't a married man, are you?" she snapped. "You never raised a family of girls, did you?"

"Hardly."

"Well, you don't know anything about it. I've raised five. Three's married, and the other two's got beaux. I've always had chairs, and every time when the courtin was over with them girls and they got married I had to get new ones. Three sets of parlor chairs in three winters is goin it most too strong. They git broke down somehow, and now I'm goin to put a stop to it by havin sofies, and you needn't be tryin to change my mind. I know what I want, and if you haven't got sofies say so, and I'll run go where they do have them."

The argument was convincing, and the clerk fitted the thrifty lady out with a half dozen warranted to carry two with safety and economy.—Detroit Free Press.

Barrowcliff's Forgetfulness.

"I haven't seen Barrowcliff for quite a long time, Kilduff. What has become of him?"

"Hadn't you heard the news?"

"What news? Is he married?"

"No, not married. I mean the immense fortune that he went to England to claim."

"Hadn't heard a word about it. Tell me the whole story."

"About a year ago Barrowcliff heard that a very large fortune was awaiting him in England. I think the figure named was somewhere about £200,000, and there were only three heirs to the estate. It was to be divided equally. So Barrowcliff went over after his money."

"What a lucky dog he is! I wonder when you and I will have a windfall like that."

"Ah, when indeed? Well, as I was saying, Barrowcliff went to England after his money. About a year ago it was, and he hasn't come back yet."

"I suppose he is so pleased with the country and his possessions that he is staying there. Well, I don't know that I can blame him very much. I think if I were to drop into a nice fortune like that I'd stay abroad for a year or two anyhow."

"No, that isn't it. Barrowcliff is not staying because he is so fond of the country."

"No?"

"No, he would much prefer to be back in the United States."

"Then why doesn't he come? What is there to prevent him?"

"It seems that when he left New York he failed to provide himself with a return ticket."—Truth.

Teacher—Can you take five from three, Johnny?

Johnny—Yes. I borrow two, and then I can do it.

"But if your pa gives you 3 cents and tells you to go to the candy store to buy 5 cents' worth of candy, how would you do then?"

"I'd keep the 3 cents and tell the man to charge the 5 cents' worth of candy to pa."—Texas Siftings.

Making Sure.

"You must take exercise," said the physician.

"I know it," replied the patient. "It goes against my disposition terribly, but I have a scheme that will fix it all right."

"What is that?"

"I'll go to the races two or three times a week and not buy a round trip ticket."—Washington Star.

DEAFNESS SOMETIMES USEFUL.

In This Instance, However, It Cost an Extra Quarter.

"There is an advantage in being deaf if you only know the exact time not to hear," said L. T. Salignac of Philadelphia, "but the difficulty is to discriminate just when that time is. I have a friend who made, or rather tried to make, capital out of the misfortune nature had sent upon him, but he was continually making mistakes. Being a politician, as any of that kin knows, he met with plenty of instances where it was advisable not to hear. My friend ran for governor of Maryland once, and, while he was defeated, he was extremely popular and well known all over the state, from the urchin in the gutter to the millionaire in his palace.

"I went fishing down in the Delaware bay one summer with him, and the boat made a landing at one of the towns on our way down. He was no sooner seen than a chorus greeted him from the wharf with 'Hello, governor!' He acknowledged the compliment with a graceful tip of the hat. As we walked down the gangplank one fellow, a little more obtrusive than the rest, pushed his way up to the side of my friend and bellowed out, knowing the failing in his hearing, 'Say, guv'ner, old man, can't you loan me a quarter?'

"Of course this was one of the occasions upon which my friend's auricular organs failed to perform their duty. He walked on as if he had not heard a word, while to my invitation to take a drink, given in a moderate tone of voice, he gave a ready assent. As we walked on a little farther the man persisted. This time he came up to my friend and shouted at the top of his voice in his ear, 'Say, guv'ner, can't you loan me 50 cents?' My friend turned, and in a quiet, dignified manner said, without a smile, as he tossed him the half dollar: 'Confound your impertinence! I should have heard you the first time.'"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

AN OUTLAW FORTRESS.

The Cliff From Which the Sizemore Band Shot Down Travelers.

On the left bank of the Holston river, in Hawkins county, Tenn., is a cliff which has some local fame. It is of solid stone, perpendicular from the base up and is something over a hundred feet high. From the top of it the country is visible for miles and miles, affording a grand view of the hill, mountain and stream. A few feet back from the edge are still plainly to be seen the earthworks forming the rendezvous of the celebrated Sizemore and his gang of desperadoes.

From the top of the cliff they commanded a full view of a much used public road, together with two fords above and below, and a great number of hapless soldiers as well as private citizens who had lucklessly incurred their anger fell victims to their unerring rifle bullets as they attempted to pass all unconscious of danger.

Very near this cliff is a little cave at least a mile deep, on the sides of which are written the names of once prominent people who have long since passed away, the dates running back perhaps a hundred years. In one of the caverns is a perfect little table, formed of a flat rock. During the war this cave was used by some soldiers as a place for making saltpeter, the hoppers being still in a state of preservation, the earth looking as if it had been dug but recently.—New York Commercial.

RASH RAJAH.

Twenty-three Seidlitz Powders Made Him Seek His Doctor's Life.

An English doctor attached to the court of a rajah made himself most indispensable to his highness. He had fortunately also made a friend of his prime minister.

On one occasion his highness, being slightly indisposed, had taken, by the doctor's advice, a seidlitz powder, with which he expressed himself delighted. Its tendency to "boil and fizz, ready to blow your nose off," seemed to him to "scatter coolness," and he seemed so much better after taking it that the doctor felt himself justified in joining a hunting party.

Presently a horseman from the palace, in the confidential employment of the grand vizier, galloped up to him.

"My master bids me tell you," he said, "that his highness has broken open your medicine chest and taken first all the white powders and then all the blue."

"Gracious goodness," cried the doctor, "there were 23 of each of them!"

"My master adds," continued the messenger, dropping his voice, "that you had better make for the frontier without one moment's delay."

The doctor put spurs to his horse and never drew rein till he was "out of the jurisdiction of the court."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Man Without a Show.

He said if he'd had a fair opportunity he'd have made a sensation in any community, and the great name of John Alexander McCrary would have echoed o'er mountain and ocean and prairie with all the reverberant thunder of fame.

If he'd not been cornered by rough circumstances, he'd have shown us a man like we see in romances, for fate had sent him a superior shipment of spiritual, moral and mental equipment, sufficient to gain the whole planet's acclaim.

If he hadn't been rubbed out by fate's merciless friction, he'd have shown us a man like we read of in fiction—a man of unquestioned superb intuition, an Amalek giant of great erudition, the best product ground out by the gods' roaring mills.

For his head was a great intellectual hummock, but it took all his time to attend to his stomach. Fate might sing of him in her mightiest carol, if he didn't have to pay for his wearing apparel and work all the time just to pay up his bills.

But, though he made all of those mighty pretenses, he was hampered, you see, by his laundry expenses. In the grainfields of fame he had been a strong reaper were it not for his low, sordid boarding house keeper, who for very coarse viands demanded large pay.

His clothier felt not his great genius resplendent, his tailor felt not his wide talents transcendent, his furnisher made no alarming deduction for his large and phenomenal cranial construction, and, like plain men, he paid for his three meals a day.—New York World.

The Last Long Sleep.

Familiarity with death is apt to alter one's earlier conceptions of it. Two ideas are very generally accepted which experience shows to be false. One is that the dying usually fear death, and the other that the act of dying is accompanied by pain. It is well known to all physicians that when death is near its terrors do not seem to be felt by the patient. Unless the imagination is stimulated by the frightful portrayal of the supposed "pangs of death" or of the sufferings which some believe the soul must endure after dissolution it is rare indeed that the last days or hours of life are passed in dread.

Most sick persons are very, very tired. Sleep—long, quiet sleep—is what they want. I have seen many people die. I have never seen one who seemed to fear death, except when it was or seemed to be rather far away. Even those who are constantly haunted, while strong and well, with a dread of the end of life forget their fear when that end is at hand.—Scribner's Magazine.

DEFENDING LORDS

Upper Chamber Claimed to Be a Necessity.

He Answers the Arraignment of Rosebery.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 31.—A conference of the Scottish Conservatory associations was held here last night. Ex-Prime Minister Salisbury made a speech in which he scathingly criticised a recent speech of Prime Minister Rosebery. He described the agitation against the house of lords as a a herring drawn across the path of home rule.

LORD SALISBURY.

He did not believe, he declared, that Lord Rosebery was in earnest in his proposed vague resolutions regarding the house of lords. It would be harmless, and if submitted to the country it would be in no wise like the foreign referendum to which Lord Rosebery had likened it. He, himself, would not speak against a referendum; in fact, he thought it decidedly advantageous in the form in which it existed in America for good government and the stability of the country.

Doubtless Archbishop Walsh's well-drilled battalions would pass Lord Rosebery's resolutions against the voice of the country. "Do you," he asked, "imagine that the resolution would possess any moral authority whatever, or that any sane human being could imagine that England or Scotland would abase themselves so far as to put their necks under the heels of south and west Ireland?

Will Not Be Recognized by the Courts.

"It is a ludicrous proposal. They may pass all the resolutions they like, but a bill embodying such proposals will never be accepted by the house of lords, and, therefore, will never be recognized by the courts of law. No such change in the constitution is possible without a considerable majority of the people being in its favor."

Lord Salisbury argued that on several occasions, in his experience, the house of lords supported Liberal measures against Conservative opposition. If the house of lords had become virtually a conservative body, it was because Mr. Gladstone's ill-advised Irish policy had driven them in that direction.

If the Irish question was once moved out of the way, the house of lords would gradually, though perhaps slowly, settle back into the old position in which the parties were evenly balanced. It was well for the safety of institutions, which, once overthrown, could never be replaced, that the balance of the party in the house of lords should be on the side of conservatism.

The ex-prime minister added: "If the question of handing the government of the country over entirely to a single chamber should come before the country, which I do not believe it will do, we would have to confront the greatest danger that the community has had to face in many centuries. Remember that the domination of a single chamber has not been adopted by any considerable country on the surface of the earth.

House of Lords a Safeguard.

"Can it be supposed possible to govern India by an independent house of commons, where the ideas of faddists might become law without a chance of an appeal to a higher authority? One other point, but for the house of lords you would now have 80 votes in the house of commons saleable to the highest bidding party, making you and your interests slaves of Archbishop Walsh and his friends."

Without saying anything about the maintenance of the house of lords in its present form, he appealed to all who believed in the religious institutions of the country, in freedom, in the security of contract and the sanctity of property to combine to support the second chamber, which he declared was necessary to control the decisions of the elective chamber.

Replying to the vote of thanks extended to him by the meeting, the ex-prime minister took occasion to say: "All of Lord Rosebery's talk about my power in the house of lords is nonsense, and an attempt to make capital against the house of lords by using my name as imagining that any member of that house has any motive whatever in paying more deference to my opinion than might be due to the argument I used, is an audacious, impudent fabrication, unworthy of the man who made it."

Its Twenty-Sixth Convention.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Congregational denomination begun yesterday. Delegates are present from all over the United States.

An Attempt at Suicide.

MARLBORO, Mass., Oct. 31.—Jasper L. Sloan attempted suicide by shooting yesterday on the grave of a little daughter, recently deceased. He will recover.

MERCIER IS DEAD.

Canada's Premier Had Long Suffered From a Complication of Diseases.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Honore Mercier, ex-premier of Quebec, died yesterday. The end had been expected at any time during the preceding 24 hours, and hope of recovery had been given up weeks ago. In fact from the moment that he first fell seriously sick on Aug. 14 last it had been felt that he was on his deathbed. Mr. Mercier had been suffering from a complication of diseases for years past.

The last rites of the church were administered by Rev. Father Garceau, S. J. Mr. Mercier was unconscious most of the time. Morphine was administered at 10:30 o'clock Monday night and the patient became much agitated. It was then feared that a reaction would take place and the end might come any minute. Throughout the night the vital spark flickered, growing lower and lower, until the end came.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Mercier's death was expected at any time, the news has created great interest here and the bulletin boards containing the information were soon surrounded by crowds eager to learn the particulars of the once great French-Canadian leader's last hour.

Secured Her Child.

BRISTOL, N. H., Oct. 31.—After six years of searching all over New England by detectives, lawyers and relatives, and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, Mrs. Lucy M. Green of Worcester, Mass., who alleges that through the agents of the Children's Aid society of Massachusetts she was robbed of her two children, Paul Revere and Cora, in 1888, was taken to her son's side late Monday afternoon. Yesterday, by outwitting those in whose care he has been placed, she took Paul, and last night crossed the boundary line of Massachusetts with him. Whither she went is unknown.

Lexow Developments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The examination of Commissioner Sheehan occupied nearly the entire session of the Lexow committee yesterday. The name of Superintendent Byrnes was most often on the lips of the witness. The subject of a new police signal system was introduced, and Mr. Goff used a deadly parallel, whereby it was made to appear that the language of the advertising circular of the Municipal Signal company of Boston and that of the report made by the commissioner on the signal systems was identical.

The Reconstructed Cabinet.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The emperor and empress yesterday gave a farewell audience to ex-Chancellor von Caprivi. The appointment of Baron Marschal von Bieberstein as a Prussian minister is a valuable proof that the German policy will not be changed. It is believed that Dr. von Schelling, Prussian minister of justice, and Herr von Heyden-Cadow, Prussian minister of agriculture, will be replaced in order to strengthen the ministry.

Still Missing.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Annie M. Thompson remains unheard from. Long suspense and anxiety are breaking her mother's heart. This case in its present bearings is one of the most mysterious that has for years come under the notice of the local police. The girl dropped out of sight Oct. 2, left a pleasant home and indulgent parents, affectionate sisters and a host of friends, for what no one in the city seems to be able to tell.

A Five-Cornered Debate.

Resisting a Cutdown.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 31.—Winders at the Columbia mill, 29 in number, on account of a cutdown from 25 to 40 per cent, left the mill yesterday on strike. Doffers in the ring spinning room of City mill No. 2 also went out, refusing to work under a cutdown of 5 per cent.

Judaism Recognized.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 31.—Committee of the house of magnates discussed the bills for freedom of worship and recognition of Judaism, which were sent back by the deputies. The bill for the recognition of Judaism was adopted without change.

WANT HIS RELEASE.

More Particulars About the Theft of Irons From a Store.

Several days ago Philip Ouillette, a lad of 18 years, was sent to the reformatory for the larceny of two flat irons from the Bon Marche. An effort will be made to secure the release of Ouillette, and the facts in the case as told by his friends are that Ouillette took his father's wagon to take a trunk of a Mr. Durand to the depot. Durand wanted a ride to the depot also and got on to the seat. While driving up Cabot street Durand fell from the seat and was run over.

The boy got scared and jumped from the wagon and ran to the depot, boarded a train and skipped to Montreal. He remained there one week and then returned to this city. During the week he said he had nothing to eat, and upon arriving in this city, he was hungry and tired. He was afraid to go home and so stole the flat irons, expecting to sell them and buy food.

OVER HALF A MILLION

Goes to Public Institutions by the Will of the Late Senator Ross.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—The long-disputed will case of the late Senator Ross of Quebec has at last been settled. The Morrin college and the high school receive between them $170,000, the Jeffy Hale hospital. $150,000; the three Anglican charities of Quebec, $40,000; the French mission of the Presbyterian church in Canada, $30,000; the Woman's Christian association, $10,000; the Ladies' Protestant home, $40,000; the Ladies' City Mission, $5000, and over $3000 to the Irish Protestant Benevolent society of Quebec. All this money has been paid.

Frank Ross, as part of the settlement, has agreed to remit at once $50,000, to be employed in benevolent purposes in Carluke, Scotland, and also to devote $80,000 to the establishment and maintenance of a home for old men and boys of Protestants of all denominations. The last amount takes the place of a corresponding sum which in the original proposal was to go to the Finlay asylum and the Church of England male orphan asylum of Quebec.

HILL'S FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT

The Betting Favors Morton—Seventies Realize the Strength of Tammany Hall.

NEW YORK, Oct 31.—The declaration of William R. Grace that the state Democracy organization is supporting David B. Hill, and is not responsible for any Wheeler pasters, is received with incredulity by many who still insist that secretly, if not openly, that faction is in favor of Hill's defeat.

The adherents of the latter candidate express much gratification at the numbers and character of the Cooper Union meeting Monday night and are confident that the Democratic reform ticket will make a good showing on election day. Many anti-Hill Democrats will, it is generally believed, vote straight for Morton, taking the ground, as one of them remarked yesterday, that a vote for Wheeler will only be half a vote against Hill, and that the Wheeler votes are depended upon to aid Morton any way.

The Hill men are as confident as ever, referring with special satisfaction to the personal fight their candidate is making. Most of them, however, do not seek to conceal their disappointment or anger that their candidate has not received open and active encouragement from the national administration.

Republicans Confident.

The Republicans abate none of their claims, and insist with the general Republican tendency this anti-year and the Democratic defection from Hill, the latter will be "snowed under."

There has been little betting so far in the campaign, but the reports of wagers at the Stock Exchange and elsewhere show odds on Morton, not unfrequently of two to one. Smaller odds are given on Strong against Grant.

The perfection of the Tammany organization throughout the city is making the supporters of the committee of 70 rather cautious at risking their money, however much they anticipate a great Tammany uprising.

The Hill Democrats are pleased by the announcement that Speaker Crisp has cancelled engagements in order to speak in this city or Brooklyn.

Czar Sinking Rapidly.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 31.—A bulletin from Livadia, timed 10 o'clock last night, says that during the course of the day the spitting of blood by the czar continued. The patient was sometimes seized with fits of shivering. His temperature was 100 Fahrenheit and his pulse 90. The pulsations were weak. Respiration is difficult. His majesty can take little nourishment, and is becoming very weak. The œdema has considerably increased.

Stanton Abbott's Victory.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Stanton Abbott of England and Charles Ghering, ex-amateur champion of the United States, fought here last night. The fight was announced by Referee H. Lee Clarke to be a six-round go. From the start Ghering began to force the fighting, but toward the end of third round Abbott caught Ghering on the point of the jaw and Ghering went down and out.

Hot Politics.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—William S. McNary, regular Democratic candidate for congress, and a number of his friends held a rally in ward 19 last night. The meeting was in an uproar, and the police were called in to preserve order. Ward 19 is a stronghold of Congressman McEttrick, the independent Democratic candidate.

A Peculiar Malady.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31.—For a few weeks past there has been an epidemic flourishing at Wesleyan, and is at present assuming serious proportions. About 35 students are suffering from a sickness pronounced by local doctors to be "continual malarial fever." No reason for the present attack can be given.

Plundered by Pirates.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Advices received from Almeria state that the Italian bark Scutolo, from Philadelphia, Sept. 21, for Naples, with a cargo of petroleum, has arrived there. The captain reports that his vessel was boarded by pirates off Morro Nuova (Africa) and plundered of 1000 boxes of her cargo.

NOW IT IS SPAIN.

Colonial Questions Have Led to the Resignation of the Cabinet.

MADRID, Oct. 31.—As a result of the cabinet council held yesterday the ministers have tendered their resignations. Prime Minister Sagasta has gone to inform the queen regent of the action of the cabinet. It is believed that the crisis will be found to be difficult of solution.

Although the causes that have led to the resignation of the Spanish ministry cannot at present be positively stated, it is pretty safe to assume that the crisis was partly precipitated by colonial questions. The government recently arranged with the Bank of Spain for an advance of 10,000,000 pesetas in Spanish silver dollars to replace the Mexican dollars in the Porto Rico currency.

This project was strenuously opposed by Senor Maura, the colonial minister, but his colleagues persisted in carrying out the arrangement, and Senor Maura resigned. This, however, was but one of the serious differences in the cabinet on the government's colonial policy.

AMERICA AND SCOTLAND.

Trade Between Them Has Boomed Since the Passage of the Wilson Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The United States consul general at Glasgow, in a special report to the department of state, says:

"Large orders are being received by merchants here since the passage of the new United States tariff bill, and many of them have expressed to me the opinion that the coming year will witness an unprecedented trade between Glasgow and the United States, both as to exports and imports. Every indication points that way. The enactment and operation of the law have given a new impetus to trade between Glasgow and the United States, the months of August and September showing a very perceptible increase in the number of invoices and the value of exportations as compared with the preceding months. The value of exportations for the quarter ending June 30, 1894, was $103,674; for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1894, it was $594,543."

Charges Against a Preacher.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—The Herald says: Rev. George E. Dunbar, pastor of the Methodist church in Stoughton, will have to answer charges of obtaining money under false pretences, preferred by the former members of his church at Eastham. Rev. Dr. S. O. Benton, presiding elder of the district, is now investigating the matter. The complainant is Mrs. S. M. Holman a widow, now at a private hospital in Salem, wasting away with consumption and unable to leave her bed. She says Dunbar gave notes for borrowed money, but failed to make them good.

Mrs. Byers to Bring Suits.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The habeas corpus proceedings begun in August by Mrs. Byers against Messrs. Tallman, Davis, Shields and Kimberly, to recover her husband, the Pittsburg millionaire, have been dismissed on motion of her attorney, who says that suit will be brought in Pittsburg for about $250,000 against Mrs. Byers' brother-in-law, A. M. Byers. Action for damages, he said, will also be brought against Dr. Tallman, the physician who, Mrs. Byers claimed, aided in keeping her husband from her.

Reputation Was Good.

BRADFORD, N. H., Oct. 31.—The people of this quiet town are greatly excited over the disappearance of Winfred B. Cilley, postmaster and town treasurer, and it is alleged that he is short in his accounts, not only in the postoffice, but also in the town finances. Cilley's non-appearance is the gossip of nearly all the citizens, as he has been gone from Bradford since last Friday morning. As far as can be ascertained, no one here is aware of his whereabouts. Cilley has been postmaster for about two years. His reputation was of the best.

Overtaken by Fate.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
Western	8,364	9,218	44,216

Drovers are somewhat disturbed as to the new law which is to go into effect regarding the quarantine of milch cows. They must have their stock by Saturday or Sunday or the market day must be changed to Thursday. Either of these plans will necessarily cause an advance in prices, as the cost of landing the stock will be increased, and it is going to be a matter of great risk to drovers to bring stock here. Drovers intend to get together at an early day and take measures whether they will send their stock on earlier or change their market day.

AMERICAN CATTLE CANNOT CARRY TEXAS FEVER

Across the Ocean—Great Surprise at Washington Over the Action of Germany.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The announcement that the embargo placed on American cattle by the senate of Hamburg had been extended to the length of an exclusion of American cattle and dressed meat from every port of Germany was received with surprise by department officials.

That the Texas fever was merely a ground which Germany could adopt for enforcing retaliatory measures against the United States because of the supposed discrimination against German interests in the sugar schedule of the tariff bill was the prevalent impression. The German ambassador, however, assured the secretary of state that the measure of exclusion was inspired solely by sanitary reasons and had no political move behind it.

Secretary Morton had a consultation with Secretary Gresham about the matter yesterday, before the stringent measures just adopted were known. He assured Secretary Gresham that the exportation of Texas fever into Germany by American cattle was altogether improbable, if not impossible, according to the opinions of the pathological experts of the department, and said that he was confident that the supposed discovery of Texas fever

Was a Mistake.

When the dispatch from Berlin was shown to the secretary of agriculture, he expressed surprised. The exclusion of dressed meats he was at a loss to understand, because they are all inspected by competent government officials in this country before they are shipped. Texas fever, moreover, can be carried only by live cattle. The live cattle exported from this country are also inspected at the ports of shipment to see that they are not diseased.

The secretary thinks that the damage to be inflicted on American interests by this action is generally overestimated, as our exports of meats to Germany are comparatively light, aggregating but a small fraction of the exports to Great Britain.

From observations on his recent trip, Secretary Morton is convinced that the exportation of live cattle cannot be made to pay as well as shipping dressed meats.

Knights Disagree.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Local Knights of Labor have been disfranchised from representation at the general assembly which opens its session in New Orleans on Nov. 11. The reason alleged for this action by the Ottawa district assembly is that they are one member short of the required number which entitles them to representation. But the local knights believe that the true reason is that the Sovereign party think the Toronto men are favorable to Powderly.

TALK OF BOODLE

What Witnesses at Aldermanic Trial Had to Say.

PRICE OF A LICENSE SAID TO BE $400.

Some Sensational Facts Are Expected Very Soon.

The trial of the Haverhill aldermen alleged to have been financially interested in the granting of licenses opened at Lawrence, Monday, and was continued yesterday.

City Clerk Roberts testified and then T. H. McDonald says he paid nothing towards the granting of his license. On cross examination by Dist. Attorney Moody he said he had no recollection of conversation with C. W. Arnold, candidate for mayor about paying from $1.. to $2.. apiece for licenses, or of paying money into a pool.

Porter L. Croy, brother of Alderman Croy, testified that he met Kimball and went with him to Boxford. On the drive they talked license.

Kimball said: "Your brother is a fool not to make $400 or $500, when he can just as well as not."

Witness inquired: "Haven't you fixed Aldermen Cafe, Ham, Tilton and Hoyt?" Kimball said, "Yes."

Witness asked where his brother would get the money, and Kimball said they would see to that all right.

Alderman Horace I. Pinkham, who was not a member of the "combine," testified to the special meeting of the aldermen, April 16. Alderman Croy was absent. Mayor Taylor was opposed to granting licenses until a full board was present.

"I was willing," testified the witness, "to go in then and grant all the licenses. The majority of the aldermen desired to grant 15, and I openly said that such a course would look as if they were putting a price on the remainder."

Held a Meeting on City Hall Steps After Being Locked Out.

The license commissioners, the "Big 3" went up to city hall last evening to hold a meeting and they held it too—out in the rain. City hall was locked because the commissioners failed to notify City Messenger Cahill of their intention to hold a meeting.

City hall steps were large enough for the three and all spectators, and there under the shelter of umbrellas, Chairman Finck called to order, the commissioners refused to grant a common victualler's license to Reuben A. Hally, Liberty square.

One Conviction Secured.

Upon the testimony of the two women spotters at Lynn, one hotel keeper was fined $100 and given six months imprisonment, and another hotel keeper discharged because ownership of the liquor could not be proven.

The Dancing Pilgrim Fathers.

Garfield Colony Pilgrim Fathers held its first grand sociable in its new hall last evening. A delightful musical program was carried out under the direction of Mr. W. A. Severance. After the entertainment dancing was begun and McElroy's orchestra furnished music. Mr. F. C. Adams had charge of the floor.

Kaiser Declined to Be Present.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—A monument to Emperor Frederick, father of Emperor William, was unveiled in Wittenberg today, and it creates comment that Emperor William declined to be present. Empress Frederick was also prevented from going to witness the unveiling of her husband's monument.

One More Victim.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 31.—Kasha Goterich, another of the victims of the recent dynamite explosion, died yesterday. This makes four now dead. The reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the crime has been increased from $100 to $500.

NO TEARS SHED

Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott Eulogizes the Blood of Middlesex County.

The assertion that the republican party is afraid of water is only true in part: some republicans like water and will brave a drizzle to hear campaign speeches. Some of them bring their wives while others stay at home and preach their own political doctrine to their wives and sweethearts. Like charity the salvation of a party begins at home. The rally of the calamity party in Huntington hall last night was not overcrowded and the galleries were only half filled. The band played well and the crowd liked it.

The fireworks opened with a vote of thanks by Chairman Kileski to the audience for turning out on so stormy a night.

Mayor Pickman was introduced to preside. He said first of all that the size of the audience augured the size of the victory Tuesday. The history of political organizations is the history of the country. In this latter the issues at times have been clearly marked and defined: at other times less clearly marked. During the war there were two great organizations, republican and democratic, the former stood for freedom; what the democratic party stood for then it mattered not; men rallied to the support of the union. The moral issue was there, standing alone. Since the war another moral issue has been the currency; now there is an industrial issue. The republican party said we believe in the principle of protection; on the other hand was the party standing for revenue only. It was the issue of the last campaign; the republican party was defeated in it. "I am not a calamity orator, but it is not so that with the coming of the democrats came the dark clouds of depression. The people from Maine to California believe that the democratic administration is responsible for it. We have witnessed that the standard of American citizenship has been lowered from that established by noble Benjamin Harrison and his grand administration. "I believe that I am an American" should be the shield for protection to American subjects, just as true as "I am an Englishman" is a shield to British subjects in any part of the world. We hear a great deal about the long twilight of an Arctic sunset, but we hope that the election of next Tuesday will be the sunset of the democratic administration."

Mayor Pickman hoped he was speaking to democrats as they were the people who need republicanism, for the platform of the party was broad enough to admit every class and creed; it is the republican party of Sumner, Lincoln and Greenhalge.

The Lieut. Governor.

Hon. Roger Wolcott was introduced as one of the trustiest, most faithful servants of the commonwealth, and one who will soon be called up higher. He was greeted with applause and then cheers led by ex-Mayor Palmer. The lieut. governor was glad to be present; the large audience was a good omen he thought. He had come very near standing before Lowell audiences previously, but supposed Col. Winslow thought Lowell citizens did not need him while the state ticket was headed by a Lowell man. Campaign speech making is directed by the colonel's hands.

Mr. Wolcott proceeded to handle the history of Massachusetts, beginning with the Pilgrim Fathers, the idea of popular education, the appropriation to put up monuments to mark the places of the first meeting house and first public school, and the difficulty to locate them with several places putting in claims. This shows the grand work of the commonwealth built on the idea of popular education, a place for the people.

The revolution and the part taken in it by Massachusetts men next received attention, with a tribute to the men of Middlesex county. Then the founding of the big cities of the Merrimack valley, the coming of great statesmen, Webster, Phillips, Choate, and the two Massachusetts men who uphold the state's honor in the national senate, Senators Hoar and Lodge.

Lieut. Gov. Wolcott said it was the blood of the men of Middlesex which was first shed in the civil war—Ladd and Whitney, a coincidence with the shedding of the first blood in the revolution.

Such has been the history of our state; truly we can say with St. Paul, "We are no mean citizens of no mean state."

Mr. Wolcott's panegyric of old Middlesex was a grand one, quite out of the line of campaign speeches. He said it was for us to see that the spirit of liberty is transmitted to our sons, and our sons' sons.

He claimed that the democrats are not saying much about state issues, they want national issues. The reasons are that they have nothing to criticize in the administration of Frederic T. Greenhalge.

Proceeding to discussing of issues, he said that protection is not a new thing. The tariff bills by the first congress was signed by the first president. Its preamble said tariff was intended to promote American industries. Those men—Alexander Hamilton, James Madison who framed the first bills were men of grand political sagacity. The policy of protection has been followed with more or less deviation from that time to this. It is, I understand the ground principle of the republican party. Under its 30 years of continued administration the country doubled, and the best barometer of it, I believe is the showing of savings of working people in the banks.

A few years a change came, democrats made great promises; the people gave ear and two years ago every branch of the government was turned over to the democratic party for the first time since James Buchanan.

Then the speaker began to tell of alleged evils from which the country has suffered and urging the people to rise up in their might and make a change. He acknowledged that the senate would remain democratic but had great hopes that the majority in the house would be a big one. Considerable attention was given to booming Knox as the congressional candidate.

He sympathized with Congressman Stevens, he said, for his perplexity on the tariff bill, but applauded him for dodging a vote on it. In conclusion Mr. Wolcott took up the patriotic strain of his opening remarks and called upon the men of Middlesex to rise up in their might for the salvation (?) of the country from democratic rule.

More Patriotic Words.

In introducing the next speaker Mayor Pickman said that he hoped the crowd would stay and devote one night to the grand old cause of republicanism. Sec. H. A. Thomas expressed his pleasure at being present before such a sea of faces. He did not know what to talk about but it reminded him of a story of a speaker who asked his audience what he should talk about and some one yelled "about a minute." Mr. Thomas spoke of the history of the state as the history of the republican party, and began a glowing peroration to the nobility of the old Bay State men. He reiterated the tribute to the Harrison administration and how the Star and Stripes were upheld. He did not blame the million and a half of rank and file of democrats for making a change two years ago when such inducements were made out, but he did charge the leaders with inconsistency in failing to carry out the promises of the campaign, and only furnishing the country a patch work tariff bill. We heard at Music hall last week how the flag was hauled down in Samoa; a paper called it jingoism; if that is jingoism the more we have of it the better. We want the Stars and Stripes respected and held sacred. Every man in the country is the equal of his neighbor as long as he obeys her laws and upholds her honor. We hear on the other side of housings of the poor; on this side we speak of the houses of the people. Mr. Thomas closed in glowing language by referring to Holmes' poem on the Ship of State, and a closing incidents in Daniel Webster when he wanted the flag at the masthead where he could see it until he passed away. The republican party wants the flag run up to the masthead on Tuesday next to show the world at large that Massachusetts has done her duty.

Right From New York.

Mr. Malbon Chance of the New York Tribune was introduced as "Colonel," and a stranger in Lowell.

In rising he corrected the chairman by saying that he was not a colonel, (he ought to be,) and that a year ago he stood on the same platform, spoke to a Lowell audience and predicted a majority of 30,000 for Greenhalge, and he proved a prophet. He wanted then and there to predict 60,000 for Mr. Greenhalge.

Mr. Chance began to tell stories to illustrate his salient points and generally he got a merry laugh from the audience. He declared up and down that McKinleyism is still alive and that the object of the republican party in coming into power again was to change over the tariff. He defended the principle of protection and paid great tributes to the memory of James G. Blaine, and to Tom Reed and Bill McKinley. He criticized Wilson's speeches at English banquets and wound up with a grand panegyric to everything republican by predicting the approach of the millenium if only the g. o. p. is returned to power.

Mayor Pickman's Defence.

The surprise of the evening came when Mayor Pickman as good as declared himself out for the nomination of mayor for the third time. He quoted Edward B. Peirce of the night before, in saying that the mayor should bring his high tax rate in a glass case for exhibition. The mayor said that reference to ancient history disclosed the fact that E. B. Peirce was in the council in 1884, the year of the highest tax rate.

DON'T FOOL WITH EXPLOSIVES.

Smoke Talk of the Mathew Institute Which Was Instructive to All Who Heard It—The Affair One of Great Success.

The "smoke talk," the first in the series of members' entertainments was held last evening at the Mathew Temperance Institute hall, which was crowded with members and their friends, each member being privileged to bring a friend.

The regular meeting was first held and a number of propositions were received. A committee of twenty-five was appointed to arrange for the observance of the anniversary of the society.

Vice President Walter V. Hickey then introduced Mr. John Tobin, a teacher in the High school, who spoke for half an hour on "High Explosives." He commanded the closest attention as his remarks were couched in simple language and were very interesting to the members.

He treated on gun powder, gun cotton, dynamite and nitro glycerine and explained in detail and from personal experience the manufacture of these explosives. He explained that the safest of the high explosives is gun cotton, inasmuch as it is ground to a pulp, then washed to free it from acid. It possesses great merit for naval purposes, inasmuch as it can be kept wet all the time. When desired it may be exploded by a little dry gun cotton.

He explained that dualin is made from nitro glycerine and common sawdust. Of course there are different charges in dualin as in dynamite, ranging all the way from 4 to 95 per cent.

He explained the danger of dualin, much of which arises from the methods employed in thawing it out. In his opinion the safest way is to get something in the shape of a dinner pail. Fill the lower portion with hot water and in the upper place the explosive and allow the steam from the water to thaw out dualin. He said that he had read of an incident when a man held the dualin over a fire. There was an explosion, the pail went to pieces, and the man was uninjured. A few days later another man tried the same thing with the result that he and two other men were killed. Explosions are very deceiving and it is difficult for any one to tell how they are going to act.

Mr. Tobin exhibited samples of two kinds of gunpowder, also gun cotton, and nitro-glycerine, and a piece of boiler plate showing the indentition caused by the explosion of gun powder. He was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his interesting talk.

The following entertainment program was offered: Piano solo, William McAloon; vocal solo, John Connors, Michael Gorman, Patrick Coppinger and Michael Kennedy; readings, Thomas Muldoon, J. B. Coughlin, Edward F. Slattery and James O'Sullivan.

Rev. Fr. McManus delivered a brief address.

During the entertainment the members smoked "T. D's" and afterwards refreshments were served.

FOSS AND FRIENDS ARE STILL PROMISING LICENSES.

To Men Who Want to Enter the Liquor Business—Brady's Energy and Devotion to Labor—The Weavers' Particulars Bill May be Repealed.

As an instance of Senator Brady's energy and devotion to the interest of his constituents the following story is told: A young man who was prominently mentioned in this city for inspector of wires called upon the senator for a letter of recommendation to the West End railway company as he was there seeking a position. The senator agreed to give him such a letter and told him to call later. The electrician called and to his great surprise Senator Brady put into his hands a petition to the West End company signed by all the members of the senate with the exception of a few who were absent.

Another incident which occurred while Senator Brady was in New York illustrates his great devotion to his constituents. He was in New York with a legislative committee and happened to meet Supt. Crowley. He had a most cordial welcome for Mr. Crowley, invited him to dinner with the committee and showed him every mark of kindness. When the festivities were over Mr. Brady drew from his pocket a list of applicants for work on the street department and he insisted that Mr. Crowley should put the most needy of them to work.

While the weavers particulars bill was under discussion in the legislature, Senator Brady's devotion to the interests of labor was so noticeable that he was appointed to draft a bill to cover the best points in the several bills submitted. This duty was faithfully performed after getting the views of experienced operatives in different cities upon the question. The consequence was, that the bill was framed so as to include the widest protection for measures which the constitution would permit. The constitutionality of that bill is liable to be attacked in the next legislature if Senator Brady be not returned to defend it. That is a question of great importance to operatives.

***

Candidate Foss is working druggists, speak easies, and men who want to enter the liquor business next year. By some means he is convincing them that by supporting him they can best secure a license but they forget that the commission has already stated that any man promised a license by a politician in lieu of political service will be sure not to get one. The men who are thus working for Foss are doing so under a delusion. If Brady be defeated men who want licenses next year will be blamed for it and they will be punished for their treachery by a no license vote. For this reason it is best for the liquor dealers to do all in their power for Senator Brady's re-election.

The labor organizations should stand by him as he has stood by them, both in the house and the senate.

The democrats of the city should all stand by Senator Brady if they want their party to win at the city election.

It will be very encouraging to the democracy to elect their senator. It will be an augury of victory in December.

***

The democrats of Lowell are elated at the excellent prospect of rolling up a majority for Mr. Fifield. In Lawrence the conviction has grown within the last week that Mr. Fifield will be the next congressman from this district. The reason is plain. Mr. Fifield wants the present bill to get a fair trial before any other tariff legislation is given to the country. Mr. Knox wants the present bill changed just as soon as possible. Mr. Fifield wants free coal and free iron ore for New England industries as soon as these can be obtained without disturbing the business interests of the country. Mr. Knox is opposed to free coal and free iron ore on the ground that although they would benefit New England industries they would injure the mining districts. He is more anxious for those than for New England. Fifield like Mr. Stevens will stand for New England leaving other congressmen to fight for the mining interests. It is each for his constituents with the democrats; but with republicans it is each for high tariff regardless of who suffers.

MARTIN'S BAIL IS REDUCED.

HE IS HELD FOR TEN DAYS ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Not Yet Bailed and Reason for Delay is That the Government is Not Ready.

Michael J. Martin, the 17 year old boy who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Patrick H. Buckley a week ago Saturday, was held in $6000 for a hearing ten days hence in court today. It is understood the government is not ready. Bail was reduced $2000.

The case of George McCoy for alleged embezzlement of $45 from May Taskan. Lawyer Hogan appeared for the complainant and Lawyer Donahue for the defendant. The complainant testified that she had known McCoy since the week after the Fourth of July and had given him money "to mind" as they intended to get married. She gave him the money at different times until the total sum reached about $45. She asked him to return it more than once when they were in Boston and he put her off. When she asked the second time he went into a barroom opposite the depot telling her to wait outside. She waited and he went out of a side door. They met afterwards in the depot; he was then making preparations to go to New Brunswick. They went to Boston to get married as his mother objected to her. Lawyer Donohue put the Taskan girl through a cross examination which brought out admissions in regard to her characters which were positively startling.

The witness was very cool on cross examination and Mr. Donahue's questions did not seem to bother her at all.

After considerable evidence some of which would not look well in print, the court found McCoy not guilty and discharged him.

Daniel Curry was in court yesterday on a charge of assault and battery on his wife. The latter failed to appear in court. She was there today having been arrested on a capias. She gave satisfactory reasons and was dismissed. Her husband was continued one month on his own recognizance as the evidence didn't show any kind of an assault.

Eight drunks, two fined and six released.

The police are after those who keep open shop illegally on the Lord's day. William A. Hayward who keeps at the corner of Howard and Chelmsford street was fined $5.

Joseph Begin is a young man, who has been employed by Marie Sylvester of Woonsocket, R. I., selling sausages at $15 a week. He is now under arrest for alleged embezzlement of $52 from his boss. Begin claims that he expended the amount alleged to have been embezzled in replacing some of the sausage sent up that was unfit to sell with good meat. Lawyer Lemereux appears for Begin.

BIG LEAGUE BOWLING DATES.

THREE LOWELL CLUBS WILL MEET THE STRONG TEAMS.

Schedule of Fifteen Weeks Carefully Laid Out—News About Lowell Bowlers and Games Bowled.

The schedule of the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling League has been completed and approved by the league board of managers. It covers a season of 15 weeks. The opening games will be played on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 13.

There will be no games from Dec. 20 until Jan. 1. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are the bowling evenings of the week.

The six clubs comprising the first division will play three games with each other, and the eight clubs in both of the other division will play two games with each other. The neutral alley games will be played on the last five Monday evenings of the season, that is, Jan. 28, Feb. 4, Feb. 11, Feb. 18 and Feb. 25. The Feb. 25 games are the only ones scheduled for that week, and these are the last scheduled games. The play-off between the winners of three divisions for the championship will be decided later.

The Vespers and Les Miserables are in the first division and the Highlands in the second. Here are the games arranged:

Second week, Nov. 20—B. A. A. vs. Vesper; Melrose Athletic vs. Miserables; Arlington vs. Lowell Highland.

Fourth week, Dec. 3—Vesper vs. Melrose Athletic; Les Miserables vs. Salem; Jamacia vs. Lowell Highland.

Fifth week, Dec. 12—Highland vs. Allston; Salem vs. Vesper; Casino vs. Miserables.

Sixth week, Dec. 18—909th Artillery vs. Highlands; Salem vs. Vespers; Casinos vs. Les Miserables.

Eighth week, Jan. 8—Old Dorchester vs. Lowell Highlands; Salem vs. Les Miserables; Melrose Athletics vs. Vesper.

Ninth week—Jan. 15—Vesper vs Salem; Miserables vs Casino; Highland vs Arlington.

Tenth week—Jan. 22—Charlestown vs Lowell Highland; Les Miserables vs Vesper.

Eleventh week—Jan. 28—Les Miserables vs B. A. A.; Salem vs Vesper; (all on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Jamaica;

Twelfth week, Feb. 4.—Vesper vs Melrose Athletics; Casinos vs Les Miserables. (on neutral alleys); Allston vs Highlands.

Thirteenth week, Feb. 11—Vespers vs Casino; Les Miserables vs Salem, (on neutral alleys); Highlands vs 909th Artillery.

Fourteenth week, Feb. 18—Melrose Athletics vs Les Miserables; B. A. A. vs Vesper, (on neutral alleys); Highlands vs Old Dorchester.

Fifteenth week (all neutral alleys)—Monday, Feb. 25, Salem vs Melrose Athletic, Boston Athletic vs Casino, Vesper vs Les Miserables.

By the above schedule it will be seen that the great games of local interest will be those between the Vespers and Miserables, in the third and tenth weeks and then on neutral alleys, probably the Highland club. The schedule it will be seen cuts out some warm work for the first division teams as the Casinos, Salems and B. A. A. teams are likely to be stronger than ever before. The Miserables are settling down to work in anticipation of a hard struggle at the opening games. The schedule indicates that the games will be played on the club first mentioned, so that week after next three games will be played on Lowell alleys.

The Interstate League.

The new league, mention of which was made yesterday, promises to make things more than ordinarily lively when it gets started. When the schedule is made out more particulars can be obtained.

It is not many seasons distant before there will be a New England league. The Interstate league will be governed by Massachusetts league rules.

Bowling at the Les Miserables and Olympic alleys and at the Columbian alleys way up on Gorham street is of such volume that it indicates the sport will be followed this year better than ever before.

The team tournament of the Vesper club opening next week, will be in divisions, the winners in each division to play off for the championship of the fall tournament. The schedule will be shorter and the interest kept up better.

The makeup of the Vesper team is yet undecided, for Goulding and Thorpe do not care to bowl.

Julian Hood is expected to be in trim and the boys are banking on him as right hand man to "Old Reliable" Harry Corwin. Fred Grover and Dr. Harris, will probably be on it with the Whittier brothers and Will Gerrish to draw on. There are several strong bowlers coming to the front.

If new bowling alleys are put in the basement of Mechanics hall for club men it will help the sport greatly. There will also be pool and billiard tables.

The new alleys at the Palmer street engine house are pronounced by Veteran Jim McLaughlin, the equal of any in the city.

Games Last Night.

At the Highland club the Miserables club fell before the prowess of the Highland boys, as follows:

Highlands—Cheney 472, Church 508, Leighton 430, Dickerman 495, Shaw 529, total 2431.

Miserables—Swift 491, Purcell 443, Donohue 435, Seede 520, Farrell 494, total 2383.

On the Olympic alleys the Putnam Guards beat the Centrals by the following score:

It was a lively hearing in which Lawyer O'Connell figured, as well as Harvey & Pickman, counsel for the defence.

A later dispatch says: "The czar is dying. His death may be expected at any moment."

In our large stock this has to be done every week.

Today, for example, we've taken half a dozen lots of Men's Suits from Rogers, Peet & Co., marked them $15, including at this price suits that have sold for $18, $20, and $22.

CAR SHOPS AFIRE

FACTORY AND HOTEL ARE IN ASHES NOW.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 30.—One of the worst fires this city has suffered for years was that which broke out in the counting room of the Newburyport Car works, by the upsetting of an oil stove. The flames enveloped the small office building and then leaped to the factory of Burley, Stevens & Co., burning it to the ground, together with the car works and the Eagle hotel owned by John Leary, adjoining.

The car works had been shut down for some time while the factory was running full blast. The total loss will exceed $80,000, the factory being worth at least $50,000.

Help was summoned from Salem, Haverhill and Portsmouth and at 11 o'clock was under control.

THE LABOR organizations of this city may well exclaim: Save us from our friends—the populists.

IS IT possible that the Mail believes half what it says about the tariff? How can any protectionist reason out that free coal would injure New England industries?

THE RALLY of Monday evening was an enthusiastic one. The wit of the chairman, the patriotic arraignment of the A. P. A. by Senator Fitzgerald and the logic of Josiah Quincy were the features of the occasion.

FOSS'S LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

The Citizen objects to the SUN'S reference to Mr. Foss's legislative record and especially to the charge of being absent at about half the roll calls. In the index of the journal are given over one hundred roll calls but in that list it appears is included the cases on which roll calls were demanded and refused. Those in which the yeas, nays and pairs are given have been examined and the dates set down in two columns, one marked Absent and the other Present. It will be at once apparent that on the same day there were several roll calls at some of which Mr. Foss was absent while he was present at others on that day. The following list we can vouch to be correct:

Resigned June 12.

It will be noticed that towards the last part of the session Mr. Foss attended more regularly than during the preceding months. The only reason that can be assigned for this is that certain corporations petitioned for increased privileges and he probably intended to vote for them. Another motive was that he wanted to get acquainted in order that he might be legislated into a license commissionership. He was sure to be present when his vote was needed on the telephone bill in favor of increasing the capital stock as on June 8. In fact a close examination of Mr. Foss' record reveals the fact that although absent at a majority of the roll calls, he managed to be present whenever any popular measure was under consideration that he might vote against it.

NO-LICENSE THREATENED.

There are rumors of opposition to certain democratic candidates by certain liquor dealers and there is positive proof that certain men working in the interests of Mr. Foss are doing so because they have been promised liquor licenses next year. They may have been promised licenses by men who are unable to deliver the goods and their names will be sent to the license commission in order that this custom of making promises that can never be fulfilled in lieu of political service will be stamped out.

Should Mr. Brady be defeated there will be a concerted movement for no-license and it will probably be carried. This is one way in which treachery can be punished. Personal grievances should not be allowed to militate against a party candidate. Those who work against the party for personal reasons will be punished by the party.

It is time that some of those who profess to be democrats and support republican candidates were called to account.

There is one man running a speak-easy this year under protection of the law and although a democrat last year he is this year working for Foss, probably because he finds that the easiest way to evade punishment for violating the law. Those who mean to enter the liquor business next year and those who want a license vote to be carried should endeavor to elect Hon. Peter J. Brady. In doing that they will be advancing their own interests, because if he be defeated liquor dealers will be blamed and a very slight agitation will result in carrying the no-license vote.

WE WOULD respectfully ask the Lowell Citizen:

Have Mr. Knox's fellow citizens of Lawrence ever thought enough of him to call him to public office?

Has Mr. Knox's name ever been suggested in the public affairs of Lawrence as a citizen whose influence would be for the good of the city?

HON. GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS is inquiring how much the silence of the republican party in regard to the A. P. A. has cost. The compact has certainly been well kept by the G. O. P.

THEY ALL WENT.

A Tale of Two Dollars and How It Was Spent.

The Templetons had decided to go to the theater. They had set aside $2 for the tickets, and Mr. Templeton thought if he economized a bit on cigars they might go and get some luncheon after the show too.

When Mr. Templeton came home that night, he was met at the door by his wife, who said, "Well, Fred, I've decided that we won't go to the theater tonight."

"Won't go?" said Fred. "Why not, I'd like to know?"

Mrs. Templeton's face took on a serious look. "Mrs. Byrnes was in to see me this afternoon," she replied, "and she told me about that unfortunate White family that lives on the next block. She said that he had not had a bit of work for six months; that they had pawned everything they had that the brokers would take and were now on the verge of starvation. I used to know her when she went to school. I thought we might forego the pleasure of the visit to the theater, and I sent Johnny around with the $2 to the Whites. If it will do them any good. I knew you'd not begrudge, and besides"—here she bit her lip savagely and jabbed her handkerchief into one of her eyes—"I didn't care very much about going anyway, so you needn't feel bad."

"By Jove, you are a noble little woman!" said Templeton, kissing her fondly. "I guess you're right about the money doing the Whites a lot of good, but you needn't be disappointed for all that. A fellow I know gave me a couple of lithograph tickets, and we're going anyway. I was going to give you that $2 for your own."

They were very happy at the supper table, and about a quarter after 7 started for the theater. The lithograph tickets called for seats pretty well toward the rear of the house. The Templetons got there as the orchestra began to play. Just as the footlights were turned up a seedy looking man and a faded woman took the two vacant seats just in front of them. Mrs. Templeton nudged her husband and said, "If that isn't Laura Smith, who married that White fellow, I'm badly fooled."

Mr. Templeton peered around and made up his mind that his wife was right. They didn't enjoy the first act much. After the curtain dropped the woman turned around and recognized Mrs. Templeton. "Why, how do do?" she said gushingly. "I haven't seen you in an age."

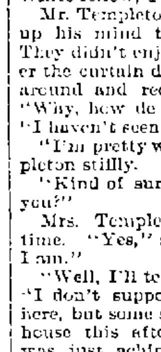

"I'm pretty well," responded Mrs. Templeton stiffly.

"Kind of surprised to see us here, ain't you?"

Mrs. Templeton was furious by this time. "Yes," she said, "I must say that I am."

"Well, I'll tell you," the woman said. "I don't suppose I've got any business here, but some softy sent around $2 to the house this afternoon, and me and Will was just achin to see the show, so we came."

Just here the usher tapped Mr. Templeton on the shoulder and told him that if he did not stop laughing so loudly he would have to go outside.—Buffalo Express.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women.

West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results.

HUNTING RUSSIAN WOLVES.

An Exciting Sport, but One That Is Apt to Be Dangerous.

Wolf hunting is probably the most dangerous sport there is. With a servant and a couple of fast horses attached to a sleigh I have gone out and baited the ground for the brutes on numerous occasions. A fat hog tied to a tree never failed to collect a pack. The trouble was that it drew too many. The wolves would gather to the number of 200 or 300 and devour the pig. Then we would dash upon the scene, and the fun would commence. They are as fleet as a deer. To say that they are as fleet as wolves would be more like it. They can outrun the horses every time, and if they are not picked off as fast as they come up you might as well give up the fight and permit yourself to be devoured.

Imagine yourself making a running fight with a band of 300 hungry, maddened wolves and with the knowledge that if one of the fleet little brutes reaches your horses you are a dead man, and you can possibly imagine what a nervy sport it is. It requires a cool head and a good eye. If you miss your mark, you're gone. Your only chance of safety is in keeping your horses up. It is generally a long fight. You look back and see the carcasses of the animals dotting the snow for a mile or two in your wake, and still they pursue you in great numbers. Slowly the pack thins out. Many have dropped bleeding to the ground. Others stop to devour the carcasses. The more that fall the more timid the rest become. When you finally outdistance the pack, you have been through the most trying ordeal that the most ardent sportsman could wish.

I consider wolf hunting the most dangerous sport there is. Tiger hunting in India is tame beside it. If you go into the jungles of India to shoot a tiger, you are accompanied by a long retinue. You shoot your prey from the howdah of an elephant. If you miss your victim, there are 20 bullets ready for him before he springs. A person might as well go tiger hunting in a menagerie. The only unsatisfactory part of the sport which wolves afford is that after you are through you haven't anything to show for your efforts. But it is great sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Fatalism In the East.

A correspondent at Cairo of the Chicago Inter Ocean gives a graphic account of the fatalism of the Egyptian people, and also of the excellent work which American missionaries are doing in breaking it up. Here are some of the Arabic proverbs which are the common property of the Mussulman and Coptic populations, for the native or Christian fellahin of Egypt, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, have forgotten their own language, using it only as a sort of mummery in their religious services, and speak only the language of their conquerors:

"God is good. The dirt comes; it must stay."

"Flies are sent. Why brush them off?"

"What is the use?"

"What is is right."

"It will be all the same in 100 years."

"If you are poor and filthy in this life, you may be rich and bathe in never ceasing fountains in the next world, if God wills it."

This stupid fatalism, joined with Turkish tyranny and crushing taxation, has resulted in a terrible moral paralysis among the people of this fertile and sunny land.

A Smuggler's Device.

Several years ago I was an inspector of customs, and during my term of office I ran across some rather unique devices arranged for the purpose of getting contraband goods into this country duty free. One day I apprehended a woman who had just arrived on a steamer from Europe, suspecting that she had some smuggled tobacco in her possession. Upon examining her dress 17 pounds of tobacco were found concealed under it, but the most remarkable of the expedients which she had resorted to for the purpose of deceiving the custom house officers was that of giving to the contraband leaf the resemblance of a loaf of bread. A quantity of cut tobacco had been placed into a tin, over which a thin layer of dough was spread, and this being baked had the appearance of a veritable and edible loaf. The quantity of tobacco which the woman had contrived to secrete in this and other modes amounted to over 70 pounds.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Multiplicity of Bicycle Riders.

The extension of the bicycle in popularity—it is estimated that about 750,000 machines will be in use in the United States and Canada next year—does not please some of the former wheelmen. Said one of them:

"Yes, I own a wheel, and I used to get some pleasure in riding it two or three years ago. I could get out on the country roads and be fairly sure to be alone, but now the fellows are as thick everywhere ten miles from town as they are in the parks. There is no fun for me any more in wheeling, since everybody owns a bicycle."—New York Sun.

One Homemade Article.

A worthy old Scot and his wife purchased some goods in a shop in P—— the other day. As they were turning to leave the old gentleman addressed the assistant thus: "Do ye come frae Germany?" "Na, na," replied he; "I was born in P——, and all my folks before me." "Weel," replied the old one as he edged out of the door, "ye may be proud o' yoursel', ma laddie, for as fair as I can see ye're the only homemade article in the whole shop."—Optician.

Nothing Venture, Nothing Gain.

A small boy who stood in front of a place of amusement the other day evidently wanted to get inside. Perhaps he thought that the way to be successful was to make success. Perhaps he thought that a thing worth having was worth trying to get. Or he may have thought he saw an opportunity to "try his luck," for the ticket taker was reading a newspaper, his head concealed behind the open sheet. The boy crept up slowly, making no noise. He had almost passed the man when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder.

"Where's your ticket?" demanded the man.

"Why, mister," said the boy, "I thought you was blind." And he wriggled away and left the place much more rapidly than he had entered it.—New York Tribune.

Trespassing In Balmoral.

A party of Americans tramping recently over the hills in the grounds of Balmoral came suddenly upon an elderly lady sitting alone before a table and writing rapidly. "Tell me, madam," said one, politely lifting his hat, "are we far from Balmoral?" "You are on the grounds now," said the lady, "and I greatly fear you are trespassing." They respectfully announced their intention of getting into the public road at the first opportunity. Thereupon the lady wrote a line, and, handing it to them, said, smiling, "Here is a safe conduct if you meet a bailiff." "Victoria, R," was all the slip contained.—Montreal Star.

SUNBEAMS.

A Desire to Please.

Brother Browse, the Mormon elder, had a long and lissom beard,
Which the first wife of his bosom said ought never to be sheared.

Hence, of course, his second consort used to flout at it and scoff,
And her daily tearful prayer was that he'd cut the horrors off.

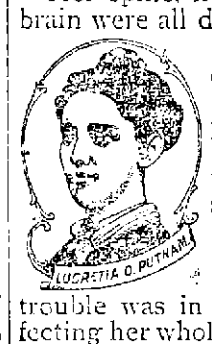

So they compromised the matter in the manner shown above
And lived happy ever after in a trinity of love.
—Life.

Lucretia O. Putnam,

of Forristdale, Mass., was utterly miserable and sick.

Her spine, liver, heart, and brain were all diseased.

The weight of her body caused terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress. This woman's trouble was in her womb, affecting her whole constitution.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well.

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing-down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure for the misery of our sex."

THE LABOR organizations of this city may well exclaim: Save us from our friends—the populists.

IS IT possible that the Mail believes half what it says about the tariff? How can any protectionist reason out that free coal would injure New England industries?

THE RALLY of Monday evening was an enthusiastic one. The wit of the chairman, the patriotic arraignment of the A. P. A. by Senator Fitzgerald and the logic of Josiah Quincy were the features of the occasion.

FOSS'S LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

The Citizen objects to the SUN'S reference to Mr. Foss's legislative record and especially to the charge of being absent at about half the roll calls. In the index of the journal are given over one hundred roll calls but in that list it appears is included the cases on which roll calls were demanded and refused. Those in which the yeas, nays and pairs are given have been examined and the dates set down in two columns, one marked Absent and the other Present. It will be at once apparent that on the same day there were several roll calls at some of which Mr. Foss was absent while he was present at others on that day. The following list we can vouch to be correct:

Resigned June 12.

It will be noticed that towards the last part of the session Mr. Foss attended more regularly than during the preceding months. The only reason that can be assigned for this is that certain corporations petitioned for increased privileges and he probably intended to vote for them. Another motive was that he wanted to get acquainted in order that he might be legislated into a license commissionership. He was sure to be present when his vote was needed on the telephone bill in favor of increasing the capital stock as on June 8. In fact a close examination of Mr. Foss' record reveals the fact that although absent at a majority of the roll calls, he managed to be present whenever any popular measure was under consideration that he might vote against it.

NO-LICENSE THREATENED.

There are rumors of opposition to certain democratic candidates by certain liquor dealers and there is positive proof that certain men working in the interests of Mr. Foss are doing so because they have been promised liquor licenses next year. They may have been promised licenses by men who are unable to deliver the goods and their names will be sent to the license commission in order that this custom of making promises that can never be fulfilled in lieu of political service will be stamped out.

Should Mr. Brady be defeated there will be a concerted movement for no-license and it will probably be carried. This is one way in which treachery can be punished. Personal grievances should not be allowed to militate against a party candidate. Those who work against the party for personal reasons will be punished by the party.

It is time that some of those who profess to be democrats and support republican candidates were called to account.

There is one man running a speak-easy this year under protection of the law and although a democrat last year he is this year working for Foss, probably because he finds that the easiest way to evade punishment for violating the law. Those who mean to enter the liquor business next year and those who want a license vote to be carried should endeavor to elect Hon. Peter J. Brady. In doing that they will be advancing their own interests, because if he be defeated liquor dealers will be blamed and a very slight agitation will result in carrying the no-license vote.

WE WOULD respectfully ask the Lowell Citizen:

Have Mr. Knox's fellow citizens of Lawrence ever thought enough of him to call him to public office?

Has Mr. Knox's name ever been suggested in the public affairs of Lawrence as a citizen whose influence would be for the good of the city?

HON. GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS is inquiring how much the silence of the republican party in regard to the A. P. A. has cost. The compact has certainly been well kept by the G. O. P.

THEY ALL WENT.

A Tale of Two Dollars and How It Was Spent.

The Templetons had decided to go to the theater. They had set aside $2 for the tickets, and Mr. Templeton thought if he economized a bit on cigars they might go and get some luncheon after the show too.

When Mr. Templeton came home that night, he was met at the door by his wife who said, "Well, Fred, I've decided that we won't go to the theater tonight."

"Won't go?" said Fred. "Why not, I'd like to know?"

Mrs. Templeton's face took on a serious look. "Mrs. Byrnes was in to see me this afternoon," she replied, "and she told me about that unfortunate White family that lives on the next block. She said that he had not had a bit of work for six months; that they had pawned everything they had that the brokers would take and were now on the verge of starvation. I used to know her when she went to school. I thought we might forego the pleasure of the visit to the theater, and I sent Johnny around with the $2 to the Whites. If it will do them any good, I knew you'd not begrudge, and besides"—here she bit her lip savagely and jabbed her handkerchief into one of her eyes—"I didn't care very much about going anyway, so you needn't feel bad."

"By Jove, you are a noble little woman!" said Templeton, kissing her fondly. "I guess you're right about the money doing the Whites a lot of good, but you needn't be disappointed for all that. A fellow I know gave me a couple of lithograph tickets, and we're going anyway. I was going to give you that $2 for your own."

They were very happy at the supper table, and about a quarter after 7 started for the theater. The lithograph tickets called for seats pretty well toward the rear of the house. The Templetons got there as the orchestra began to play. Just as the footlights were turned up a seedy looking man and a faded woman took the two vacant seats just in front of them. Mrs. Templeton nudged her husband and said, "If that isn't Laura Smith, who married that White fellow, I'm badly fooled."

Mr. Templeton peered around and made up his mind that his wife was right. They didn't enjoy the first act much. After the curtain dropped the woman turned around and recognized Mrs. Templeton. "Why, how do do?" she said gushingly. "I haven't seen you in an age."

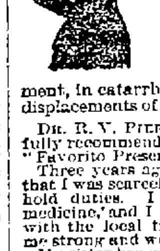

"I'm pretty well," responded Mrs. Templeton stiffly.

"Kind of surprised to see us here, ain't you?"

Mrs. Templeton was furious by this time. "Yes," she said, "I must say that I am."

"Well, I'll tell you," the woman said. "I don't suppose I've got any business here, but some softy sent around $2 to the house this afternoon, and me and Will was just achin to see the show, so we came."

Just here the usher tapped Mr. Templeton on the shoulder and told him that if he did not stop laughing so loudly he would have to go outside.—Buffalo Express.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women.

West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results.

HUNTING RUSSIAN WOLVES.

An Exciting Sport, but One That Is Apt to Be Dangerous.

Wolf hunting is probably the most dangerous sport there is. With a servant and a couple of fast horses attached to a sleigh I have gone out and baited the ground for the brutes on numerous occasions. A fat hog tied to a tree never failed to collect a pack. The trouble was that it drew too many. The wolves would gather to the number of 200 or 300 and devour the pig. Then we would dash upon the scene, and the fun would commence. They are as fleet as a deer. To say that they are as fleet as wolves would be more like it. They can outrun the horses every time, and if they are not picked off as fast as they come up you might as well give up the fight and permit yourself to be devoured.

Imagine yourself making a running fight with a band of 300 hungry, maddened wolves and with the knowledge that if one of the fleet little brutes reaches your horses you are a dead man, and you can possibly imagine what a nervy sport it is. It requires a cool head and a good eye. If you miss your mark, you're gone. Your only chance of safety is in keeping your horses up. It is generally a long fight. You look back and see the carcasses of the animals dotting the snow for a mile or two in your wake, and still they pursue you in great numbers. Slowly the pack thins out. Many have dropped bleeding to the ground. Others stop to devour the carcasses. The more that fall the more timid the rest become. When you finally outdistance the pack, you have been through the most trying ordeal that the most ardent sportsman could wish.

I consider wolf hunting the most dangerous sport there is. Tiger hunting in India is tame beside it. If you go into the jungles of India to shoot a tiger, you are accompanied by a long retinue. You shoot your prey from the howdah of an elephant. If you miss your victim, there are 20 bullets ready for him before he springs. A person might as well go tiger hunting in a menagerie. The only unsatisfactory part of the sport which wolves afford is that after you are through you haven't anything to show for your efforts. But it is great sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Fatalism In the East.

A correspondent at Cairo of the Chicago Inter Ocean gives a graphic account of the fatalism of the Egyptian people, and also of the excellent work which American missionaries are doing in breaking it up. Here are some of the Arabic proverbs which are the common property of the Mussulman and Coptic populations, for the native or Christian fellahin of Egypt, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, have forgotten their own language, using it only as a sort of mummery in their religious services, and speak only the language of their conquerors:

"God is good. The dirt comes; it must stay."

"Flies are sent. Why brush them off?"

"What is the use?"

"What is is right."

"It will be all the same in 100 years."

"If you are poor and filthy in this life, you may be rich and bathe in never ceasing fountains in the next world, if God wills it."

This stupid fatalism, joined with Turkish tyranny and crushing taxation, has resulted in a terrible moral paralysis among the people of this fertile and sunny land.

A Smuggler's Device.

Several years ago I was an inspector of customs, and during my term of office I ran across some rather unique devices arranged for the purpose of getting contraband goods into this country duty free. One day I apprehended a woman who had just arrived on a steamer from Europe, suspecting that she had some smuggled tobacco in her possession. Upon examining her dress 17 pounds of tobacco were found concealed under it, but the most remarkable of the expedients which she had resorted to for the purpose of deceiving the custom house officers was that of giving to the contraband leaf the resemblance of a loaf of bread. A quantity of cut tobacco had been placed into a tin, over which a thin layer of dough was spread, and this being baked had the appearance of a veritable and edible loaf. The quantity of tobacco which the woman had contrived to secrete in this and other modes amounted to over 70 pounds.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Multiplicity of Bicycle Riders.

The extension of the bicycle in popularity—it is estimated that about 750,000 machines will be in use in the United States and Canada next year—does not please some of the former wheelmen. Said one of them:

"Yes, I own a wheel, and I used to get some pleasure in riding it two or three years ago. I could get out on the country roads and be fairly sure to be alone, but now the fellows are as thick everywhere ten miles from town as they are in the parks. There is no fun for me any more in wheeling, since everybody owns a bicycle."—New York Sun.

One Homemade Article.

A worthy old Scot and his wife purchased some goods in a shop in P—— the other day. As they were turning to leave the old gentleman addressed the assistant thus: "Do ye come frae Germany?" "Na, na," replied he; "I was born in P——, and all my folks before me." "Weel," replied the old one as he edged out of the door, "ye may be proud o' yoursel', ma laddie, for as faur as I can see ye're the only homemade article in the whole shop."—Optician.

Nothing Venture, Nothing Gain.

A small boy who stood in front of a place of amusement the other day evidently wanted to get inside. Perhaps he thought that the way to be successful was to make success. Perhaps he thought that a thing worth having was worth trying to get. Or he may have thought he saw an opportunity to "try his luck," for the ticket taker was reading a newspaper, his head concealed behind the open sheet. The boy crept up slowly, making no noise. He had almost passed the man when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder.

"Where's your ticket?" demanded the man.

"Why, mister," said the boy, "I thought you was blind." And he wriggled away and left the place much more rapidly than he had entered it.—New York Tribune.

Trespassing In Balmoral.

A party of Americans tramping recently over the hills in the grounds of Balmoral came suddenly upon an elderly lady sitting alone before a table and writing rapidly. "Tell me, madam," said one, politely lifting his hat, "are we far from Balmoral?" "You are on the grounds now," said the lady, "and I greatly fear you are trespassing." They respectfully announced their intention of getting into the public road at the first opportunity. Thereupon the lady wrote a line, and, handing it to them, said, smiling, "Here is a safe conduct if you meet a bailiff." "Victoria, R," was all the slip contained.—Montreal Star.

SUNBEAMS.

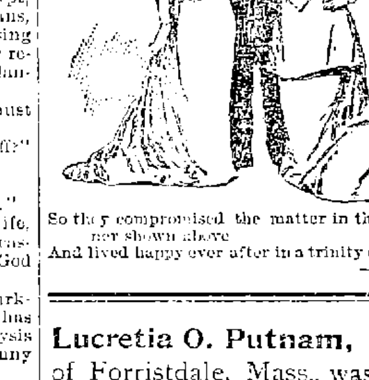

A Desire to Please.

Brother Browse, the Mormon elder, had a long and lissom beard,
Which the first wife of his bosom said ought never to be sheared.

Hence, of course, his second consort used to flout at it and scoff.
And her daily tearful prayer was that he'd cut the horrors off.

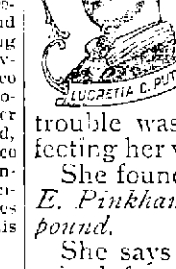

So they compromised the matter in the manner shown above
And lived happy ever after in a trinity of love.
—Life.

Lucretia O. Putnam,

of Forristdale, Mass., was utterly miserable and sick.

Her spine, liver, heart, and brain were all diseased.

The weight of her body caused terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress. This woman's trouble was in her womb, affecting her whole constitution.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well.

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing-down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure for the misery of our sex."

Lost Manhood and vigor quickly restored. Varicocele, nightly emissions, atrophy, etc., surely cured by INDAPO, the great Hindoo Remedy. With written guarantee to cure. Sold by Ellingwood & Co., and Carleton & Hovey, Lowell, Mass.

Women Have Full Suffrage—In Great Britain Women Vote For Elective Officers Except Members of Parliament.

In Great Britain women vote for all elective officers except members of parliament.

In France the women teachers elect women members on all boards of education.

In Sweden women vote for all elective officers except representatives; also indirectly for members of the house of lords.

In Norway they have school suffrage.

In Ireland the women vote for the harbor boards, poor law guardians, and in Belfast for municipal officers.

In Russia women householders vote for all elective officers and on all local matters.

In Finland they vote for all elective officers.

In Austria-Hungary they vote by proxy, for all elective officers.

In Croatia and Dalmatia they have the privilege of doing so in local elections in person.

In Italy widows vote for members of parliament.

In the Madras presidency and the Bombay presidency, Hindustan, the women exercise the right of suffrage in all municipalities.

In all the countries of Russian Asia they can do so wherever a Russian colony settles. The Russians are colonizing the whole of their vast Asian possessions and carrying with them everywhere the "mir," or self governing village, wherein women who are heads of households are permitted to vote.

Women have municipal suffrage in Cape Colony, which rules a million square miles.

Municipal woman suffrage rules in New Zealand.

Iceland, in the north Atlantic, the isle of Man (between England and Ireland), and Pitcairn island, in the south Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

In the Dominion of Canada women have municipal suffrage in every province, and also in the Northwest Territories. In Ontario they vote for all elective officers, except in the election of members of the legislature and parliament.

In the United States 28 states and territories have given women some form of suffrage, according to Political Progress, the source of these statements.

Sleepy Grass.

A curious grass is reported as having been discovered in Lincoln county, N. M., and it is said that it is not known to exist anywhere else. According to the Iowa Homestead, its identity has not been botanically determined, and it is only known by its popular name—sleepy grass. The property from which the name is derived is that of putting to sleep animals that graze on it. It grows in among other grasses and is eaten readily by all kinds of stock. Horses that eat it go to sleep on their feet, while cattle and sheep usually lie down. Its effects continue for an hour or more and then pass off, leaving no injurious effects. Teams turned out to graze by travelers stopping for the noon hour often fall asleep while being hitched up, and the whip is necessary to arouse them. They will then start off at a good pace, but this gradually slackens, their heads droop, and presently they come to a full stop, sound asleep. If the animals are allowed to sleep until they awaken naturally, they seem much refreshed, but if urged forward during the period of drowsiness they appear very weary, even after the desire to sleep passes off. It is not known what the sleep inducing principle is. It may be something resembling the poppy, or it may be something entirely different.

Athletic Sports of American Women.

Among athletic sports which are pursued by American women may be enumerated bowling, skating, snowshoeing and tobogganing, for which many parts of the country are in winter eminently adapted. They are also especially addicted to rowing and canoeing. The women's colleges, which are so numerous, and many of the large private boarding schools keep boats and encourage both rowing and swimming.

It is stated that there are no less than 90,000 women in the United States who ride bicycles. It is not the sport of the richest women, who can afford to keep horses, but is exceedingly popular with those less favored by fortune. Cycling is the principal form of outing with a large class of both men and women. Racing has even taken place among the female cyclists, but only in a few instances, and is generally discountenanced by the women themselves. Golf has not yet become a favorite amusement in America, but it is said to be taken up as a fad among the ultra fashionables. At the few links that are in existence women go in for the game largely and use the links with the men, but golf has not yet superseded tennis.

A Change of Voice.

A foreign scientific journal publishes the results of some recent experiments upon the vocal chords which are likely to prove interesting to aspirants to lyric honors. In the case of a baritone, who was not content to be a baritone, but sighed for the higher emoluments of a tenor, a course of inhalations, beginning with benzoin, going on to caffeine and chloroform and concluding with curacoa, proved perfectly successful. The transformation was pronounced to be complete.

The Busy Bee a Fraud.

The iconoclastic scientist claims to have shattered another tradition. An observer of the honeybee's habits says that this creature, long praised for its industry and diligence, is a fraud in these respects; that, as a matter of fact, "the little busy bee" works but about three hours a day and is a most thorough going loafer for the rest of the time. Must we give up forever the happy phrase, "the busy bee?" We trust not.

Foreign Born Population.

Taking the country as a whole, the white native population born of foreign parentage and the foreign born white amount to 32 per cent, but in Massachusetts it is 56 per cent, in Rhode Island 5[illegible], in New York city 82, in Milwaukee 8[illegible], and in Wisconsin over 90.—Professor Mayo Smith.

Relics of Thoreau.

In Self Defense.

She was the wife of a cavalry officer, and she was going to have some fun with the lieutenant of infantry.

"I suppose," she said, "you have often been chased by the Indians on the plains?"

"Never," he responded politely.

"No?" keenly sarcastic.

"No. You see, they are so busy chasing the cavalry they don't have any time for us."—Detroit Free Press.

ABOUT NEW YORK.

Some Buffalo Women Would and Would Not Like to Live There.

There were three of them, and they were going down town together. They sat up at one end of the car and giggled and talked all the way.

"Jack," said the one in the middle, "had a perfectly lovely offer to go to New York and live, but I wouldn't go. I wouldn't live in New York."

"I'd rather live there than anywhere else," said the one nearest the door.

"I wouldn't live there at all," said the third one. Then a conversation like this ensued:

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Why wouldn't you? I'd just love to live there."

"Oh, you couldn't hire me to live there!"

"No; I wouldn't live there."

"I'd rather live in New York than anywhere else."

"Well, I just wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I."

"I think it's a lovely place to live."

"I don't. I wouldn't live there."

"Neither would I. I wouldn't like to live there at all."

"Why, Jack, my husband, had an offer there, and it was a lovely one. I wouldn't let him go."

"Well, if my husband had any kind of an offer of a position down there, I'd make him go."

"Well, I wouldn't live in New York."

"Couldn't hire me to."

"I'd rather live there than any place in the world."

This sort of thing kept up for two blocks more. Then the fat man who sat in the corner got up, yelled wildly at the conductor and dived for the rear platform.

"What's the matter?" asked the conductor. "Where are you going?"

"Going?" growled the fat man as he jumped off. "I'm going down to the home for feeble minded female children and get my faith in the intelligence of American women restored."—Buffalo Express.

A Matter of Economy.

The lady from the tamarack swamps was laying in some parlor furniture, and the clerk in the store was offering his valuable advice.

"No," she said in rebuttal; "I don't want no chairs."

"No chairs, madam?" he exclaimed. "I never heard of a parlor without chairs."

"Well, you come to my house some time, and you will see one," she retorted.

"What will you have instead?"

"Sofies, young man, sofies, these little two seat ones, and taytaytays and things like that."

The clerk's equanimity was receiving a powerful jostle.

"What in the mischief do you want to do that for?" he asked in a helpless sort of way.

"You ain't a married man, are you?" she snapped. "You never raised a family of girls, did you?"

"Hardly."

"Well, you don't know anything about it. I've raised five. Three's married, and the other two's got beaux. I've always had chairs, and every time when the courtin was over with them girls and they got married I had to get new ones. Three sets of parlor chairs in three winters is goin it most too strong. They git broke down somehow, and now I'm goin to put a stop to it by havin sofies, and you needn't be tryin to change my mind. I know what I want, and if you haven't got sofies say so, and I'll run go where they do have them."

The argument was convincing, and the clerk fitted the thrifty lady out with a half dozen warranted to carry two with safety and economy.—Detroit Free Press.

Barrowcliff's Forgetfulness.

"I haven't seen Barrowcliff for quite a long time, Kilduff. What has become of him?"

"Hadn't you heard the news?"

"What news? Is he married?"

"No, not married. I mean the immense fortune that he went to England to claim."

"Hadn't heard a word about it. Tell me the whole story."

"About a year ago Barrowcliff heard that a very large fortune was awaiting him in England. I think the figure named was somewhere about £200,000, and there were only three heirs to the estate. It was to be divided equally. So Barrowcliff went over after his money."

"What a lucky dog he is! I wonder when you and I will have a windfall like that."

"Ah, when indeed? Well, as I was saying, Barrowcliff went to England after his money. About a year ago it was, and he hasn't come back yet."

"I suppose he is so pleased with the country and his possessions that he is staying there. Well, I don't know that I can blame him very much. I think if I were to drop into a nice fortune like that I'd stay abroad for a year or two anyhow."

"No, that isn't it. Barrowcliff is not staying because he is so fond of the country."

"No?"

"No, he would much prefer to be back in the United States."

"Then why doesn't he come? What is there to prevent him?"

"It seems that when he left New York he failed to provide himself with a return ticket."—Truth.

In a Texas School.

Teacher—Can you take five from three, Johnny?

Johnny—Yes. I borrow two, and then I can do it.

"But if your pa gives you 3 cents and tells you to go to the candy store to buy 5 cents' worth of candy, how would you do then?"

"I'd keep the 3 cents and tell the man to charge the 5 cents' worth of candy to pa."—Texas Siftings.

Making Sure.

"You must take exercise," said the physician.

"I know it," replied the patient. "It goes against my disposition terribly, but I have a scheme that will fix it all right."

"What is that?"

"I'll go to the races two or three times a week and not buy a round trip ticket."—Washington Star.

DEAFNESS SOMETIMES USEFUL.

In This Instance, However, It Cost an Extra Quarter.

"There is an advantage in being deaf if you only know the exact time not to hear," said L. T. Salignac of Philadelphia, "but the difficulty is to discriminate just when that time is. I have a friend who made, or rather tried to make, capital out of the misfortune nature had sent upon him, but he was continually making mistakes. Being a politician, as any of that kin knows, he met with plenty of instances where it was advisable not to hear. My friend ran for governor of Maryland once, and, while he was defeated, he was extremely popular and well known all over the state, from the urchin in the gutter to the millionaire in his palace.

"I went fishing down in the Delaware bay one summer with him, and the boat made a landing at one of the towns on our way down. He was no sooner seen than a chorus greeted him from the wharf with 'Hello, governor!' He acknowledged the compliment with a graceful tip of the hat. As we walked down the gangplank one fellow, a little more obtrusive than the rest, pushed his way up to the side of my friend and bellowed out, knowing the failing in his hearing, 'Say, guv'ner, old man, can't you loan me a quarter?'

"Of course this was one of the occasions upon which my friend's auricular organs failed to perform their duty. He walked on as if he had not heard a word, while to my invitation to take a drink, given in a moderate tone of voice, he gave a ready assent. As we walked on a little farther the man persisted. This time he came up to my friend and shouted at the top of his voice in his ear, 'Say, guv'nor, can't you loan me 50 cents?' My friend turned, and in a quiet, dignified manner said, without a smile, as he tossed him the half dollar: 'Confound your impertinence! I should have heard you the first time.'"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

AN OUTLAW FORTRESS.

The Cliff From Which the Sizemore Band Shot Down Travelers.

On the left bank of the Holston river, in Hawkins county, Tenn., is a cliff which has some local fame. It is of solid stone, perpendicular from the base up and is something over a hundred feet high. From the top of it the country is visible for miles and miles, affording a grand view of the hill, mountain and stream. A few feet back from the edge are still plainly to be seen the earthworks forming the rendezvous of the celebrated Sizemore and his gang of desperadoes.

From the top of the cliff they commanded a full view of a much used public road, together with two fords above and below, and a great number of hapless soldiers as well as private citizens who had lucklessly incurred their anger fell victims to their unerring rifle bullets as they attempted to pass all unconscious of danger.

Very near this cliff is a little cave at least a mile deep, on the sides of which are written the names of once prominent people who have long since passed away, the dates running back perhaps a hundred years. In one of the caverns is a perfect little table, formed of a flat rock. During the war this cave was used by some soldiers as a place for making saltpeter, the hoppers being still in a state of preservation, the earth looking as if it had been dug but recently.—New York Commercial.

RASH RAJAH.

Twenty-three Seidlitz Powders Made Him Seek His Doctor's Life.

An English doctor attached to the court of a rajah made himself most indispensable to his highness. He had fortunately also made a friend of his prime minister.

On one occasion his highness, being slightly indisposed, had taken, by the doctor's advice, a seidlitz powder, with which he expressed himself delighted. Its tendency to "boil and fizz, ready to blow your nose off," seemed to him to "scatter coolness," and he seemed so much better after taking it that the doctor felt himself justified in joining a hunting party.

Presently a horseman from the palace, in the confidential employment of the grand vizier, galloped up to him.

"My master bids me tell you," he said, "that his highness has broken open your medicine chest and taken first all the white powders and then all the blue."

"Gracious goodness," cried the doctor, "there were 23 of each of them!"

"My master adds," continued the messenger, dropping his voice, "that you had better make for the frontier without one moment's delay."

The doctor put spurs to his horse and never drew rein till he was "out of the jurisdiction of the court."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Man Without a Show.

He said if he'd had a fair opportunity he'd have made a sensation in any community, and the great name of John Alexander McCrary would have echoed o'er mountain and ocean and prairie with all the reverberant thunder of fame.

If he'd not been cornered by rough circumstances, he'd have shown us a man like we see in romances, for fate had sent him a superior shipment of spiritual, moral and mental equipment, sufficient to gain the whole planet's acclaim.

If he hadn't been rubbed out by fate's merciless friction, he'd have shown us a man like we read of in fiction—a man of unquestioned superb intuition, an Amalek giant of great erudition, the best product ground out by the gods' roaring mills.

For his head was a great intellectual hummock, but it took all his time to attend to his stomach. Fate might sing of him in her mightiest carol, if he didn't have to pay for his wearing apparel and work all the time just to pay up his bills.

But, though he made all of these mighty pretenses, he was hampered, you see, by his laundry expenses. In the grainfields of fame he had been a strong reaper were it not for his low, sordid boarding house keeper, who for very course viands demanded large pay.

His clothier felt not his great genius resplendent, his tailor felt not his wide talents transcendent, his furnisher made no alarming deduction for his large and phenomenal cranial construction, and, like plain men, he paid for his three meals a day.—New York World.

The Last Long Sleep.

Familiarity with death is apt to alter one's earlier conceptions of it. Two ideas are very generally accepted which experience shows to be false. One is that the dying usually fear death, and the other that the act of dying is accompanied by pain. It is well known to all physicians that when death is near its terrors do not seem to be felt by the patient. Unless the imagination is stimulated by the frightful portrayal of the supposed "pangs of death" or of the sufferings which some believe the soul must endure after dissolution it is rare indeed that the last days or hours of life are passed in dread.

Most sick persons are very, very tired. Sleep—long, quiet sleep—is what they want. I have seen many people die. I have never seen one who seemed to fear death, except when it was or seemed to be rather far away. Even those who are constantly haunted, while strong and well, with a dread of the end of life forget their fear when that end is at hand.—Scribner's Magazine.

DEFENDING LORDS

Upper Chamber Claimed to Be a Necessity.

He Answers the Arraignment of Rosebery.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 31.—A conference of the Scottish Conservatory associations was held here last night. Ex-Prime Minister Salisbury made a speech in which he scathingly criticised a recent speech of Prime Minister Rosebery. He described the agitation against the house of lords as a a herring drawn across the path of home rule.

LORD SALISBURY.

He did not believe, he declared, that Lord Rosebery was in earnest in his proposed vague resolutions regarding the house of lords. It would be harmless, and if submitted to the country it would be in no wise like the foreign referendum to which Lord Rosebery had likened it. He, himself, would not speak against a referendum; in fact, he thought it decidedly advantageous in the form in which it existed in America for good government and the stability of the country.

Doubtless Archbishop Walsh's well-drilled battalions would pass Lord Rosebery's resolutions against the voice of the country. "Do you," he asked, "imagine that the resolution would possess any moral authority whatever, or that any sane human being could imagine that England or Scotland would abase themselves so far as to put their necks under the heels of south and west Ireland?

Will Not Be Recognized by the Courts.

"It is a ludicrous proposal. They may pass all the resolutions they like, but a bill embodying such proposals will never be accepted by the house of lords, and, therefore, will never be recognized by the courts of law. No such change in the constitution is possible without a considerable majority of the people being in its favor."

Lord Salisbury argued that on several occasions, in his experience, the house of lords supported Liberal measures against Conservative opposition. If the house of lords had become virtually a conservative body, it was because Mr. Gladstone's ill-advised Irish policy had driven them in that direction.

If the Irish question was once moved out of the way, the house of lords would gradually, though perhaps slowly, settle back into the old position in which the parties were evenly balanced. It was well for the safety of institutions, which, once overthrown, could never be replaced, that the balance of the party in the house of lords should be on the side of conservatism.

The ex-prime minister added: "If the question of handing the government of the country over entirely to a single chamber should come before the country, which I do not believe it will do, we would have to confront the greatest danger that the community has had to face in many centuries. Remember that the domination of a single chamber has not been adopted by any considerable country on the surface of the earth.

House of Lords a Safeguard.

"Can it be supposed possible to govern India by an independent house of commons, where the ideas of faddists might become law without a chance of an appeal to a higher authority? One other point, but for the house of lords you would now have 80 votes in the house of commons saleable to the highest bidding party, making you and your interests slaves of Archbishop Walsh and his friends."

Without saying anything about the maintenance of the house of lords in its present form, he appealed to all who believed in the religious institutions of the country, in freedom, in the security of contract and the sanctity of property to combine to support the second chamber, which he declared was necessary to control the decisions of the elective chamber.

Replying to the vote of thanks extended to him by the meeting, the ex-prime minister took occasion to say: "All of Lord Rosebery's talk about my power in the house of lords is nonsense, and an attempt to make capital against the house of lords by using my name as imagining that any member of that house has any motive whatever in paying more deference to my opinion than might be due to the argument I used, is an audacious, impudent fabrication, unworthy of the man who made it."

Its Twenty-Sixth Convention.

An Attempt at Suicide.

MARLBORO, Mass., Oct. 31.—Jasper L. Sloan attempted suicide by shooting yesterday on the grave of a little daughter, recently deceased. He will recover.

MERCIER IS DEAD.

Canada's Premier Had Long Suffered From a Complication of Diseases.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Honore Mercier, ex-premier of Quebec, died yesterday. The end had been expected at any time during the preceding 24 hours, and hope of recovery had been given up weeks ago. In fact from the moment that he first fell seriously sick on Aug. 14 last it had been felt that he was on his deathbed. Mr. Mercier had been suffering from a complication of diseases for years past.

The last rites of the church were administered by Rev. Father Garceau, S. J. Mr. Mercier was unconscious most of the time. Morphine was administered at 10:30 o'clock Monday night and the patient became much agitated. It was then feared that a reaction would take place and the end might come any minute. Throughout the night the vital spark flickered, growing lower and lower, until the end came.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Mercier's death was expected at any time, the news has created great interest here and the bulletin boards containing the information were soon surrounded by crowds eager to learn the particulars of the once great French-Canadian leader's last hour.

Secured Her Child.

BRISTOL, N. H., Oct. 31.—After six years of searching all over New England by detectives, lawyers and relatives, and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, Mrs. Lucy M. Green of Worcester, Mass., who alleges that through the agents of the Children's Aid society of Massachusetts she was robbed of her two children, Paul Revere and Cora, in 1888, was taken to her son's side late Monday afternoon. Yesterday, by outwitting those in whose care he has been placed, she took Paul, and last night crossed the boundary line of Massachusetts with him. Whither she went is unknown.

Lexow Developments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The examination of Commissioner Sheehan occupied nearly the entire session of the Lexow committee yesterday. The name of Superintendent Byrnes was most often on the lips of the witness. The subject of a new police signal system was introduced, and Mr. Goff used a deadly parallel, whereby it was made to appear that the language of the advertising circular of the Municipal Signal company of Boston and that of the report made by the commissioner on the signal systems was identical.

The Reconstructed Cabinet.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The emperor and empress yesterday gave a farewell audience to ex-Chancellor von Caprivi. The appointment of Baron Marschal von Bieberstein as a Prussian minister is a valuable proof that the German policy will not be changed. It is believed that Dr. von Schelling, Prussian minister of justice, and Herr von Heyden-Cadow, Prussian minister of agriculture, will be replaced in order to strengthen the ministry.

Still Missing.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Annie M. Thompson remains unheard from. Long suspense and anxiety are breaking her mother's heart. This case in its present bearings is one of the most mysterious that has for years come under the notice of the local police. The girl dropped out of sight Oct. 2, left a pleasant home and indulgent parents, affectionate sisters and a host of friends, for what no one in the city seems to be able to tell.

A Five-Cornered Debate.

Resisting a Cutdown.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 31.—Winders at the Columbia mill, 29 in number, on account of a cutdown from 25 to 40 per cent, left the mill yesterday on strike. Doffers in the ring spinning room of City mill No. 2 also went out, refusing to work under a cutdown of 5 per cent.

Judaism Recognized.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 31.—Committee of the house of magnates discussed the bills for freedom of worship and recognition of Judaism, which were sent back by the deputies. The bill for the recognition of Judaism was adopted without change.

WANT HIS RELEASE.

More Particulars About the Theft of Irons From a Store.

Several days ago Philip Ouillette, a lad of 15 years, was sent to the reformatory for the larceny of two flat irons from the Bon Marche. An effort will be made to secure the release of Ouillette, and the facts in the case as told by his friends are that Ouillette took his father's wagon to take a trunk of a Mr. Durand to the depot. Durand wanted a ride to the depot also and got on to the seat. While driving up Cabot street Durand fell from the seat and was run over.

The boy got scared and jumped from the wagon and ran to the depot, boarded a train and skipped to Montreal. He remained their one week and then returned to this city. During the week he said he had nothing to eat, and upon arriving in this city, he was hungry and tired. He was afraid to go home and so stole the flat irons, expecting to sell them and buy food.

All this money has been paid.

Frank Ross, as part of the settlement, has agreed to remit at once $50,000, to be employed in benevolent purposes in Carluke, Scotland, and also to devote $30,000 to the establishment and maintenance of a home for old men and boys of Protestants of all denominations. The last amount takes the place of a corresponding sum which in the original proposal was to go to the Finlay asylum and the Church of England male orphan asylum of Quebec.

HILL'S FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT

The Betting Favors Morton—Seventies Realize the Strength of Tammany Hall.

NEW YORK. Oct. 31.—The declaration of William R. Grace that the state Democracy organization is supporting David B Hill, and is not responsible for any Wheeler pasters, is received with incredulity by many who still insist that secretly, if not openly, that faction is in favor of Hill's defeat.

The adherents of the latter candidate express much gratification at the numbers and character of the Cooper Union meeting Monday night and are confident that the Democratic reform ticket will make a good showing on election day. Many anti-Hill Democrats will, it is generally believed, vote straight for Morton, taking the ground, as one of them remarked yesterday, that a vote for Wheeler will only be half a vote against Hill, and that the Wheeler votes are depended upon to aid Morton any way.

The Hill men are as confident as ever, referring with special satisfaction to the personal fight their candidate is making. Most of them, however, do not seek to conceal their disappointment or anger that their candidate has not received open and active encouragement from the national administration

Republicans Confident.

The Republicans abate none of their claims, and insist with the general Republican tendency this anti-year and the Democratic defection from Hill, the latter will be "snowed under."

There has been little betting so far in the campaign, but the reports of wagers at the Stock Exchange and elsewhere show odds on Morton, not unfrequently of two to one. Smaller odds are given on Strong against Grant.

The perfection of the Tammany organization throughout the city is making the supporters of the committee of 70 rather cautious at risking their money, however much they anticipate a great Tammany uprising.

The Hill Democrats are pleased by the announcement that Speaker Crisp has cancelled engagements in order to speak in this city or Brooklyn.

Hot Politics.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—William S. McNary, regular Democratic candidate for congress, and a number of his friends held a rally in ward 19 last night. The meeting was in an uproar, and the police were called in to preserve order. Ward 19 is a stronghold of Congressman McEttrick, the independent Democratic candidate.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31.—For a few weeks past there has been an epidemic flourishing at Wesleyan, and is at present assuming serious proportions. NOW IT IS SPAIN.

Colonial Questions Have Led to the Resignation of the Cabinet.

MADRID, Oct. 31.—As a result of the cabinet council held yesterday the ministers have tendered their resignations. Prime Minister Sagasta has gone to inform the queen regent of the action of the cabinet. It is believed that the crisis will be found to be difficult of solution.

Although the causes that have led to the resignation of the Spanish ministry cannot at present be positively stated, it is pretty safe to assume that the crisis was partly precipitated by colonial questions. The government recently arranged with the Bank of Spain for an advance of 10,000,000 pesetas in Spanish silver dollars to replace the Mexican dollars in the Porto Rico currency.

This project was strenuously opposed by Senor Maura, the colonial minister, but his colleagues persisted in carrying out the arrangement, and Senor Maura resigned. This, however, was but one of the serious differences in the cabinet on the government's colonial policy.

AMERICA AND SCOTLAND.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The United States consul general at Glasgow, in a special report to the department of state, says:

"Large orders are being received by merchants here since the passage of the new United States tariff bill, and many of them have expressed to me the opinion that the coming year will witness an unprecedented trade between Glasgow and the United States, both as to exports and imports. Every indication points that way. The enactment and operation of the law have given a new impetus to trade between Glasgow and the United States, the months of August and September showing a very perceptible increase in the number of invoices and the value of exportations as compared with the preceding months. The value of exportations for the quarter ending June 30, 1894, was $103,674; for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1894, it was $594,543."

Benton, presiding elder of the district, is now investigating the matter. The complainant is Mrs. S. M. Holman, a widow, now at a private hospital in Salem, wasting away with consumption and unable to leave her bed. She says Dunbar gave notes for borrowed money, but failed to make them good.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The habeas corpus proceedings begun in August by Mrs. Byers against Messrs. Tallman, Davis, Shields and Kimberly, to recover her husband, the Pittsburg millionaire, have been dismissed on motion of her attorney, who says that suit will be brought in Pittsburg for about $250,000 against Mrs. Byers' brother-in-law, A. M. Byers. Action for damages, he said, will also be brought against Dr. Tallman, the physician who, Mrs. Byers claimed, aided in keeping her husband from her.

Reputation Was Good.

BRADFORD, N. H., Oct. 31.—The people of this quiet town are greatly excited over the disappearance of Winfred B. Cilley, postmaster and town treasurer, and it is alleged that he is short in his accounts, not only in the postoffice, but also in the town finances. Cilley's non-appearance is the gossip of nearly all the citizens, as he has been gone from Bradford since last Friday morning. As far as can be ascertained, no one here is aware of his whereabouts. Cilley has been postmaster for about two years. His reputation was of the best.

Drovers are somewhat disturbed as to the new law which is to go into effect regarding the quarantine of milch cows. They must have their stock by Saturday or Sunday or the market day must be changed to Thursday. Either of these plans will necessarily cause an advance in prices, as the cost of landing the stock will be increased, and it is going to be a matter of great risk to drovers to bring stock here. Drovers intend to get together at an early day and take measures whether they will send their stock on earlier or change their market day.

AMERICAN CATTLE CANNOT CARRY TEXAS FEVER

Across the Ocean—Great Surprise at Washington Over the Action of Germany.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The announcement that the embargo placed on American cattle by the senate of Hamburg had been extended to the length of an exclusion of American cattle and dressed meat from every port of Germany was received with surprise by department officials.

That the Texas fever was merely a ground which Germany could adopt for enforcing retaliatory measures against the United States because of the supposed discrimination against German interests in the sugar schedule of the tariff bill was the prevalent impression. The German ambassador, however, assured the secretary of state that the measure of exclusion was inspired solely by sanitary reasons and had no political move behind it.

Secretary Morton had a consultation with Secretary Gresham about the matter yesterday, before the stringent measures just adopted were known. He assured Secretary Gresham that the exportation of Texas fever into Germany by American cattle was altogether improbable, if not impossible, according to the opinions of the pathological experts of the department, and said that he was confident that the supposed discovery of Texas fever

Was a Mistake.

When the dispatch from Berlin was shown to the secretary of agriculture, he expressed surprised. The exclusion of dressed meats he was at a loss to understand, because they are all inspected by competent government officials in this country before they are shipped. Texas fever, moreover, can be carried only by live cattle. The live cattle exported from this country are also inspected at the ports of shipment to see that they are not diseased.

The secretary thinks that the damage to be inflicted on American interests by this action is generally overestimated, as our exports of meats to Germany are comparatively light, aggregating but a small fraction of the exports to Great Britain.

From observations on his recent trip, Secretary Morton is convinced that the exportation of live cattle cannot be made to pay as well as shipping dressed meats.

Knights Disagree.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Local Knights of Labor have been disfranchised from representation at the general assembly which opens its session in New Orleans on Nov. 11. The reason alleged for this action by the Ottawa district assembly is that they are one member short of the required number which entitles them to representation. But the local knights believe that the true reason is that the Sovereign party think the Toronto men are favorable to Powderly.
